U. S. FACES ZERO HOUR ON DEEP SEA DIPLOMACY

Stimson Calls Aids to Strategy Parley.

By ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15. — We now approach the zero hour of the grand offensive of the London naval conference. There has been a general barrage of statements of the national attitude toward disarmament on behalf of each naval power delivered formally in the plenary sessions of the conference, also informally, though no less officially, statements to the press. Each nation has paraded itself as a pioneer disarmer, and declared its intention to complete divestment of naval defense by brute force is only limited by a cautious regard for national security from attacks from other powers, represented at the conference, whose professions of peace must be so sincere as they sound.

U. S. Shuns "Naughty Word."

That is, all the nations, except the United States, have made further disarmament contingent on preservation of national security. We are laying down no such selfish worldly unchristian condition for our reduction of armament. Our statesmen have shown so much as breathed the horrible, vulgar, barbarous phrase, "national security."

There has been a general reconnoitering of rival positions. Now the plenipotentiaries of the five naval powers are ready to go over the top and engage in a diplomatic battle from which the conference will emerge itself with resumption of negotiations Tuesday. Today the master minds of the American delegation are planning a strategy encounter.

Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state, has retired to his English country seat at Stanmore for week-end consultations. The house was built by an American and, therefore, has a central heating plant and several bathrooms. There he has gone into a huddle with Charles Francis Adams, secretary of the navy, representing the army and the Adams tradition of inseparability to British wiles, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson, representing the Democratic minority of the senate, without which no treaty can be ratified.

Morrow the French Expert.

Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow, widely reputed to be the brains of the American delegation, is bringing his full power to bear on the problem of getting the French into line for a deal. Mr. Morrow is supposed to have been put on the American delegation to "handle the French," for which he was thought qualified by virtue of close associations with French financiers and statesmen which he enjoyed when a member of the house of Morgan.

Mr. Morrow, by virtue of his assignment to handle the French, is specializing on the security pacts for which France is pressing. Despite the abolition of war by the league of nations, the Locarno pact and the Kellogg multilateral treaty, France says it cannot afford to reduce its armament unless the powers in this conference unite in a new agreement insuring it safety from attack. It wants either a Mediterranean or an Atlantic security pact, or an agreement putting teeth in the Kellogg treaty by committing the United States and other signatories to punish any nation breaking its pledge to renounce war.

Some View It as Bluff.

Some think this is a pure French bluff to cover the determination of France to become a naval power of the first rank, now that it is prosperous and sitting on top of the world with a gold reserve second only to that of the United States.

France is said to have been licked into line for the Washington treaty by the fear of financial retaliation by England and America. Now France is taking a back seat for no one, well knowing, as the others know, that she has got a crimp in Wall street and Lombard street by withdrawing her credits in New York and London.

Some think Great Britain will be compelled to buy a French reduction of naval strength, particularly in submarines, by agreeing to some kind of security pact, though the idea of committing itself to a course of action and advance is almost as repugnant to Great Britain at present as to America.

What the United States will do if a security pact proposition comes up for study—not even the custodian, Mr. Morrow—knows. Our policy is dependent largely on Great Britain's. If Great Britain goes in for a security pact the American delegation probably will do so also, particularly if it is only tentative on the lines of the Pacific four power pact.

GIRL AND PAL SEIZED; ADMIT 20 ROBBERIES

Police Drive Lowers Stickups to 14.

In the 16 hour period up to midnight last night detective bureau squads, flivver squads and patrolmen rounded up 729 racketeers, gunmen and suspicious characters, who were jammed into district stations to be held for the showup today. Two bands of gunmen were caught in the act of robbery, two other gangs arrested on suspicion were confessing to long lists of street stickups, and ten men were booked for carrying pistols.

In the same interval there were only 14 stickups, ten of these occurring after 8 p. m. Acting Chief of Detectives John Egan cited for comparison the record of Saturday night two weeks ago, when 69 citizens were robbed.

Chief Egan said the results achieved last night by Chicago's 5,000 unpaid policemen in their war on crime were phenomenal.

Capture Man and Girl.

A capture which was expected to clear up the robberies of twenty cab drivers and druggists was made by Sergt. Thomas Lamie and his squad. At Broadway and Belmont avenue the squadmen saw in a parked car a swarthy young man and a blonde girl who answered the descriptions of the pair who had harassed cab drivers nightly for two weeks.

The man identified himself as Nickolas Volota, 26 years old, and said he lived with Harry Friedman, an electrician of 3423 Elaine place, by whom he was employed. Friedman, who turned out to be the brother of Sammy Friedman, killed in the robbery of a drug store last November, was seized at the Elaine place address with Jack Davis, 26 years old, 4833 North Avers avenue, and Barbara Mayer, 23 years old, who said the apartment was rented in her name. Volota's companion identified herself as Irene Brent, 23 years old, of 1235 North La Salle street.

Confess Robbing Drivers.

At midnight Davis and Volota confessed they had held up twenty drivers of department store delivery trucks in the past two months.

In the Kensington district on the far south side, Sergts. John Ryan and William Smith traced a stolen check through a south side bank to the Lake Front hotel, 3800 Lake Park avenue, where John McAuliffe, 36 years old, and Fred Stone, 52, both former convicts with robbery records, were arrested with two women, Winifred Down, 24 years old, and Dorothy Andrus, 23 years old. Both were toting pistols when seized.

Two Negroes were holding guns against the chest of a pedestrian, Jacob Sendra, 3357 South Wood street, at 30th and Wood streets, when Sergt. Ray Crane and his squad appeared. Before the Negroes could turn to use their guns, the squadmen had subdued them. They were booked at the Pekin Inn station for robbery while armed.

Nab "Red" Bolton's Brother.

Two of State's Attorney Swanson's special policemen contributed to the crime suppression record. Detectives Casey and Caparallie, seeing William Bolton, 30 years old, brother of the notorious George "Red" Bolton, in company with two others at Taylor and Halsted streets, arrested all three. Bolton was held on suspicion while the other two, on their own admission, were booked as keepers of a gambling house. They gave their occupations as bookmakers. The two so booked were John Katz, 34 years old, 1552 Taylor street, and Barney O'Brien, 31 years old, of 2943 Jackson boulevard.

Capture Young Burglars.

Two young burglars, Clyde Griffin, 1655 East 67th street, and Arthur Clark, 6236 University avenue, each 16 years old, were captured by Sergt. Jack Dalton and his squad after they had filched two dresses in a tailor shop at 6700 East End avenue while the proprietor, Michael Saks, had his back turned. Besides the dresses, which they had tucked under the coats, each of the youths carried a hack saw, which, they admitted, they intended to use to break into a south side cabaret early this morning. In their rooms were found clothing and musical instruments which, they confessed, they had taken in burglaries in the Woodlawn laundry, 1121 East 63d street, and the Stonehenge hotel, 6319 Kenwood avenue.

Among the pistol toters who, as a result of Mr. Swanson's new policy, face grand jury indictment and Criminal court trials, are: Monroe Stewart, 30 years old; Michael Kosa,

City Merchants Refuse Tax Warrants

THE RELAY RACE

Each Team Has Its Weak Member

His Religion Keeps Juror in Court All Night

MORRIS SEVIN.
[Chambers Photo.]

Morris Sevin, 52 years old, 860 Buena avenue, a retired lumber dealer, is such a good citizen that he returned from a Florida pleasure trip to perform his duties as a juryman in the Criminal courts. However, his religious beliefs nearly upset the wheels of justice in the courtroom of Judge John J. Sullivan in the Criminal court late Friday night, where Charles Nowicki was on trial, charged with robbery with a gun.

The jurors in the case, Sevin, an orthodox Jew, being one of them, retired to deliberate for a verdict shortly after 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The jurymen debated for hours on whether Nowicki was guilty and finally around 10 o'clock came to the unanimous opinion that he belonged in the penitentiary.

Refuses to Sign Verdict.

George E. Fenwick, 1328 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, the foreman, signed his name first to the guilty verdict and each man in turn attested his signature to the document until it came to Sevin. He refused to pick up the pen to sign, although admitting he had voted for the guilty verdict.

Not until Saturday night at sundown would he put his name to the verdict, he informed his associates. His fellow jurors at first became angry at the thought that because of some notion of Sevin they would have to sit locked up for a night and day in the jury room. When he explained that it was because his religion prohibited him from transacting any business or writing his name on the Jewish Sabbath, which begins at sundown Friday, the jury appealed to the judge.

Signs by Proxy.

The judge told Assistant State's Attorney Charles Lounsbury and Nat Ruvell to search the law books for a precedent. None could be found. Attorney Wilbury Crowley, representing Nowicki, agreed to the proxy signing provided the jury was polled and Sevin agreed in open court that he had voted for a guilty verdict. This was done and the jury discharged.

"But I can't go home, your honor, because it is against my religion to ride on street cars on the Sabbath," said Sevin. "Can't I stay in your courtroom for the night?"

The judge provided a room in the jury quarters. When the court officials returned to work yesterday they found Sevin.

"Your service ended last night and you can go about your business," he was told.

"Yes, I understand that, but it is too far for me to walk home," replied Sevin. "If I may I would like to stay around until the Sabbath is over at sundown tonight and then I can ride home."

BOAT'S GLASS BOTTOM BREAKS; 63 ARE SAVED

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Sixty-three passengers were taken from the glass-bottomed excursion boat New River as it was sinking in Bear cut, between Fisher's island and Virginia key, south of Miami Beach late today. Capt. Jean Meschel, owner, was in command of the vessel.

The accident was caused when the rudder of the craft struck a sand bar, breaking the glass in the bottom. Water began pouring in through the opening and the decks were awash when the last passenger was removed.

Some of the passengers were landed at the William K. Vanderbilt estate on Fisher's island and were brought to Miami by airplanes sent out to aid in the rescue. Others were taken off by speed boats and other craft.

Count Simeon von Czarnyj yesterday divorced his wife, Kaska von Czarnyj, so that she might marry his brother, John, in Lwow, Poland. With a gesture in keeping with centuries of tradition in his family, Von Czarnyj at the same time surrendered to his brother his title and claims to an estate in Poland.

Count von Czarnyj was married on March 1, 1890. At the time he possessed a considerable estate. His wife was also of a good family. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in the Austrian army as a captain of a Polish company. In 1915 he was assigned to guard Russian prisoners, who were chiefly of Polish descent. He rebelled, refused to stand guard with his company over his compatriots.

Escapes from Prison.

He was deprived of his rank and imprisoned. After confinement in a fortress for nearly a year on poor fare he escaped. Disguised, he returned to his wife, who had been under the protection of his brother at home. The count prevailed on his brother to flee with him to America. Once here, they were to have the wife join them. After many adventures they arrived in Chicago just as the United States entered the war.

Because of the war, the reunion with the wife was postponed. With the declaration of peace Count von Czarnyj made arrangements for his wife to enter the United States. The brother persuaded the count to permit him to return to Poland and bring the wife over. After he had arrived in Poland the brother wrote and confessed his love for the wife. He said they had fallen in love while Count von Czarnyj was in prison, and that they preferred to remain in Poland.

Tells Story in Court.

For many years Count von Czarnyj refused to obtain a divorce. But with the birth of a second son to his former wife he relented and filed an action through Attorney Victor Frohlich. He charged desertion. He told his story yesterday to Superior Judge Lindsay, who granted the divorce, and at the close of the hearing announced his intentions of renouncing his claims to his confiscated estate and of surrendering his title.

Although he is only 40 years old, the count explained that the war and its hardships had so aged him that he has no wish to remarry and continue his line. The brother should be the head of his house because he is in Poland, he said. Count von Czarnyj, who lives at 4753 South Paulina street, is a barber.

Jury Acquits Dry Slayer of Virkkula

Duluth, Minn., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—After four and one-half hours of deliberation the jury in the Emmett J. White murder case returned a verdict of "not guilty" at 9:15 o'clock tonight.

"This means 'look out' when you are riding in a car along the Canadian border. You must stop for robbers or any one else," said David Hurlburt, state prosecutor for Minnesota.

White shook hands with all the jurors. His bride of 9 months clung to his arm.

George A. Heisey, United States assistant attorney from St. Paul, who was the counsel for White, was the only lawyer in the courtroom when the jury returned.

This ends the prosecution growing out of the killing of Gust Henry Virkkula, near Little Fork, Minnesota, 27 miles from the border, on the night of June 8 last.

Federal Judge William A. Cant, after 40 minutes' instructions, gave the case to the qury at 5:45 this afternoon.

Rules Out Second Degree Murder.

His instruction ruled out the second degree murder charge, on which White was indicted, and the jury was restricted to one of two guilty verdicts, second degree manslaughter and third degree murder.

The court also told the jury that it was to ignore the national prohibition law in considering the case. The issue, he said, was whether White had exceeded his authority as an officer or whether he had used reasonable precautions before shooting. Also the jurors were told they were to decide the truth or falsity of the defense plea that White had no intention of shooting at Virkkula but had merely fired at the tires of his car, the bullets going wild.

Scores Willful Shooting.

"Under no circumstances," the judge said, "is an officer justified in willful firing at a driver of a car. Shooting at a car, even a fleeing car, is a dangerous method. Officers should fire at a car only as a last resort and exercise reasonable, orderly care, seeing that the shots do not reach any one in the car.

"The officers here required no search warrants. We have nothing to do with the national prohibition act in this case except in an incidental way. No contraband liquor was found in the car of the deceased."

Owen J. Larsen, special prosecutor for the state of Minnesota, in his address to the jury asked them to try the case without prejudice.

"The state does not want you to do anything but render exact justice," he said.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Heisey in his address for the defense sought to blacken Virkkula and stressed the liquor enforcement problem.

3 CHILDREN DIE IN FIRE; FATHER SAVES DAUGHTER

Racine, Wis., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Three children were burned to death today when a coal stove exploded in the Olaf Christensen home.

Christensen, seriously burned, fought his way through the blaze and saved one child and his wife, but all of them were pronounced near death.

The three children who were trapped and burned to death were Bonnie, 5; Phyllis, 2, and Edna, 1.

The injured father carried Irene, 6, from the blazing house.

COUNTY'S PLAN TO PAY WORKERS RUNS INTO WALL

Stores Join Bankers in Condemnation.

Chicago merchants, both in the outlying districts and in the loop, almost without exception, declared last night that they will not accept tax anticipation warrants in payment for merchandise. By this action the merchants joined with the Chicago and Cook County Bankers' association, which a week ago denounced the plan to pay public employés in which is commonly called scrip and advised its member banks not to cash the tax warrants or to make loans upon them.

The merchants' stand was disclosed after the county board voted yesterday to begin paying salaries in scrip tomorrow. The board acted to alleviate the suffering of county employés, who have been payless since December. The two largest possibilities that the warrants would be of any real use to the workers were immediately foreclosed. The employés were confronted with the triple fact that the warrants are not bankable, cannot be traded for clothes or food and cannot be eaten.

County Move Called a Bluff.

State street merchants and neighborhood storekeepers were unanimous in taking the county board members to task and characterizing their action as "a bluff on the bankers."

"The merchants should not and cannot be called upon to usurp the function of the bankers," declared James Simpson, head of Marshall Field and company. "If the county board carries through its program on the theory that such warrants would be acceptable by the trades people, they are courting disaster not only for the county employés but for the county and city governments.

"Such action on the part of the county board would positively destroy for many years the credit of our city. If the board is proceeding upon the theory that the county employés could use such warrants at face value, I prophesy they are certainly sadly mistaken.

"I cannot by the greatest stretch of imagination contemplate Marshall Field and company accepting 1930 tax anticipation warrants in payment of bills. Nor can I contemplate other merchants, whether in the loop or outside it, accepting the warrants.

"I cannot believe the county board, composed of men of intelligence, would take the lead in a program that is destined to disaster and failure.

"The present situation in Chicago presents a great challenge as well as a great opportunity. No man or body of men has yet suggested a program that would be effective in lifting the city and other local guvernments out of the financial pit. There has been much talk but no action. Nero fiddles while Rome burns."

Pirie Rejects the Warrants.

John T. Pirie, head of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., with equal finality said that his store could not take the warrants.

"Do you really think the board will issue the warrants to employés?" he asked.

"The members say they will," he was told; and then he said: "The payment of county employés in scrip or warrants would further injure the credit standing of the county. The paper would certainly be discounted by those who accepted it in payment for merchandise, but to what extent it would be discounted no one could now tell. Carson Pirie Scott & Co. can't see its way clear to accept scrip at any price."

Stevens Also Votes No.

Elmer T. Stevens, head of Charles A. Stevens & Brothers, had a similar statement.

"We could not accept the warrants unless we had a conference with our bankers," Mr. Stevens said. "So far as I am concerned, I can't very well see how the bankers could consistently advise us to accept paper which they themselves have refused to accept and which they have been quoted as saying was unsound."

"The plan does not seem to be an economically sound measure," said Leon Mandel, head of Mandel Brothers. "I don't feel it would relieve the situation in any way and therefore our company will not accept any such scrip."

E. F. Wieboldt of the Wieboldt stores announced himself in full accord with the State street merchants. "We will be guided by whatever action they take," he said. "If they accept scrip, so will be; if they won't, we'll do likewise."

Morris Goldblatt, president of Goldblatt Brothers, had a different answer. "Yes, we'll accept scrip for purchases," he said, "but we won't give change on it. If a customer wishes to purchase $10 worth merchandise and pay us with scrip for that amount, we'll accept it. But if he wishes to buy only $5 worth, we won't make the sale; we won't give change."

Loren Miller, president of Loren Miller & Co., north side department store, agreed with Mr. Simpson. "The merchants shouldn't be expected to finance the public employés," Mr. Miller said. "We won't take scrip."

George Madigan, executive of Madigan Brothers, west side store, said: "We can't be the exception; we'll do whatever the banks and the other stores do. If they accept scrip, we'll have to; if they don't, we won't. But we're not bankers, we're merchants."

Banks Ignore Demand for Cash.

The county board's decision to pay employés with tax warrants followed an ultimatum issued to the bankers to come through with cash by midnight Friday. The bankers did not produce the funds so the board acted yesterday morning.

The county employés have not been paid since Dec. 15 and many of them need money.

Whether the issuance of county tax warrants as pay for the employés will interfere with the negotiations between the city hall and the Strawn committee remains to be seen. Heretofore it has been predicted that use of tax warrants as pay checks would depreciate the market value of the warrants. The county board decided to put them out slowly by first issuing warrants to settle salary claims between Dec. 15 and Dec. 30; then for the next two weeks, and so on. It was the opinion of one observer that the commissioners desire to be stopped before any warrants are handed out, but that the action was deemed necessary for its political effect.

Gives Opinion on Warrants.

Hayden Bell, attorney for the county board, gave both a legal and financial opinion yesterday on the county's plan of paying employés with tax warrants. He said:

"The county pay roll warrants in anticipation of taxes, issued to county employés or creditors for ordinary expenses, are as certain of payment as the taxes against which they are drawn and, being protected by a margin of 25 per cent, these warrants are as safe as coin of the realm. They are better than coin of the realm in that they bear 6 per cent interest."

The county board issued a statement saying that it will continue to cooperate with the Strawn committee. The issuance of warrants to employés is for the purpose of bridging them over until the relief from outside arrives, according to the statement.

CITY GETS HOPE, NO CASH

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The conference between three city hall spokesmen and a subcommittee of the Strawn citizens' committee did not produce any cash for city pay rolls yesterday or result in an agreement upon a plan to raise millions, but it did create much hope among the city's representatives.

"This is bound to result in something," commented City Controller Schmidt.

"I'm an optimist," added Corporation Counsel Ettelson.

The third city representative, John A. Richert of the council finance committee staff, smiled when asked if the meeting developed any hope in him.

No Plan for Relief Made.

The joint conference between the city hall representatives and the Strawn subcommittee took place in the office of Lewis E. Myers, school trustee, whose plan brought the two groups together. Mr. Myers presided. For the citizens' committee were present Silas H. Strawn, Robert F. Carr, and Ernest R. Graham.

The failure of the meeting to agree upon a plan of relief for the local governments is said to have been entirely due to the fact that the city spokesmen were unable to present the information called for. They are reported to have been unprepared to supply the data and information requested by the citizens, who will raise the cash if it is obtained.

It is said that the city's representatives composed the scenery for the gathering. Neither of the suggestions on raising cash came from the municipal authorities.

Refrain from Mentioning Waste.

The city hall spokesmen apparently were prepared to defend the administration against any charge of waste, extravagance or stuffed pay rolls, but the citizens' representatives are said to have refrained from any reference to municipal mismanagement and at the same time to have given the impression that the city could spend the money raised in any way it saw fit.

But it was suggested to the city officials that it would be extremely difficult to raise $27,150,000 before a valid tax assessment has been determined upon, which was regarded as another way of saying that it will be hard to find buyers for all the corporate tax warrants now and some public services will necessarily be without funds.

Harry S. Cutmore, director of the reassessment, was called in and he said that the assessors will deliver all assessments to the board of review by Feb. 20. The board of review promised to complete its work by May 1, which indicates that tax bills will be in collection about June 1.

Ask City Hall for Figures.

The citizens' group then asked how much money the city desires before June 1. Deputy Controller Victor S. Petterson was called in, but the citizens wanted more information than he was prepared to submit immediately. So the city was told to decide what its minimum requirements are and submit them. When that is available another meeting will be held. City Controller Schmidt told the conference that even if $27,150,000 worth of corporate tax warrants are sold the city will be without cash on July 1.

After the meeting a statement was issued saying that "several plans" for emergency relief were considered, but it was said later by a member of the committee that "several" in this instance meant only two.

Both of these plans involved getting the cooperation of the banks and large taxpayers of Chicago. The Strawn committee obtained the promise of aid from a number of large property owners and it reported that others have since offered aid, if those in charge of the plan will see that waste is curbed and that legislation is obtained to prevent a recurrence of the present situation.

2 Boy Aviators Injured When Motor "Goes Cold"

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Harold Rhoads, 17, and Earl Bach, 17, both of Lexington, were seriously injured this morning when their airplane fell at the Lexington airport. The motor "went cold."

AUTO RUNS 59 MILES ON GALLON OF GAS.

Automobile engineers who worked for years in an effort to reduce gasoline consumption have found the solution in a marvelous invention that fits all cars. An actual test made by one of the engineers showed 59 miles on a gallon of gas. Thousands of car owners have already installed this new invention. They not only report amazing gas savings but are also surprised to find quicker pickup, instant starting, smoother running motors, and disappearance of carbon. E. Oliver, 999, 3276 E. Third St., Milwaukee, Wis., for a limited time is offering a free device to those who will help introduce it. He also needs men everywhere to make over $100 weekly in their own territory taking care of local business. Write him at once for sample and big money making offer.—Adv.

Warm Weather to Return Today, Forecaster Says

Restoration of the balmy weather which prevailed from Feb. 1 until a Canadian cold wave plunged the temperature almost to zero on Friday night was promised for today by the government forecaster, J. R. Lloyd, last night. The northwest wind, which held the thermometer to a maximum of 13 degrees yesterday, was to shift to the south this morning, according to the forecast.

POLICE CAPTURE 729 IN RAIDS; 10 ARE GUNMEN

Girl and Pal Confess to Robbing 20 Drivers.

yek, 38 years old, 1336 Roosevelt road; George Vantura, 25 years old, 902 Cambridge street; Cornelius Glass, Negro, 25 years old, 211 East 47th street; Edward Palmer, Negro, 1353 South Sangamon street. Twenty-one others in the batch arrested were found to have police records.

Blame Alcohol Feud.

Detectives investigating the shooting of Tony Lombardo, 25 years old, who was killed in an alley behind 1414 West Austin avenue by two men who riddled his body with shotgun slugs and pistol bullets, said they believed Lombardo was murdered because he was trying to "muscle" his way into the alcohol racket. Lombardo had a record as a pickpocket and purse snatcher, and had served two terms in the Bridewell for petty larceny.

The case of Jack [Skinny] Flynn, 7800 Peoria street, business agent for the teamsters' union; and Arthur Strook of 1224 West North avenue, who were arraigned before Judge Immenhausen in the Municipal court, following a shooting in a drug store at 7358 South Halsted street, was continued until March 8. The continuance was granted on the motion of Assistant State's Attorney Russell Root, in order to give the police a chance to make further investigation.

Assault to Kill Charged.

Flynn was charged with carrying concealed weapons and Strook and Flynn both were charged with assault to kill, after an unidentified man who fled had been wounded in a quarrel over a woman.

Michael Quirk, identified by Policeman Frank Vitek as one of the men who shot him in the thumb, was released on $7,500 bonds after he had been arraigned on a charge of assault to kill. Assistant State's Attorney Daniel Covelli asked that the case be continued until March 5, saying he would seek Quirk's indictment in the meantime.

HOLD ONE MAN AND HUNT TWO OTHERS ON PLOT CHARGES

William Beckwith, 62 years old, a salesman, was held at the detective bureau last night on two warrants sworn to by Mrs. Sarah Sucknecht, 65 years old, 740 East 36th street, charging him with conspiracy and with false imprisonment. Two other warrants, sworn to by Mrs. Suchnecht, also were issued by Judge Helander in the Felony court for the arrest of her niece, Mrs. Fay Polk, 841 Forest avenue, and her husband, Wesley Polk, superintendent of the Evanston water works.

Mrs. Sucknecht charged that Beckwith and Mr. and Mrs. Polk imprisoned her in the Marquette sanitarium at 3741 West 66th place last August as part of a conspiracy to deprive her of a share in the estate of her sister, Mrs. Minnie Schwartz of Urbana, who was killed in an automobile accident last Easter.

Beckwith said that he acted in the matter only as a friend of the family and that Mrs. Sucknecht was suffering from hallucinations.

EIGHT MADE ILL FROM GAS; FOUR ARE IN HOSPITAL

A misplaced ventilating pipe on a hot water heater and an extinguished pilot light on a gas stove flooded a dwelling at 2930 Wallace street with noxious gases which brought sudden and violent illness to eight persons last evening.

Four were taken to the Mercy hospital, one of these, Andrew Schneider, 80 years old, in critical condition. The other hospital patients are Mrs. Therese Stryker, 55 years old, daughter of Schneider, and Mrs. Stryker's two daughters, Ann Grable, 18 years old, and Emma, 16.

Becoming ill during the afternoon, the Grables called their brother-in-law, Joseph and John Schroede, 2923 Normal boulevard, who came with their sister, Anna, 13 years old. These also became ill and, when Anna Schroede and Emma Grable fainted, Dr. Arkie Vaughan, 559 West 31st street, was notified. The physician could not come but sent a nurse, Miss Adele Scott, who also became ill.

A fire ambulance took the four most seriously ill to the hospital and the others to their homes. Inspectors from the health department discovered the extinguished pilot light and the misplaced ventilating pipe, either of which might have brought illness to the tenants alone, they declared.

SUIT FOR OLD JOB RECALLS A CITY SCANDAL OF 1905

Action Threatens Upset in Civil Service.

A scandal in city affairs of twenty-five years ago was brought to view again yesterday with the disclosure that Edward H. Ehrhorn, a former city employé, has petitioned the Circuit court for reinstatement in the city service.

In his petition Ehrhorn declares that he desires to serve only one day as a city employé and that then he will resign. His object, he says, is to obtain a pension. His reinstatement, according to experts on civil service law, threatens to jeopardize the civil service standing and pension rights of Edward J. Padden, who has been chief deputy city clerk for twenty-four years.

Ehrhorn was deputy city clerk back in 1905. He was charged with falsifying records of the city council to favor the Illinois Tunnel company which was then about to dig tubes under downtown streets. With several others he was indicted but freed when the judge instructed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty.

Makes Charge After 25 Years.

Similar charges were filed against Ehrhorn before the city civil service commission by the Citizens' association. He resigned on Sept. 8, 1905, the day that his trial was scheduled to begin before the commission, and the prosecution was dropped. After nearly twenty-five years Ehrhorn charges that his resignation was obtained by duress.

The first petition filed by Ehrhorn on Aug. 5, 1929, was successful, and an order was issued for his reinstatement. This order was vacated later and an amended petition was filed by Ehrhorn on Feb. 4, 1930. A hearing on the amended petition has not been held.

Political features were seen in the suit when knowledge of it spread around the city hall. The telephone book gives Ehrhorn's address as 4748 Greenwood avenue, where he is a neighbor of Corporation Counsel Ettelson, who lives at 1020 East 48th street. Ehrhorn is credited with having aided Ettelson when the latter first ran for the state senate.

Padden and the City Hall.

It is known that Padden in his position as chief deputy city clerk, at least twice has thwarted moves of the present city hall administration by his rulings on council procedure. Should Ehrhorn again be reinstated it is believed that the legal grounds for Padden's tenure of office would be destroyed and his pension rights swept away.

Padden refused yesterday to comment on Ehrhorn's action. But the records of the case in the Circuit court told the story and indicated also that the corporation counsel's office had not exhausted the city's opportunities in defense against Ehrhorn's suit.

The first petition for reinstatement was filed by Attorney John F. Tyrrell, representing Ehrhorn. It named as defendants the city of Chicago, Mayor Thompson, Civil Service Commissioners Ames, Carey and Denemark, and City Clerk Smith. One summons was served on the city by leaving it at the mayor's office. The others were not served, by direction of Attorney Tyrrell, according to the records.

First Hearing Is Held.

Five days later, at noontime on Saturday, last Aug. 10, shortly before the courts close for the day, a hearing was held before Judge Harry M. Fisher. The city had not denied the facts in Ehrhorn's petition but had filed a demurrer stating that the facts were not sufficient to maintain the action.

The city was represented at the hearing by Francis J. Vurpillat, an assistant corporation counsel. According to reports, Vurpilla was not given sufficient time to familiarize himself with the facts before he appeared in court. He is reported by those present to have said:

"I know absolutely nothing about the facts of the case except as disclosed by allegations of the petition. I am in no position to raise any issue of fact. The law is the only issue we have."

No objection was entered against the proceeding and Judge Fisher overruled the demurrer. The city was allowed 60 days in which to appeal. On Aug. 15 Judge Fisher signed the order for the reinstatement of Ehrhorn. The 60 days allowed to the city passed and no appeal was taken.

Amended Petition Is Filed.

However, the reinstatement order was set-aside by Judge Stanley Klarkowski on Dec. 28 and Ehrhorn was given permission to file an amended petition. Judge Klarkowski's order, according to some attorneys, protects Padden's right to his position pending action on the amended petition.

The wording of the amended petition differs from that of the original. Instead of demanding reinstatement to the position of chief clerk in the city clerk's office Ehrhorn now specifies that he is eligible to the position of "assistant chief clerk in the various departmental offices of the city." As he held the office now occupied by Padden the belief was expressed that the amended petition also jeopardizes the latter's rights.

What effect the reinstatement of Ehrhorn would have on the pension fund was speculative. He declares that he will make the proper payments to the fund. The necessary payments would amount to approximately $3,300. It would take a reserve of $45,000 yielding 4 per cent, to pay the $1,800 pension that Ehrhorn is asking. As the reserves for beneficiaries of the pension fund are already established no one could say where the fund could obtain a reserve to yield a pension for Ehrhorn.

Sets Aside $14,000 Award to Dancer in Damage Suit

A judgement of $14,000, which a jury awarded to Miss Mary Walter, a dancer, for injuries suffered while she was a passenger in a Checker cab in 1923, was set aside yesterday by Judge George Fred Rush. Counsel for the cab company asserted Miss Walter had settled for $3,000 before the suit was filed and the dancer admitted having accepted $1,900 of the settlement. Evidence concerning the settlement was held inadmissible at the trial.

MAKES DEAF HEAR WITH GERMAN INVENTION.

Science has made remarkable progress in making it possible for deafened people to hear. Recognized authorities on both continents consider a new discovery called "Universotone" the most perfect means of making the deaf hear instantly. The device when worn is practically unnoticeable. Ten cent flash light unit cells are used to operate it. Results are astonishing even in the most severe cases. Dr. Hugo Lieber is the distributor in the United States for this German invention. One of his experts, D. Farber, is right here in Chicago now, at Suite 1812, 59 E. Monroe St. Those who are deaf should call at once for free demonstration. If you cannot call, write for complete details.—Adv.

Michigan Student Dies in College Glider Crash

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 25.—[U. P.]—Edgar Siekemeyer, 18, University of Michigan engineer student, was killed here tonight when he crashed from an altitude of 250 feet in the university glider.

The motorless plane was towed along the ground and snapped into the air by an automobile, as usual. It soared to 150 feet, struck an air pocket and dived into the ground.

NURSE WHO SUED DOCTOR JAILED AS HE WEDS ANOTHER

Led from Church to Cell by Special Guard.

Among those at the wedding of Dr. Richard A. Nagle and Catherine Elizabeth Clark yesterday morning in St. Ita's church, Catalpa avenue and Broadway, were half a dozen policemen stationed there to eject an uninvited guest, Miss Dorothy Grundman. When Miss Grundman slipped into the church to watch Miss Clark become the wife of Dr. Nagle she was grasped by the arm and led out. When, police said, she attempted to return she was arrested.

Miss Grundman, who is 32 years old, and lives at 5922 West Chicago avenue, recently filed a $100,000 breach of promise suit against Dr. Nagle. She was taken from the church to the Town Hall police station by County Highway Policeman Daniel Levi, charged with disorderly conduct and locked up. Several hours later she was released on a $50 cash bond and will be arraigned in the Town Hall court tomorrow. Two highway policemen were detailed to the wedding by the sheriff's office.

Sees Bridegroom Enter Church.

The wedding had progressed past the beginning formalities. It had arrived at the point where Dr. Nagle and Miss Clark were pledging their vows, "till death do us part." Miss Grundman entered and advanced a few steps. Here is the way Sergt. Mike Tiamsa of the Summerdale district police station tells it:

"There was half a dozen of us police there. Policeman August Johnston, I think his name was, steps up quiet like to the lady and says, 'You're not wanted here. You've got no invitation.'

"Walks Out with Officer."

"And the lady says, 'I just want to take one more look.' Well, she got a good look, but Johnston's hand was on her arm, and then she walked out with him.

"There wasn't a scene or anything."

But Miss Grundman was not content with "one more look," police said. As she was led down the church steps she jerked herself free and raced back up the stairs, according to the police. Policeman Levi stopped her there and placed her under arrest.

At the station Miss Grundman said that she did not intend to protest the wedding before the altar. She only wanted to see it, she said.

Charges 8 Year Courtship.

Miss Grundman charged in her suit that Dr. Nagle courted her for eight years, during which time he proposed marriage and borrowed money from her.

Miss Clark is the daughter of the late Stephen T. Clark, wealthy contractor. Her home is at 4429 Magnolia avenue.

According to Charles J. Monahan, attorney for Dr. Nagle, Miss Grundman presented her claim against Dr. Nagle two years ago, and accepted a cash settlement out of court, agreeing to waive all her rights and turn over all letters, pictures, and other property which he had given her.

The attorney said Miss Grundman had called members of the Clark family and made damaging statements concerning the physician's character.

Frank E. McAllister, attorney for Miss Grundman, admitted that she had settled with Dr. Nagle two years ago for $5,000, but that that represented only the money he owed her, and that she did not waive her right to sue him for breach of promise.

WORK ON RANDOLPH STREET VIADUCT TO START IN 60 DAYS

Vice President Fred L. Thompson of the Illinois Central railroad announced yesterday that work would be started on the new Randolph street viaduct within 60 days. On Friday the Illinois commerce commission gave the railroad final permission to build the viaduct and a permanent suburban station beneath it.

This ruling, which approved all provisions of the lake front ordinance, makes possible the construction of public projects, highways, and street extensions which will total $25,000,000. The Illinois Central, Mr. Thompson said, is eager to start work immediately.

Final plans for the viaduct and station will be completed during the first week in March, he said, and within the 60 day period an order probably will be obtained from the Circuit court clearing the riparian rights for the south park commission along the lake front from the river south to the grounds of the South Shore Country club at 67th street. The order—merely a matter of form—must be obtained to comply with a legislative ruling issued about 20 years ago, Mr. Thompson said.

The viaduct will connect Michigan avenue with Field drive, an extension of the south outer drive which will run north from Monroe street to the river and pass over the outer drive bridge at the river's mouth. Field drive was also assured by the commerce commission's ruling and can probably be started almost simultaneously with the viaduct.

Since the suburban station will be constructed close to the present temporary structure, it was considered likely that it will be begun before the completion of the viaduct proper, probably after the viaduct has been built over the ground on which the station will stand.

SEEKS PROMPT INDICTMENT OF BANKER AND GIRL

Maywood Bank Employes Quizzed on Shortage.

Grand jury indictments will be sought immediately against Elmer P. Langguth, president of the People's State bank of Maywood, and his pretty protégée, Miss Laverne Lindgren, cashier of the bank, both of whom are accused of embezzling bank funds. This was the assertion yesterday of Edward D. Markham, assistant state's attorney.

Patrick Roche, chief investigator for the state's attorney, announced that the shortage in the bank's funds might reach $300,000. State auditors, inspecting the books, have found $253,000 missing thus far.

Several bank employés were questioned yesterday, but the investigators declared the president and girl cashier were apparently the only two who misappropriated funds.

Funds Not Recorded, Claim.

Langguth and Miss Lindgren hoodwinked the bank examiners for more than two years by withdrawing loose leaves from the ledgers when the examiners arrived, the investigators asserted. Many large deposits were never recorded and the examiners had no means of learning that the money had disappeared, it was said.

Prosecutor Markham, who showed unusual solicitude for the pretty cashier when she was arraigned Friday night, insisted yesterday that he would prosecute the case against the president and cashier as he would any other case. He is a neighbor and acquaintance of Langguth. Several complaints have reached State's Attorney Swanson concerning Markham's handling of the case and on Friday Roche was sent to Maywood as Swanson's observer.

Accused Pair in Seclusion.

Both Langguth and Miss Lindgren were in seclusion. Langguth is at liberty under $100,000 bonds and the cashier is under $10,000 bonds. The president is in a sanitarium, where he is constantly watched because of his threats to commit suicide.

Langguth's wife declared yesterday she would stand by her husband despite the rumors linking his name with that of Miss Lindgren.

SEA RIVALS KEEP EYES PEELED ON FRENCH POLITICS

Parley to Await Result of Paris Crisis.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—With Premier Tardieu and Foreign Minister Briand in Paris, Prime Minister MacDonald at Chequers, and American Secretary of State Stimson at Stanmore, a week-end calm has descended on the five power naval conference, so far as official business is concerned. However, experts and minor members of the delegations are busy trying to iron out the various details and the feeling prevails now in London that the critical phase has begun.

Security Pact Talk Grows.

The British still proclaim that they are not worried by the French demands for more than 700,000 tons of warships, and expect that they will be scaled down considerably in the course of bargaining. The opinion seems to be growing that some sort of a security pact, which will be inoffensive both to America and Great Britain will be evolved, but it is none the less important that all delegations are waiting to see the result of the French political crisis, which is expected during the coming week.

If Tardieu should fall the conference is certain to be delayed until his successor is chosen, even if, as it seems possible, that successor should be Tardieu himself. In the event of defeat in the chamber of deputies, he will not be able to return to London until he has reconstituted the government and secured a vote of confidence.

THE TRIBUNE learns that Mr. MacDonald himself raised the question of some sort of a Mediterranean pact when Premier Tardieu presented the French figures. M. Tardieu, however, wants an Atlantic pact which will include America as well as Great Britain, and in the meantime, the matter rests there.

Premier M. Tardieu is also said to have expressed himself plainly about the long dragged out course of the conference. When Mr. MacDonald suggested that he remain and work over the week-end, the French premier replied that, for some reason, the conference had not yet been able to work more than two days a week, and he said he saw no reason why he should waste three days in London, when he could be doing some real work in Paris.

He also reminded Mr. MacDonald that he insisted on holding the conference in London because he could not leave parliament, and declared that he had to go to Paris to see his parliament.

GUNMAN RAIDS GROCERY.

Gerald Meyer, 5715 South Ashland avenue, a clerk in a Consumers store at 1031 West 53d street, was robbed of $10 yesterday by a gunman who entered the store while an accomplice waited outside in an automobile.

WILL BE BRIDE

EDDA MUSSOLINI.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 14.—Fascist society was treated to a distinct surprise this afternoon when the announcement was made of the engagement of Edda Mussolini, 21 year old daughter of Il Duce, to Count Galeazzo Ciano, son of the Fascist minister of communications, war hero, and one of the bulwarks of the Fascist party.

The announcement was made during a tea party which was given for a few friends by Premier Mussolini at his home, the Villa Torlonia. The fiancé of Edda Mussolini is the secretary of the Italian embassy at the holy see, and is only slightly older than his future bride. The announcement was totally unexpected because, according to recent rumors, Il Duce's daughter was supposed to have been engaged to a young man in northern Italy.

UNCLE SAM TRIES TO HELP BRITISH MEND PARLEY RIP

Plays Political Game with Paris, Rome.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—During the week-end solstice of the naval conference American delegates are giving John Bull a helping hand straightening out his tangles with continental European nations, arising from his claim to the right for a fleet as big as the rest of Europe combined.

Uncle Sam, in an aloof sort of way, is playing politics for John Bull with France and Italy. His aim is to fix an European agreement which will enable Prime Minister MacDonald to keep his parity bargain with President Hoover on 1,200,000 tons.

Italy's claim for parity with France is one keynote of this problem. While the United States is not interested in the size of fleets of either France or Italy, she is interested that their navies be kept on a basis suitable to Great Britain. One means of effecting this accommodation, by the way of inducing the French to reduce their demands, is said to be a revival of the Mediterranean Locarno idea.

Another proposal to end the Italian-French parity row has been urged. It asks the two rivals to agree for the next five or six years—the length of the proposed limitation by accord—on parity in new construction, leaving out the question of existing naval strengths.

Despite the British despair over the French figures, the belief is growing tonight that some kind of limited and abortive accord is likely to be reached at this conference within the next three weeks.

In Italian circles it is believed that this accord will consist in a battleship replacement holiday and an agreement on what tonnage each nation will lay down in the next five years, fixed on a relative basis and nothing more. The Americans are believed to be doomed to disappointment in their hopes of a cruiser settlement.

This is further confirmed by authoritative British sources, who say that, even if whatever agreement this conference reaches, it will result in laying down of more warships than now are actually afloat, and that the conference will not be regarded as a failure.

NAVY DELEGATES TO GET PEEK AT "LOCARNO" ROOM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—Delegates to the naval conference and their wives will have an opportunity to inspect the famous Locarno room of the foreign office on Feb. 24, when they will be guests of Arthur Henderson, secretary of state for foreign affairs, and Mrs. Henderson.

This long, lofty, beautifully decorated hall was the scene of the signing of the Locarno treaty and is the official entertaining room of the foreign office.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Henderson will give a dinner to the heads of the delegations in the red room on the same floor.

The food will be cooked in the foreign office kitchens, and the wine for both the reception and the dinner will come from the famous British government cellars in Lancaster house.

Supreme Court Ponders Appeal of Willie Doody

The appeal of Willie (Baby Face) Doody, diminutive bandit who was convicted of the murder of Chief of Police Charles Levy of Berwyn, was taken under advisement yesterday by the state Supreme court. Doody is under death sentence for the murder and his lawyers are seeking a new trial.

NORMALCY! SPAIN SHIES AT GOING BACK TO OLD DAY

New Premier Fights to Save Throne.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Feb. 15.—Spain is at last the theater for an experiment of real significance to twentieth century politics. The legend of Spain's "decadence" hung over the dictatorship of Primo de Rivera. It was a second rate affair among the great post-war tyrannies, commanding none of the interest of Premier Benito Mussolini's show in Italy, Turkey under Mustapha Kemal, or Russia under Joseph V. Stalin.

But it was the first of the dictatorships to fall and so achieved distinction. Spain will now attempt to step forward and show the world how dictatorships are liquidated.

Others Watch Experiment.

This experiment will be watched closely in Italy and Poland, and two kings at least, Victor Emmanuel in Rome and Alexander I. in Belgrade, will look on with awed attention to see how King Alfonso, having got rid of his dictator, managed to get down to earth without any breakage of dynastic china.

Gen. Damaso Berenguer, picked to manage the descent, has been on the job two weeks now. A courtier and a man of culture, as well as a soldier, he has handled things with infinite cunning.

Gen. Berenguer explains that he intends to get back to normalcy in easy stages, first revising what Gen. de Rivera did, then gradually striking off the shackles from the press and public opinion, and finally, when the time is ripe, calling elections. Barring accidents this will take at least a year.

Dissidents Object to Normalcy.

Gen. Berenguer has met with difficulties his first two weeks in office. He has found out that in the first place nobody wants the normalcy of five days before 1923.

Gen. Berenguer's program is fine so long as the country is supine or sympathetic. It seems to be neither so far. He abolishes a few of Gen. de Rivera's more ridiculous political economic monstrosities like the national assembly, which the king dissolved today, and cleans out the municipalities, and what happens? Instead of applause there arises a clamor that the whole fiscal economic situation be revamped.

Lifts Censorship; Meets Trouble.

Then Gen. Berenguer attempts to pick up on censorship. He authorizes political banquets and urges that the parties begin to reorganize themselves. What happens? The republicans raise the old cry of responsibility for the Moroccan military disaster with the new one of responsibility for the dictatorship and utter most savage threats against Gen. Berenguer and the dynasty.

Gen. Berenguer's ministery is keeping up the front that it is a transition cabinet, but transition to what? They do not know, nor does any one else.

RUSSIA PAINTS WORLD AS ARMING TO ATTACK HER

Calls Plea to Rescue Churches Excuse.

73 Churches Closed

[Copyright: 1930: By the New York Times.]

MOSCOW, Feb. 15.—Within the last twelve months in the city of Moscow alone 73 more churches have been closed by orders of the Moscow soviet, the latter announces.

The congress of the Moscow League of the Godless has adopted the slogan, "For a godless Moscow, for a godless collectivized village," and has declared for an anti-Easter campaign starting March 15. It has applied to the Moscow soviet for permission to requisition the so-called Choral synagogue, the largest synagogue in Russia, as the Godless league's headquarters.

As this year the Russian Easter falls on the fifth aniversary of the inception of "militant godlessness," an anti-God mass, shows, carnivals, and parades are to be held. About 10,000 new militant Muscovite Godless members will "be offered to the Communist party."

MOSCOW, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Izvestia and Pravda, official organs for the government and communist party, today declared that the present attacks on the soviet government abroad for its suppression of churches and wiping out of the rich peasant class were part of a concerted international movement against the soviet union.

Citing the pope's recent denunciation of the bolsheviks for their efforts to throttle religion, the acquittal of alleged forgers of soviet currency in Germany, attacks in the British parliament on the anti-religious policy of the soviet government, the charges against communists in connection with the disappearance of Gen. Koutiepoff, and Mexico's break with the soviet union "under instructions from Washington," Izvestia said that all such attempts "to interfere with the construction of socialism in the soviet union under the pretense of defending religion will be decisively repelled."

U. S. "Heart of Capitalism."

The newspaper said that a critical financial situation exists in the capitalistic world, affecting even the heart of capitalism, the United States, and declared that the outside world was apprehensive and jealous of the soviet's enormous industrial and agricultural progress.

"Don't the capitalists realize that now the laboring masses of the entire world, more than ever before, understand that simple—but to the bourgeoise killing—truth that the soviet union is the laboring man's fatherland and that laborers, by shooting at the soviet union, really shoot at themselves?"

Izvestia continued with the contention that the present hostile campaign against the soviet union was a real threat of war, and that the soviet government had every reason to believe that the imperialistic world would not hesitate to begin open warfare against the union when a favorable moment arrived.

"We have been absolutely correct in mobilizing the masses against this danger and in appealing to the revolutionary proletariat of the entire world to fight against it," concluded the paper.

Uses Questionnaire as Silencer.

The soviet press also attempted to silence the reports of religious persecution by the publication of replies to a questionnaire put to the authorities of the Orthodox church.

Russian newspaper men put the following question during an interview to Metropolitan Sergius, chief patriarch of the Russian orthodox church, and to members of the synod:

"Q.—Is it true that religion is persecuted in the U. S. S. R., and if so, in what form? A.—Religion in the U. S. S. R. has never been subjected to persecution before or now.

"Q.—Is it true that an atheist society is closing the churches, and how do believers look upon it? A.—Yes, some churches have been really closed in some cases on the decision of the churchgoers themselves.

"Q.—Is it true that clergymen and churchgoers have been subjected to repressions for their religious beliefs, arrested, exiled, etc.? A.—Repressions against believers and clergymen have been applied not for their religious beliefs, but for anti-government acts, just as against other citizens. It must be said that the church's misfortune is that in the past it identified itself too closely with the monarchist system, as is well known. Therefore church circles failed to appreciate in due time the entire significance of the social revolution and continued to behave as an open enemy of the soviet power.

Religious Propaganda.

"Q.—Is religious propaganda allowed in the U. S. S. R.? A.—Ministers of the church are not forbidden to perform religious ceremonies, nor to deliver sermons. Persons reaching the proper age are allowed to be taught religion.

"Q.—Are reports of brutalities toward individual church ministers, published in the foreign press, true? A.—These reports have nothing in common with the true facts. They are all inventions and slanders. Individual priests have been prosecuted not for religious services, but for various anti-government acts."

Atheists' Private Society.

As to the atheists' society, members of the synod said that "the atheists are an organized private society and their demand for closing churches is not considered obligatory by government bodies."

Metropolitan Sergius also attacked Pope Pius for his recent denunciation in an encyclical of an "anti-religious campaign" in Russia.

"It seems to us that the pope in this case follows the old traditions of the Catholic church, thus provoking his flock against our country and kindling the fire of war against the people of the soviet union.

The prelates said that "due to the vast economic changes in Russia, including industrialization of the country and the establishment of collective farms, the situation of the church has grown worse. But we do not lose hope that under a new economic structure the belief in God will remain and that the church of Christ will continue to exist."

A GENTLEMAN'S CONTRIBUTION TO DRY DISCUSSION

Senator Wagner Hopes for Rational Liberalism.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—"Discuss! Discuss! And continue to discuss!" is Senator Robert F. Wagner's answer to those who, since his recent anti-prohibition speech in the senate, confront him with the question, "Now, what's the next step?"

The junior senator from New York made his six thousand word speech a week ago last Thursday. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia university and foremost of the scholastic leaders of the anti-Volsteadians, promptly acclaimed it as "this new note of leadership and high principle."

The next day James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.] made his notable speech in the house on "The Way to End Dry Law Demagoguery."

Opinion in Washington is that these two utterances, the first by a Democrat who sat for seven years in the highest court of the state of New York, and the second by a Republican who was a great solicitor general of the United States, have done more to lift discussion of prohibition out of a puddle of blood and booze than any other speeches made in congress since the eighteenth amendment was adopted. They have put it on a high constitutional level.

A Problem of Government.

In "extending his remarks" today in the form of a talk to a representative of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, Senator Wagner said:

"Prohibition, with its attendant abuses, is not a liquor question any longer. It is a problem of government. We cannot correct the abuses by abuse and we cannot solve the problem by bending to the clamor of those who say, 'You're not trying to solve a complex social problem at all! You're trying to get whisky for somebody!'

"Solution of this problem will be found only in the formulation and fostering of a new liberalism, and the development of a new liberalism is a cause more momentous than a cause which can be expressed by a slogan so trivial as 'the workingman wants his beer.'"

Senator Wagner is inclined to look with a favorable eye on a national referendum on prohibition not because it would be either favorable or unfavorable to modification, but because it—and the preliminaries leading to it—would, as he puts it, "open another forum for discussion."

He added:

"Long before that discussion was finished the people would be talking of this problem of government in its constitutional aspects instead of in the terms of a vulgar booze problem.

"One thing is certain: The problem is not to be solved by bigots on the one hand nor consumers of bootleg liquor on the other. It will be solved by thoughtful, self-respecting men and women who recognize the evils of the old saloon system and refuse to go back to them, but who, because they also recognize the evils of the present system, are determined to get away from them. By such people will a new liberalism be formulated.

"Ten years of the noble experiment have created intense dissatisfaction with the eighteenth amendment.

"That is so much gain."

Self-Respect Must Be Regained.

"Far less than another ten year period of experiment and discussion ought to crystallize the fact that the people are dissatisfied with the situation and ought to prove that not in impossible prohibitions but in rational liberalism lies the remedy for present conditions.

"Those conditions must be faced and corrected if the self-respect of the American people is to be preserved—and the self-respect of the people is a fundamental of success in self-government.

"We know what we have on our hands now, and they are things that are incompatible with self-respect.

"We have got these bloodsheds and corruptions, and this intemperate drinking. We have got the fact that juries won't convict and that fact shows that the eighteenth amendment has not reached the public conscience. It provides drastic proof that no law is a law simply because you put it on the statute books."

No Hint of Demagogy.

It is wholly characteristic of Senator Wagner that, demoralizing and devastating as he thinks conditions are, he offers no way of approach to a cure for them except discussion and yet more discussion.

For a quarter of a century in the public life of the state of New York, he has been regarded as substantial and sane. He is popular, but he has never had recourse to demagogy or to political panaceas. Three years in Washington have not changed him. He is now 52 years old. Physically he is an epitome of quiet power—massive head, stocky figure, alert in movement, forcible voice and disarming smile. He is a vigorous speaker, but saves himself for occasions when he has something to say. His style is clear and not burdened with ornament. On a public question—as in his vote this week to confirm Mr. Hughes—he makes up his own mind despite the rather subtle blandishments of men who play an emphatically demagogic game.

Finds Timidity Amazing.

Despite the 25 years in public life, he confesses to amazement at the timidity of public men in grappling with the prohibition problem. One of the first remarks of Nicholas Murray Butler after reading the senator's speech on prohibition abuses, was that he hoped his colleagues who are known to hold similar views would now come forward with equally emphatic public expression of those views.

The remark made the senator smile, for, a day or two before he delivered his memorable speech, he said to men eminent in the nation's councils, "It is high time somebody said something on the evasions of vital constitutional difficulties and dangers which the report of the President's law enforcement commission betrays."

"O, I wouldn't," unanimously exclaimed the men eminent in the national councils, "there are too many dry."

People Are Responsive.

In commenting on that, Senator Wagner said, "You see, even discussion is considered inexpedient in certain quarters and that is why it seems to me that full, free, serious, searching discussion is the first step toward amelioration. And I believe that, notwithstanding the timidity of pragmatic fellows, the people are more ready to listen to and participate in serious discussion than ever before. Upon returning to New York the day after my speech of Feb. 6 I was impressed by the number of people who commented on that speech—men and women, some of them who I didn't know ever read speeches.

"The comment of one man led him to give me a homely but highly illustrative proof of his attitude toward the eighteenth amendment as the law of the land. 'I am carrying home this evening under my coat,' said he, 'something my wife wants for a little party she is giving. Of course, I got it unlawfully, but it doesn't in the least weigh on my conscience. But if it were a ten dollar bill that I had come by unlawfully it would be burning a hole in my coat—and burning its way through to my conscience.'"

"Now that illustrates precisely what I mean when I say that a law which does not touch the conscience of the citizen is not a law."

Hopes for Reasonable Definition.

"As to true remedies which will correct the abysmal confusion and the abuses which grow out of attempts to enforce such a law no thoughtful man can as yet speak with certainty. Can congress impose upon the states a referendum as to whether they want the eighteenth amendment repealed? That is a legal problem which I want to examine thoroughly. I was too many years on the bench to wish to give an offhand answer to my own question.

"And as to actual repeal, that is a pretty remote thing when you remember that thirteen states can prevent it.

"Perhaps the most practical solution of this huge social problem would be an amendment to the Volstead act containing a reasonable definition of alcoholic content that would permit beer and light wines, thus eliminating the bootlegger. That would give us a law in conformity with the public conscience and the other restrictive features of the act could then be enforced. We have had ten years of experiment with the original act. Now I am willing to experiment with such a modified act."

Flays Hoover Board's Report.

On the report of Hoover's law enforcement commission, the senator was scathing. "A few clerks," he said, "would have found out for me in a few days all the facts relative to congested courts, too few judges, and a little lost motion between the departments of treasury and justice. Those are not the real and scandalous abuses of prohibition, as everybody knows.

"That is why, by the terms of the resolution I have introduced in the senate, I want the investigative work of the commission redirected into important channels, to the end that real abuses shall be laid before the people and real remedies submitted for discussion by the people. What is needed is a report that will promote temperance and not a report which suggests methods for doing away with jury trials. There is something vicious in this report, not because the men who made it are vicious, but because the suggestion that if convictions can not be gotten in one way they can be gotten in another and extremely devious way is something absolutely new and extremely menacing in our criminal jurisprudence. The people are entitled to have the commission go beyond mere tinkering with enforcement machinery."

DIES IN ACCIDENT

CAPT. C. H. REYNOLDS.

Mount Clemens, Mich., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Capt. Clearton H. Reynolds, 42, commander of the 15th observation squadron, Selfridge field, died at 3 o'clock this morning from injuries suffered in an automobile crash Friday night near the entrance gate to Selfridge field. It is believed that the steering gear on the automobile broke and the car crashed into a concrete guard rail on a culvert. Mrs. Reynolds and Lieut. Bert P. Meyen are in St. Joseph's hospital with minor hurts.

MICHIGAN GOVERNOR DENIES RUM SERVED AS LIGGETT CHARGES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Assertions that liquor was served and improper dancing allowed at an official dinner given by Gov. Fred W. Green, Michigan, in honor of four new Wayne county Circuit judges, recently, brought a vigorous reply today from the Michigan executive and Judges Homer Ferguson, Lester S. Moll, Allan Campbell, and Maurice McMahon, the jurist guests.

In a letter to the house judiciary committee Gov. Green declared the charges, made at a recent hearing before the committee by Walter Liggett, magazine writer, were inspired by political enmity. He submitted statements by the judges denying in full the assertions of Liggett.

Expressing a willingness to testify before the committee, Gov. Green and the judges filed separate statements. The judges denied that liquor was drunk or that any disorder occurred. The dinner, Gov. Green said, was attended by 200 prominent Michigan citizens and the entertainment provided was entirely proper.

The statements of the four judges answered in detail the charges made by Liggett.

OMAHA SO WET ARMY OFFICERS HELP DRYS OUT

Provide Spy for Agents and Raids Follow.

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Alarmed at drinking by soldiers at Fort Omaha, army officials turned over information to the federal prohibition department which resulted in raids last night on several alleged speakeasies.

Gen. W. McD. Rowan, prohibition administrator, announced after the raids by six deputies and State Agent Leslie Hasson, that two of the raids were prompted by affidavits filed by an investigator for Fort Omaha officers.

Col. Lawrence Halstead, chief of staff at the fort, would neither affirm nor deny the reports, saying that "it might put city officials in a bad light."

Several times government heads of the seventh [illegible] area have sought aid from loc[illegible]d federal forces to stop drinking [illegible] soldiers, but this is said to be the first time they have assigned their own investigators.

Suspend 2 for Shooting Nurse.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Two Iowa federal prohibition agents were suspended on orders from Washington today for wounding Miss Nellie Church while attempting to halt the automobile in which she was riding.

The agents, Charles Hindley and Roy Moon, were suspended by Prohibition Commissioner Doran after federal authorities in Chicago had reported the incident.

A county grand jury will reconvene Monday to hear evidence in the shooting.

Seize 100,000 Gallons of Beer.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Federal dry agents tonight arrested 19 men and seized more than 100,000 gallons of beer in vats in a raid on the plant of the Power City Products company here.

Prohibition Administrator Edwin S. Ross, in charge of dry raiding activities in the western New York area, who led the raid, estimated the value of the products seized at more than $1,000,000.

Michael Blake, Martin Schnorrenberg, and Ernest Selber were declared by Ross to be the heads of the group operating the plant. All were given hearings before United States Commissioner Louis F. Hall.

Jury to Hear of Shooting.

Patchogue, L. I., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—District Attorney Alexander C. Blue of Suffolk county ordered a general investigation today of charges of indiscriminate firing upon local citizens by coast guardsmen in search of rum runners.

The prosecutor's action followed a new complaint of unjustified coast guard activity by a group of well known Suffolk county men and women who said that while on the way home from a Masonic dinner early this morning coast guardsmen had fired several volleys at them.

The latest shooting charge follows closely on complaints that the coast guard cutters Eagle and Nimiha at East Hampton shot when residents of the vicinity approached the water line where liquor from a stranded rum runner had been jettisoned.

Mob Threatens to Lynch Drys.

Orange, N. J., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—A mob of 500 persons threatened to lynch six prohibition agents who entered a speakeasy near the Edison laboratories here today.

The agents entered the speakeasy while a crowd clustered about the entrance. When they started to leave they found the mob had grown to about 500, some of whom shouted "Lynch them."

The prohibition men reached for their blackjacks and guns to intimidate the leaders but a section of the mob rushed them and the agents were forced to retreat to a nearby store and telephone for aid.

...DRY IS HECKLED AS HE ANSWERS BECK'S CHARGES

...Beedy Calls Curtailment of Liberty Progress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Another long and stormy fight between the wets and the drys monopolized the session today of the house of representatives.

Taking the floor for an hour in an effort to reply to the widely quoted address made a week ago by Representative James M. Beck [Rep., Pa.], wet leader, Representative Carroll L. Beedy [Rep., Me.], precipitated a battle. Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], answered Beedy and Representative W. H. Sproul [Rep., Kas.] marched forth with a final bone dry appeal.

All other business pending in the house was pushed aside while the members listened, frequently applauding or laughing with the participants. Several times the speakers were interrupted by sharp cross examination from the floor.

La Guardia Hurls Challenge.

The debate became hottest when La Guardia challenged any dry in the house to explain why the drys, with an overwhelming majority in congress, refused to provide enough money to "really attempt prohibition enforcement."

This brought Beedy to his feet. "If I had my way about it," he asserted, "I'd cut off half the enforcement officers we have now and pay the remainder double salaries to prevent dishonesty."

"Then the gentleman admits that prohibition agents are wide open to corruption?" La Guardia demanded.

"Some, but not many," Beedy replied.

"All right," the New York wet continued, "will you point out to me any other government service in which employes are so contaminated. And since when did the drys start measuring a man's honesty by his pay check?"

The treasury department, La Guardia contended, has been contaminated wherever it has come in contact with the "curse of prohibition," and the department of justice will be in the same condition when the dry forces are transferred to that agency.

Compare Bootleggers and Thieves.

Beedy, in his address urging more drastic enforcement, compared bootlegging to grand larceny — a point which La Guardia seized upon.

"You don't find thieves sitting at the same banquet tables with public officials, do you?" he asked. "One citizen doesn't call up another and say: 'I'm having a party. Can you lend me a couple of stolen chickens this evening?' No, the comparison between dry law violations and other crimes is an outworn fallacy.

"Bootleggers are the creatures of prohibition. They are merely filling a universal demand for liquor by the best lawabiding citizens of the land. The people of America want liquor and they are going to get liquor, and everybodys knows that the 18th amendment stops neither the manufacture, sale, transportation or consumption of liquor.

"The gentleman from Maine has waxed eloquent upon the firm determination of the American people to stand back of this great noble experiment. Let us turn to the gentleman's home town of Portland, Me. I quote from Senator Arthur Gould, of that state, who says conditions never were so bad in Maine as today. According to the report of the Portland police commissioner, there were 457 more arrests for intoxication in 1929 than in 1928—13 arrests for every 1,000 population.

"Apply that ratio to New York City and we would have 60,000 drunks a year. We have only 13,000. That, I suppose, is an indication of the firm determination of the people of Maine to back prohibition."

A Carefully Prepared Retort.

Representative Beedy is known to have spent several days in the preparation of his speech after he having been chosen tacitly by the dry leadership of the house to refute the logic of Representative Beck, whose address struck the dry cause a harder blow than any delivered at this session. From the standpoint of listeners, however, the Beedy answer fell short. While the chamber was packed to hear Beck, it was not one-third filled for Beedy, despite a quorum roll call just before he took the floor.

Beedy first took the Pennsylvania representative to task for his reference to the scripture. Beedy warned that the excessive use of wine led to the downfall of the Babylonian empire. He then reviewed the use of intoxicants through the days of Greek and Roman history down to the present.

Beedy took direct issue with Beck's proposal that congress ignore the 18th amendment, which the Pennsylvanian contended is not mandatory but merely a delegation of powers. Any such move, Beedy maintained, would be "a backward step" and a "compromise."

"The gentleman from Pennsylvania made apt references to the downfall of the great Whig party in America," he continued. "It was a party of compromise, yet it is the ruinous course of compromise which the gentleman urges upon the country in advocating the repeal of the eighteenth amendment and the sale of light wines and beer. Such a course would prove no less destructive in dealing with the problem now confronting the nation than resulted in the compromise of the fifties on the great moral issue then before the nation."

Talks of Civic Virtue.

Beedy insisted that he did not conceive it to be "the essential function of government to act as a guardian of the morals of its people," but immediately afterward added: "I believe it is the duty of our government, through its laws, to aim for the best standards of civic virtue."

Replying to Beck's argument that prohibition has destroyed the principle of personal liberty, Beedy said:

"Every advance in the perfection of a representative system of government has involved a curtailment of the liberties of the individual. No great national policy which has ultimately strengthened our industrial and political fabric has been possible without a limitation on individual rights."

Beedy declared that he questioned the right of wets in congress to continually assail the prohibition laws as unenforced and unenforceable.

Is Such Criticism Patriotic?

"You sit in the federal congress, sworn under oath to support and defend the constitution of the United States against all enemies, foreign and domestic," he told the wet members. "I am unable to construe much of the talk made in this forum, maligning our coast guard, denouncing law enforcement officers, iterating and reiterating the folly and impossibility of all attempts to enforce prohibition, as conduct in keeping with a sacred oath to defend the constitution against its domestic enemies."

Representative Sproul argued in a similar vein, contending that the masses of the people were convinced that prohibition is a success, as evidenced by dry majorities in legislative bodies. Sproul quoted liberally from the scriptures, which almost invariably are invoked by the drys to sustain their cause in house speeches.

Both the wets and drys went forward today with their plans of attack when the house judiciary committee resumes its public hearings on prohibition next Wednesday. The schedule calls for two more days of wet testimony followed by two days for the drys.

Dr. E. C. Dinwiddy of the National Conference of Organizations Supporting the Eighteenth Amendment met with unofficial dry leaders to discuss the best ways of refuting the charges of the anti-prohibition witnesses that prohibition has resulted in disaster.

The list of dry spokesmen has not yet been agreed upon but it is expected to include several eminent prohibition advocates. Henry Ford has been suggested.

TRY NEW TEST CASE UNDER VOLSTEAD ACT TO PUNISH RUM BUYER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—With the announced intention of starting a test case to determine whether a liquor buyer is guilty of violating the Volsted act, John Wayland of Clarendon, Va., was arraigned in a Washington police court today, charged with purchase of intoxicating beverage. He entered a plea of not guilty.

The prosecution marks the second effort here within a week by Assistant United States Attorney David A. Hart to push to a final ruling in the Supreme court a liquor purchase case. Two days ago a purchase charge was placed against John Patrick Carley, but was dropped for lack of witnesses.

Wayland, it is charged, bought a gallon of corn liquor from a colored woman while two policeman looked on. According to Hart, Wayland violated section 6 of the Volstead act. During the entire life of the prohibition era the Supreme court has never ruled directly on the interpretation of the word "purchase." Senator Sheppard [Dem., Tex.] has pending a bill to amend the Volstead act to make the purchaser guilty, but has refrained from pushing it in the hope that a test case would determine the necessity for it.

DOCTOR, LAWYER SAY PROHIBITION BREEDS WARFARE

Human Body Is a Still, Scientist Declares.

BY TOM PETTEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Leaders of two professions—law and medicine—condemned prohibition as a "civil-war breeder" and attacked its enforcement methods as "intolerable" here today before four hundred lawyers and physicians from all sections of the east.

Speaking under the auspices of the Voluntary Committee of Lawyers, a national organization seeking modification of the Volstead act, Dr. Samuel W. Lambert, dean of this city's physicians and surgeons, declared that an entire nation is engaged in a sniping civil war over a product that nature herself finds necessary to life.

Dr. Lambert revealed for the first time that medical science has discovered the body to be a self-operating still, manufacturing and storing up alcohol vitally essential to the functioning of its organs. He expressed doubt that "even the Volstead act could prohibit nature from functioning."

Practice of Law Demoralized.

Prof. Francis H. Bohlen of the University of Pennsylvania said the effect of prohibition upon law and jurisprudence was even more disastrous than upon medicine. He found it demoralizing the practice of law.

The luncheon today was to formulate further plans for carrying out the purposes of the Lawyers' Committee, which was incorporated more than a year ago by such barristers as Joseph H. Choate Jr., Harrison Tweed, George W. Martin, and Kenneth M. Spence. The committee has brought the attention of the lawyers to focus on "the sumptuary legislation of the 18th amendment," and already the bar associations of Philadelphia, New York, Boston, San Francisco, and Trenton have gone on record as demanding its repeal or modification.

Geography of Problem Fortunate.

"It looks to me, as a surgeon and physician," said Dr. Lambert, who for many years has been dean of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, "as if this country is now in a civil war, and it is fortunate that the opposing sides are not grouped on a geographical basis. If it were so, this actual state of affairs would be palpable to all and might easily develop into a more serious condition than the present one of sniping skirmishes.

"As Americans we should try to bring this intolerable mess of politics into such a prominent position that there shall be two principal parties which shall be sharply divided on the issue of prohibition and that this most important difference of opinion may be fought out and decided at the polls.

"If it be necessary to start a new 'liberal party' as suggested by Samuel Harden Church to secure this end it cannot be done too quickly. In the meantime I believe that the cause of temperance would be advanced if all the organizations working against present day prohibition can be united on some definite plan."

Dr. Lambert spoke in favor of nullification as the best method of fighting prohibition and insisted that congress, on its past record, should not balk at nullification.

"I am certain," continued Dr. Lambert, "that nothing will be gained until a large majority of congress is made to feel that the occupant of any seat in that body is insecure if he votes dry."

Dr. Lambert was bitter against a "law which undertook to curb medical science" and declared alcohol to be a "food which is more quickly available than any other and in febrile diseases it can be used in greater quantities to advantage."

Recounts Discoveries.

"It was found by Anstie some 60 years ago and by Benedict in 1925," said the physician, "that a normal man could oxidize in 24 hours over two ounces of pure alcohol or four to five ounces of 50 per cent distilled liquors; and Stockard has shown that the progeny of habitually drunken guinea pigs after an initial degeneration are improved in strength and nutrition in the later generations."

In defending alcohol as a food and as medicine, Dr. Lambert referred to tests which have been conducted in the medical examiners' laboratories in New York city.

Brain Tests Conclusive.

"This test," reported Dr. Lambert, "consists of an accurate estimation by microscopic chemistry of the amount of lacohol found in the brain after death.

"I am permitted to report a hitherto unreported fact which has followed these scientific studies. It is found that the brains of all persons, even of those who have died of natural causes and who have taken into their bodies before death no alcohol whatsoever will give the same positive but weaker reaction due to the presence of alcohol as is found in the brains of the intoxicated.

"It is a fair conclusion that alcohol is a product of the normal processes of digestion and nutrition and that every human being and probably most animals are oxidizing alcohol as a constant source of energy to their tissues. This study is far from complete and many questions will arise before it is finally proved a universal fact beyond all doubt.

"I may raise one such question here, is it logical to expect that the prohibition of the addition of a normal product of digestion to the diet can be successfully enforced by the law?"

Prof. Bohlen, who spoke from the lawyer's viewpoint, declared the entire prohibition question has become so ridiculous that under the dry law the old corner saloon has been replaced "by so many illegitimate children" that it was time for the lawyers to band together and "resent the major destruction of individual rights."

Modification Required.

"We know the extent of corruption which has followed the effort," said Prof. Bohlen, "to enforce this child of the marriage of fanaticism with a business that is more concerned with mass production than the morality and decency of the lives of the children of those who conduct it. Knowing this we must have some modification of prohibition that will regulate the sale of alcohol and promote temperance by permitting drinking in moderation."

Seated at the speakers' table today which was presided over by Austin G. Fox, were Eustace Seligman, Fabian Franklin, Mrs. Charles Hall Sabin, leader of the women's fight on prohibition; Harrison Tweed, Joseph H. Choate Jr., Frederick R. Coudert, George Gordon Battle, Julian Codman, leader of the forces in Massachusetts seeking repeal of the enforcement act in that state, Allan McCulloch, and Clifton P. Williamson.

Foot Troubles Cause Bad Health

They affect the body in many different ways. The feet swell, burn, ache; there are pains under heels, ball of foot becomes sore and feels as if you are walking on marbles; corns, calluses, ingrown nails and bunions; excessive perspiration, with offensive odor, overdeveloped ankles and legs, varicose veins; legs cramp, knees stiffen; pains in hips, small of back, shoulders and neck, poor circulation, with a weak and nervous feeling. Most people think they have rheumatism, neuritis, arthritis, or kidney trouble when their troubles are all caused from their feet.

Do not be discouraged. Regardless of what your condition may be or what you have tried, or whom you have consulted, Dr. Pinkston guarantees to relieve all foot troubles and cure nine-tenths of them regardless of the nature or condition of the ailment.

American Home Foods Week

Bringing Quality Foods to Your Table

This is American Home Foods Week in all National Tea Co. and Piggly Wiggly stores. American Home Foods have long been known to housewives of the Middle West for their wholesome, dependable quality. This week we offer introductory values on popular American Home Foods. Visit your nearest store and take advantage of this week's sale.

American Home Products Are Preferred

Consumer survey proves that housewives prefer American Home Foods more often than any other kind.

In the communities where American Home Foods do not rank high there are very few National Tea Co. or Piggly Wiggly stores, hence the housewives in these communities have not had an opportunity of trying American Home Foods.

BRITISH SMILE AS WHEAT PRICE STAYS ON SKIDS

Argentina Again Saves the Situation.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—It is not without a slight grin of satisfaction that British wheat men regard the situation which caused them so much worry early in the year, when Canadian and American pools began to prepare to take advantage of the high prices which the expected wheat shortage would cause. But now there is no shortage and prices have dropped considerably since December with buyers expecting further slumps, making hand to mouth purchases.

England's present supply of wheat is sufficient to take care of the country's needs for two and a half months, and it looks as if there will be a plentiful supply offered at reasonable prices for some time after that.

Argentina Upsets Plan.

Early fears of bad crops in both North America and Argentina were somewhat the same as in previous years. At that time wheat pools were formed in America with the idea of profiting from the shortage, but Argentina came through with a heavy crop and spoiled plans of the sellers. That left a sufficient amount of Canadian wheat on hand and when crop prospects again looked gloomy this year, pools again began forming, with the hope of "selling off" both last year's and this year's wheat at high prices. Argentina again upset the scheme by turning out a better crop than was expected, although by no means a bumper harvest.

Even with the Argentine supply better than was expected, English buyers felt none too secure, but the Wall street crash hit some wheat holders and made the sellers more anxious to sell than the buyers, who were a little "standoffish" because money was rather short over here, to buy.

England Wins More Grain.

Just to better England's situation, only Germany and Italy, of all the European countries on the market for wheat, are leaving England a large percentage of the Argentine crop. This combination of circumstances prevented North American pools from holding up the English buyers.

As for the talk of dumping German wheat into Great Britain at low prices, that is chiefly political. It arises chiefly because ports, at which German grain is discharged, happen to be situated right in the center of the English wheat growing territory in eastern England. While English wheat supplies only a quarter of its demand, Germany's shipments are too small to cause a really serious drop in prices. German laws require a certain percentage of native wheat be used with foreign wheat, necessarily restricting German exports.

American Wheat More Popular.

In any case, there is little competition between German or native wheat and the North and South American variety. European wheat is a different type with a heavy water content used generally for making crackers, etc., while the dryer type of grain, such as Americas, is preferred by bakers for bread, since it is capable of absorbing more water.

Hence, while in a pinch, European wheat may replace American wheat, if the price of the latter soars too high, the American brand is generally preferred.

The English wheat market is distinctly bearish. Buyers are unworried about the prospect of future rises in prices and are in no hurry of acquiring large supplies, only placing orders to fill immediate needs.

An interesting point is that Europe's wheat consumers are declining slightly, which is considered to indicate increasing usage of meats and other higher priced foods, replacing bread to a certain extent.

Slight Hope Held Out for Ambassador Moore

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Slight hope was held today for the recovery of Alexander P. Moore, American ambassador to Poland, who is critically ill here from a throat and lung infection.

Dr. P. G. White, attending physician, said the patient had a temperature of 104 degrees.

The physician said Ambassador Moore was in a semi-delirious condition following a distinct decline in his condition last night.

CANADA GAMBLE IN WHEAT MAY BE DISASTROUS

Want Government to Help Out Pools.

BY GEORGE SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Feb. 15.—Canada's big gamble in anticipation of a world wheat shortage already has involved the governments of the three prairie provinces — Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta—in a virtual commitment of provincial resources and approaches are now being made from the Canadian west to the dominion government for financial backing.

It has been represented to the dominion authorities at Ottawa that a national calamity faces Canada should there be a wheat smash and the government is being urged to take over all the 120,000,000 bushels of stored wheat to meet a national emergency. The representations already made are to be followed up when Thomas A. Crerar, Canada's new minister of railways and until four weeks ago president of the United Grain company, returns to Ottawa from the west.

Biggest Gamble in History.

The wheat pool principals who precipitated the western wheat pool membership, comprising 52 per cent of all Canadian growers, into this wheat gamble—possibly the biggest in the world's history—were guided in their action by the spring reports of their wheat agents situated in every part of the world.

Wheat prices recently have steadily declined after showing earlier indications of reaching a high peak. The Canadian wheat situation has become almost as chaotic, and certainly the wheat pool operators are alarmed.

The three prairie province governments, in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, where everything depends upon the successful growing and marketing of the wheat crop, have agreed to come to the rescue of the wheat pools and agreed to be security to the banks for advances made to the pools.

But the protection being afforded the wheat pools is not altogether sufficient to prevent the national calamity which in some quarters is feared.

The wheat pools have not yet closed out their 1928 business, and there is said to be little prospect of an immediate settlement.

Pool Schemes Fail.

So far, it is said here, the efforts of the Canadian wheat pools to dictate world wheat prices has met with decided failure. Europe has not fallen over herself trying to buy up Canadian wheat at high prices, and apparently is not suffering from any wheat or flour shortage or even high prices. The British government has simply transferred its buying activities from Canada to the Argentine, Australia, Russia and other wheat growing countries.

ITALY ERASES NOBILE'S NAME AS ARCTIC HERO

Report Scores Conduct Towards Followers.

BY ROBERT SAGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Feb. 15.—The last vestiges of glory were shorn from Gen. Umberto Nobile, commander of the disastrous polar flight made in 1928 by the dirigible Italia, with publication by the Italian ministry of marine today of a complete record of the official investigation of the expedition. This was carried out a year ago and its exact conclusions have hitherto been a dark secret.

The published documents are a direct retort to a huge volume entitled "Italy at the North Pole" which Gen. Nobile issued a few weeks ago and which has been the Italian best seller ever since. In his book Gen. Nobile not only sought to justify all his actions, but presented himself as the gallant hero of the party's harrowing 42 days in the arctic ice field after the wreck of the airship.

"Self-Centered and Ungrateful."

Without mincing words the investigating commission's report takes the wind completely out of the former commander's sails, branding him as "presumptuous, self-centered, and ungrateful" towards Capt. Filippo Zappi and Capt. Alberto Mariano.

Concerning Gen. Nobile's unheroic action in clambering into Capt. Lundborg's rescue plane and leaving the crew behind the report states:

"There was no justification for this act, which was contrary to all traditions and laws of military honor. It can only be explained by his low physical and moral condition at the moment."

According to the evidence, Natale Ceconi, who was in intense paid, did not insist that Gen. Nobile be taken first, but merely said, "Do as you please, you are the commander" — whereupon Gen. Nobile immediately climbed into the plane.

Capt. Mariano and Capt. Zappi on the other hand are given a clean slate by the investigating commission, which states that their conduct "affords no grounds for censure and only leaves room for praise."

Concerning the ugly stories of cannibalism which were rumored after the disappearance of Dr. Finn Malmgren the commission states, "We feel certain if Capt. Mariano and Capt. Zappi had been driven by necessity to tragic excess they would have had the moral strength to confess."

These stories are attributed to Capt. Mariano's request to Capt. Zappi that in case he died Capt. Zappi should drink his blood in order to keep alive.

HARBOR MASTER

LIEUT. ROBERT A. HAYNIE.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Appointment of Lieut. Robert A. Haynie, world war veteran and member of the Chicago Yacht club, as harbormaster in the Lincoln Park district was announced yesterday by Warren Wright, president of the Lincoln park board. Lieut. Haynie has declined to accept salary for his services and has signified he will devote his entire attention to supervising Belmont harbor, mooring grounds of thousands of yachts and speed boats. The new harbormaster was sponsored by Commissioner Sheldon Clark, a director of the Chicago Yacht club. He will replace a paid harbormaster and assistant at a monthly payroll saving of $390.

ATTORNEY FREED, BUT SHERIFF NOW FACES JAIL TERM

The Appellate court yesterday granted a writ of supersedeas releasing Attorney Samuel J. Andalman from the county jail where he had served 46 hours of a 120 hour sentence for contempt of court, imposed Tuesday by Superior Judge Michael L. McKinley. The writ is returnable to the April term of the court.

The writ was obtained by Attorney Cameron Latter, representing Andalman.

Meanwhile Sheriff Traeger, Warden Moneypenny, and Edwin Nelson, aid to the sheriff, appeared before Judge John J. Sullivan in the Criminal court on a petition to show cause why they should not be held in contempt of court for refusing to obey a writ of habeas corpus issued by the judge for Andalman's release. The judge allowed their attorney, Joseph Graber, until Feb. 21 to file an answer to the petition, brought by Attorney Latter.

Attorney Andalman was sentenced for contempt when he filed an intervening petition in the case of a man who had been released from the county jail on a writ of habeas corpus after Judge McKinley had denied leave to file the intervening petition. Andalman fought for freedom before four judges and won a writ of habeas corpus from Judge Sullivan.

Sheriff Traeger, who faced a contempt of court sentence if he followed either court order, chose to disobey the writ and put Andalman in jail.

ANGLER HOOVER CAPITAL 'BOUND FROM FLORIDA

Long Key, Fla., Feb. 15.—President and Mrs. Hoover and their party left here tonight for Washington after a six day angling expedition near here. For a man of Mr. Hoover's fishing prowess it was not the most successful of expeditions, but the chief executive will return to the White House rested and with a coat of tan to show for his first vacation as President.

The Hoover party's six special coaches were coupled to the Florida East Coast railway's Havana special and are due in Washington early Monday morning.

The President spent half of his last day here in a vain attempt to regain the fishing honors in the party. He fished for several hours for sailfish, hoping to land one above 66 pounds, the record made by Mrs. Harlan F. Stone, wife of Associate Justice Stone. Her fish was the largest caught off Long Key this year. The Long Key Fishing club is to present her with a gold button. The President got only one strike, and the fish got away.

SAUSAGE THIEF FINED.

Eric Hilgert, 1930 Hudson avenue, a frankfurter packer employed by Oscar Mayer & Co., packers, 1241 Sedgwick street, was fined $1 by Judge Alfred O. Erickson in the Chicago avenue court on a charge of stealing a string of sausages from the packing plant.

PRIZE WINNERS IN TRIBUNE'S WANT AD CONTEST ANNOUNCED

First winners in THE TRIBUNE'S hidden want ad game were announced yesterday. Miss Vivian F. Busby, 2646 Morse avenue, was awarded first prize of $50 for the neatest and most complete compilation of the hidden clews. Eight other prizes of $5 each and ten of $1 were also given and are announced in today's contest advertisement elsewhere in THE TRIBUNE.

The contest editor reports an increasing interest in the game for arm chair detectives, as evidenced by letters of approval and many replies. Several women have chosen the contest as entertainment for their friends and are giving want ad hunt parties. Answers to this week's contest must be mailed to the contest editor not later than 6 p. m. Thursday.

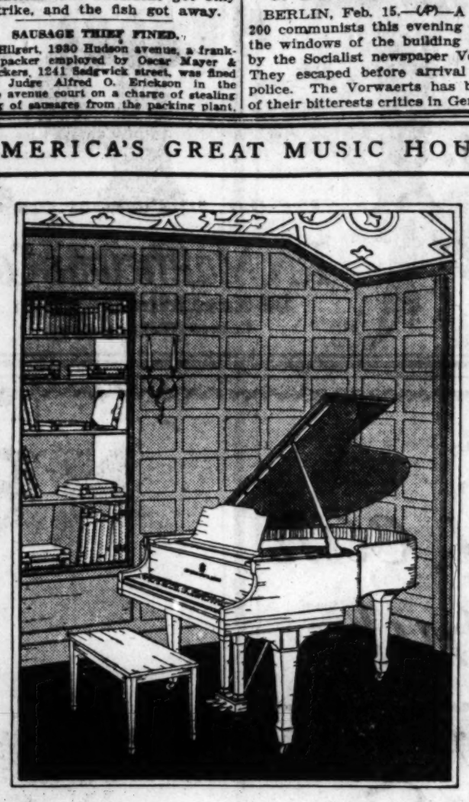
AMERICA'S GREAT MUSIC HOUSE



Two New Style Trends Suggest STEINWAY

NOT since the days before the war has it been so fashionable to stay at home—to entertain at home—to live at home. Not since the same period has the old-fashioned habit of thrift been so popular.

These two new style trends suggest Steinway, the instrument whose warmth and breadth of tone has never been equalled, the most economical piano in the world by the rule of cost per year.

You may have heard "The Steinway is a fine piano—if you can afford a Steinway." It is our privilege today to tell you that you can possess a Steinway at almost the cost of an inferior piano—with twice the pride, twice the pleasure and twice the permanence of your investment.

We have a new booklet called "Four Easy Roads to Steinway Ownership." The facts it contains are surprising. For the first time you will learn how easy you can own a Steinway, why hundreds of Chicago families of every income have a Steinway in their homes. Send for it today. Then listen to the Steinway at any of the six convenient Lyon & Healy stores whose addresses are given below.

A New Steinway Upright Piano can be bought for $875

GRANDS $1525 and up

10% DOWN . . . BALANCE IN TWO YEARS

Any Steinway piano may be purchased with a cash deposit of 10% and the balance will be extended over a period of two years. Used pianos accepted in partial exchange.

GERMANY TRIES TO CLIMB FROM FINANCIAL MIRE

Cabinet Sees Way Out in Young Plan.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—The German cabinet is working day and night on a new budget to insure smooth acceptance of the Young plan, which it hopes will give Europe a period of quiet, in which business and industry can be given a new impetus and so help Germany pay her reparations obligations to the allies.

The problem confronting the German government is infinitely more than a question of making a budget, clipping a figure here and there. Germany must keep its steadily increasing army of jobless fed, besides keeping its mind on reparations and at the same time reducing all unproductive expenditures.

2,500,000 Jobless Hungry.

To keep more than 2,500,000 jobless from starvation and from joining the ranks of the communist "riot squads," Germany has been paying out doles to the jobless until it is threatened with bankruptcy. The Socialists insist that the government must continue to pay the doles. Financial experts assert the government cannot continue its generous policy, but must find ways and means of financing the jobless without endangering the budget.

That is the crux of the problem, which the German government is discussing with feverish activity. It must find a solution to the problem speedily because, unless it is solved by the end of next week, German Catholic Centrists—members of the government coalition—will refuse to ratify the Young plan.

Finance Minister Paul Moldenhauer, after cutting out almost all the demands of the German navy and clipping the budget right and left, still finds himself short slightly more than 117,000,000, because of jobless insurance.

Social Welfare Laws.

The German republic has worked out a complicated set of social welfare laws, including illness insurance, old age insurance and jobless insurance. Workers and employers pay the bulk of this insurance, which, the employers complain, greatly increases the cost of labor in Germany.

But the Socialists, the strongest party in Germany, insist that these welfare laws be enforced even if a big portion of the money collected goes into red tape expenditures for administration funds.

The jobless insurance is paid by the workers and employers at the rate of three per cent of their annual wages. The worker pays one per cent, after the government gave what is supposed was a sufficient start, but the number of jobless went far beyond the expectations of organizers right after it began functioning.

Last year a huge dole deficit was paid by the government. This year the deficit is even larger, despite a mild winter. The present deficit totals more than $83,000,000.

CHICAGO AVIATION LEADERS ATTEND ST. LOUIS SHOW

Fly in Parade That Opens Exposition.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The second annual international aircraft exposition, sponsored by the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce and displaying eighty-seven planes with a value estimated at $2,500,000, was opened here today as a fleet of twenty airplanes droned over the city. Included in the air parade were eight planes carrying more than fifty Chicago aviation enthusiasts who flew here this morning to attend the exposition opening.

The Chicago delegation came here in two groups, the first traveling in five Bellanca planes from Pal-Waukee airport and landing at Lambert-St. Louis field before noon. Heading the group of 26 aviation officials was Capt. Maxwell Corpening, secretary of the Chicago Air Race corporation, official host of the party. Among those who accompanied him were Walter W. Wright, who directs the affairs of the Chicago municipal airport; David A. Carey, commander of the aviation post of the American Legion; Harold Ambler, airport engineer, and Morrow Krum of Pal-Waukee field.

Show Fifty New Models.

The second group of Chicago aviation men flew here in three planes of the Universal lines.

Among the eighty-seven airplanes on display are fifty new models that are being shown for the first time. More than a score are complete new designs, while most of the others are refinements of designs already in production. Practically all of them are developments of the last three years.

"We will have all the planes exhibited here and many others that will be developed in the next six months at the air show, which will be held at Chicago in conjunction with the national air races next fall," Capt. Corpening said. "We are here to see what aviation has developed in 1929 and to get a notion of what we may expect in 1930 at the Chicago show."

Announce Price Cuts.

The outstanding development of the first day of the show was the announcement of steps by the Stinson Aircraft corporation and the Command-Aire corporation to bring the price of planes down to the level of automobiles. The Stinson 210 horse power cabin monoplane, previously selling for $10,500 to $12,500, was reduced to $5,775, while the Command-Aire announced a reduction of nearly $3,000 in the price of its machines. The new Stinson plane introduces many new developments, including a self-starter, dual wheel control, adjustable steel propeller, wheel and parking brakes, hydraulic shock absorbers, and a heated, soundproof cabin.

Among the interesting exhibits which were viewed by 7,000 Boy Scouts at the opening session today was that of the Curtiss-Wright corporation showing an amphibian plane floating in a specially constructed pool in the arena.

WANT CUSTOMS PORT

Declaring that the present method of customs inspection of airplanes bearing merchandise and passengers between Chicago and Canadian points is obstructing the growth of air commerce here, Winsor Williams, manager of the American Air Transport association, has sent a letter to Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of the United States treasury, urging that the Chicago Municipal airport be made an international airport of entry for aircraft. Mr. Lowman is chairman of the interdepartmental committee on airports of entry.

Mr. Williams pointed out that ships flying here from across the border are often delayed for hours because of the complicated arrangements required for landing at a city not designated as an airport of entry.

"In order to land here a pilot preparing to leave Canada must wire for special permission and await approval of his request," he explained. "After landing in Chicago the pilot must wait until a customs official is sent to the airport and must pay a special fee. Unless he complies with these arrangements he is subject to a $500 fine and his plane may be seized.

"As a result planes which would ordinarily make a nonstop trip between here and Canada are stopping at designated ports of entry in Detroit, St. Paul, and points in North Dakota. Planes leaving Chicago cannot clear from here without considerable red tape and consequently have to stop at the border cities.

"Air traffic between here and Canada is constantly increasing and it is certain that it would have an even larger growth if Chicago were made an international airport. Chicago is only 250 miles from the border, or a little more than two hours by plane. That distance can be covered in the time now wasted by the involved customs rules. While making Chicago an airport of entry would necessitate headquarters for a full shift of customs inspectors the cost would be negligible."

Mr. Williams' organization is an association of air mail and passenger line operators.

The cities at present designated as airports of entry are: Newport, Vt.; Albany and Buffalo, N. Y.; Detroit and Grosse Isle, Mich.; St. Paul, Minn.; Seattle and Port Angeles, Wash.; Los Angeles, Cal. [two fields]; San Diego, Cal.; Nogales, Douglas and Ajo, Ariz.; El Paso and Brownsville, Tex.; Miami and Palm Beach, Fla.; Pembina and Portal, N. D.; Newark, N. J.; and Tulsa, Okla.

Police Guard Home After Phone Call Warns of Bomb

The Shakespeare avenue police yesterday were guarding the home of Albert F. Ehrhardt, 2947 North Sacramento avenue, after an anonymous telephone call to his daughter, Mrs. Myrtle H. Eldrich, on Friday night, warned her that the house would be bombed. Ehrhardt, an electrician, told the police he knew no motive for the threatened attack on his home.

$200,000 L. W. Hill Home Is Destroyed by Flames

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—[AP]—The country home of Louis W. Hill, a director of the Great Northern railway, was destroyed by fire today. The home, located on Mr. Hill's North Oaks farm near St. Paul, was built several months ago at a cost of $200,000. The building contained many imported furnishings and antiques.

The fire was discovered by a caretaker in charge of the place during Mr. Hill's absence on a tour of the west.

3 MORE AUTO DEATHS BRING 1930 TOLL TO 96

Elvira Lopez, 17 years old, 10818 Hoxie avenue, was fatally injured last night when she was struck by a motor truck as she was crossing Torrence avenue at 108th street. She died a few minutes after being taken to the South Chicago hospital. The East Side police are holding Dan Yurkovich, 10800 Hoxie avenue, the driver.

This death and two others yesterday raised the Cook county motor toll for 1930 to 96. The other victims:

John Sheehan, 83 years old, resident of the British Old People's home at Brookfield. Died in the Berwyn hospital of injuries received last Sunday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Sidney Heard of Downers Grove, while he was walking on 31st street west of the Des Plaines river in Riverside.

William Smith, 56 years old, 829 West 14th street. Died in the county hospital of injuries incurred on Friday when he was struck by a hit and run taxicab at Madison and Aberdeen streets. The police are seeking the driver.

William T. Garry, 5723 Waveland avenue, and Joseph Szpajer, 2730 North Lawndale avenue, policemen of the Summerdale station, were bruised when Garry's car collided with a street car at Clark street and Southport avenue.

Newark-to-Buenos Aires Flyers Reach Cristobal

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Lieutenants Will W. White and Clement McMullen, on a speed flight from Newark, N. FOR AN AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY.

The difficulty of formulating a consistent and persistent foreign policy in the changeful course of democratic politics has been apparent in our history. We may congratulate ourselves that on the whole our weakness in this respect has been less costly than might have been feared. The vital urge of the American people has driven us along lines which the prevision of statesmanship might have dictated and in crises we have largely made up in determination and daring what we lacked in foresight and preparedness.

So far as we have had a formulated policy in foreign affairs it has been confined to independence from permanent foreign entanglements, the Monroe Doctrine, and the lesser declaration regarding the open door and territorial integrity of China. Aside from these definite pronouncements our course of conduct in foreign relations has been controlled not by theories or formulas but by the instincts of self-preservation and of vigorous expansion. Our action has been rather impromptu, forced upon us tardily by circumstances, but the national character which was its source has given it an appearance of deliberate plan in the eyes of other nations.

In recent years, however, the conduct of our foreign affairs has not been invigorated by the strong sense of national interest which directed it through the more critical days of our development. It has therefore suffered from the vagaries of politics, of superficial moods and sentimental urges, of doctrinaires in office and of clamorous minorities. A general preoccupation with domestic affairs has made this possible, while the rapidly increasing importance of our problems in foreign relations has not been realized by the people. Thus we found ourselves involved in the consequences of the Mexican chaos without a policy or a principle having any sanction in the nation's justified self-interest. Our action was as inept and injurious to ourselves and the Mexican people as it was high sounding and pretentious. Inevitably its inconsistencies aroused not only resentment in Mexico but a conviction throughout Latin America of insincerity and ulterior motive. From this fiasco we were carried into the vortex of the European disaster, without a policy, without understanding of the forces at work, without perception of the real issues or their bearing upon our own interests. In this state we were, of course, at the mercy of events from day to day, passed from a neutrality which was not neutral to a belligerency which was decisive for our allies but which, from lack of understanding or of policy, brought us nothing in the victory our intervention had brought about. In the same state we entered the fierce conflict for the spoils of war, wearing the rose glasses of a naïve idealism while the stakes were distributed among our associates and beneficiaries.

In the same state we are adrift today. We say adrift because the course followed by our government, our successive governments, is not in accordance with the national instinct and expressed will. When Woodrow Wilson proposed to reverse the national policy against permanent entanglements in European politics he was promptly repudiated by the people. The subsequent drift in that direction, in one plausible form or another, is the production of the same influences which have confused and compromised our foreign relations since 1916. It does not represent a policy, for it not only lacks the sanction of expressed national approval but runs counter to such expression as the people have had opportunity to give. It needs urgently the check of the political sense of the nation, a sense which in the past has been shared and effectuated by our greatest statesmen. It points emphatically to our need for an American policy based on the American people's perception of their vital interests, upon their true instinct of self-preservation and of self-realization.

Such a policy would not be a shortsightedly selfish policy. On the contrary, it would be such a policy as the wisest of American statesmen proposed for the republic when he said: "Observe good faith and justice toward all nations. Cultivate peace and harmony with all. . . . The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations is, in extending our commercial relations, to have with them as little political connection as possible. Europe has a set of primary interests which to us have none or a very remote relation. Hence she must be engaged in frequent controversies, the causes of which are essentially foreign to our concerns. Hence, therefore, it must be unwise in us to implicate ourselves by artificial ties in the ordinary vicissitudes of her politics or the ordinary combinations and collisions of her friendships or enmities." Surveying the situation of the young republic and foreseeing its future, this wisest of counselors goes on to say: "Our detached and distant situation invites and enables us to pursue a different course. If we remain one people, under an efficient government, the period is not far off when we may defy material injury from external annoyance; when we may take such an attitude as will cause the neutrality we may at any time resolve upon to be scrupulously respected; when belligerent nations, under the impossibility of making acquisitions upon us, will not lightly hazard the giving us provocation; when we may choose peace or war, as our interest, guided by justice, shall counsel." And he asks: "Why forego the advantages of so peculiar a situation? Why quit our own to stand upon foreign ground? Why, by interweaving our destiny with that of any part of Europe, entangle our peace and prosperity in the toils of European ambition, rivalship, interest, humor, and caprice? It is our true policy to steer clear of permanent alliances with any portion of the foreign world."

Now this wisdom has been and is approved in the profound instinct of the American people, and is the true foundation of a true American foreign policy. It is as valid today as it was when Washington set it down in his great testament. It is not a doctrine of isolation but a doctrine of independence. It does not forbid coöperation for the welfare of mankind; it insures it, through the maintenance of our liberty to act upon the dictates of our own intelligence and conscience. The American people are serving humanity with more substantial and widespread effects than any other nation. Their expanding trade and the expanding influence of their language, their industry, their political and social ideas—most important of all, the influence of their democratic ideal, their principle, inherent and pervasive in our American society, that the pursuit of happiness, the right of individual betterment, the right of the individual to hope for and to achieve whatever his capacity as a free man can achieve are inalienable in the individual whatever his station—these are the American contributions to the progress of mankind, and they cannot be maintained if we compromise our independence or weaken our strength. A strong America is the best contribution to human betterment and the foreign policy of America should be built upon that truth. For years what passes for American foreign policy has been influenced by men and women who think any nation may be trusted with power but our own. It is time this influence be repudiated and replaced by respect for American character, confidence in American destiny, regard for American interests. These should control our relations with all peoples and shape our policies in our foreign affairs.

THE GROWING DEMAND FOR THE OLD CONSTITUTION.

Action in congress on the bills carrying the legislation recommended by the Wickersham enforcement commission probably will reveal the continued authority of prohibition fanaticism in Washington, although some of these proposed acts commit new depredations on the ground principles of old American government. Even so, there is a new tone in the debate. It shows the rising protest of great numbers of the best American citizens against the folly, scandal, and tragedy of this great American mistake, the experiment which is not noble either in its present day motives or consequences.

Some of the old warriors against suppression of constitutional rights and liberties of citizenship have passed out of congress, such as Bruce of Maryland and Reed of Missouri, but their voices are still heard, and in congress new voices of intelligence and ability, such as that of Congressman Beck of Pennsylvania, are being raised.

A new issue is definitely presented. It is the recovery of the constitution. It is the reassertion of American principles as they were a little over ten years ago. It is the reëstablishment of American citizenship and law upon their old and safe basis. The moral force which aided temperance has been transferred by the excesses of bigotry to the side of constitutional rights.

The intelligent morality of the nation knows that the evils now so scandalous in the country cannot be corrected by the passage of more enforcement laws for further oppression. They know that government cannot recover the respect of the people until it reforms itself, and they know that the social ills cannot be cured by more and worse prohibition.

It may be that the eighteenth amendment cannot at present be taken out of the constitution. If it could it would be the complete remedy, withdrawing the federal government from activities inconsistent with its purpose and restoring the police power to the states. But even if that is the case for the time being, the country is not entirely helpless. Congress, when it is released from fanatical influences, can change the Volstead act and substitute for it something less repugnant to American principles. It can enact a prohibition act which conforms to all provisions of the constitution. It can restore constitutional government as it was and as it should be. It can turn the country back in the direction of temperance. It can permit the manufacture of alcoholic beverages of a content which in fact and in general usage would not be intoxicating. Whisky and gin are the drinks which most Americans use because they are easily made, easily transported, and easily marketed. The illicit trade is encouraged in this direction, and the worst drinks are the most obtainable. Wine drinking nations are temperate. A palatable beer in general usage would not be intoxicating in any sensible meaning of the word. An honest and sensible restatement of prohibition would restore to the medical profession its discretion in prescribing.

A congress free from coercion could begin the return to sanity and lawfulness by repealing the oppressive and intolerable Volstead act and giving the nation a statute which would not be merely a declaration of bigotry and tyranny. The Volstead act is a failure which is dragging the government down with it.

NEW BOSSES FOR CHICAGO.

[Rock Island, Ill., Argus.]

It seems that some important financial and business interests in Chicago will extend a credit of $50,000,000 to that bankrupt metropolis if the city will submit to a financial dictatorship in the matter of expenditures. Nobody can blame this group for exercising oversight of the money and where it goes. The city authorities, who would grasp at any straw in the present emergency, have accepted the terms.

The situation is one that should cause the voters of Chicago to scrutinize the personnel of the next group of men who come out for posts of municipal responsibility at the coming election. With a crime wave sweeping the city, and no funds to pay employés, it would be a logical assumption that the electorate would demand good men for public offices.

The voters of Chicago—a majority of them at least—have proven so extraordinarily gullible, however, that some pessimists would not be surprised if no improvements in personnel are accomplished at the next election. The usual ballyhoo may sweep into office men of the same type as those responsible for Chicago's present financial predicament.

"Read, Mark, Learn, and Inwardly Digest Them"

The following Bible reading begins with the 46th verse of the sixth chapter of Luke. The American standard version is used. The only change is in paragraph form and punctuation method.

"YOUNG MAN, ARISE!"

"Why call me ye, 'Lord, Lord,' and do not the things which I say? Every one that cometh unto me, and heareth my words, and doeth them, I will show you to whom he is like; he is like a man building a house, who digged and went deep, and laid a foundation upon the rock; and when a flood arose, the stream brake against that house, and could not shake it; because it had been well builded. But he that heareth, and doeth not, is like a man that built a house upon the earth without a foundation; against which the stream brake, and straightway it fell in; and the ruin of that house was great."

After he had ended all his sayings in the ears of the people, he entered into Capernaum. And a certain centurion's servant, who was dear unto him, was sick and at the point of death. And when he heard concerning Jesus, he sent unto him elders of the Jews, asking him that he would come and save his servant. And they, when they came to Jesus, besought him earnestly, saying, "He is worthy that thou shouldst do this for him; for he loveth our nation, and himself built us our synagogue." And Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying unto him, "Lord, trouble not thyself; for I am not worthy that thou shouldest come under my roof; wherefore neither thought I myself worthy to come unto thee; but say the word, and my servant shall be healed. For I also am a man set under authority, having under myself soldiers: and I say to this one, 'Go,' and he goeth; and to another, 'Come,' and he cometh; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he doeth it." And when Jesus heard these things, he marveled at him, and turned and said unto the multitude that followed him, "I say unto you, I have not found so great faith, no, not in Israel." And they that were sent, returning to the house, found the servant whole.

And it came to pass soon afterwards, that he went to a city called Nain; and his disciples went with him, and a great multitude. Now when he drew near to the gate of the city, behold, there was carried out one that was dead, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow; and much people of the city was with her. And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, "Weep not." And he came nigh and touched the bier; and the bearers stood still. And he said, "Young man, I say unto thee, Arise." And he that was dead sat up, and began to speak. And he gave him to his mother. And fear took hold on all; and they glorified God, saying, "A great prophet is arisen among us; and, God hath visited his people." And this report went forth concerning him in the whole of Judea, and all the region round about.

And the disciples of John told him of all these things. And John calling unto him two of his disciples sent them to the Lord, saying, "Art thou he that cometh, or look we for another?" And when the men were come unto him, they said, "John the Baptist hath sent us unto thee, saying, Art thou he that cometh, or look we for another?" In that hour he cured many of diseases and plagues and evil spirits; and on many that were blind he bestowed sight. And he answered and said unto them, "Go and tell John the things which ye have seen and heard; the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, the dead are raised up, the poor have good tidings preached to them. And blessed is he, whosoever shall find no occasion of stumbling in me."

And when the messengers of John were departed, he began to say unto the multitudes concerning John, "What went ye out into the wilderness to behold? A reed shaken with the wind? But what went ye out to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? Behold, they that are gorgeously appareled, and live delicately, and are in kings' courts. But what went ye out to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet. This is he of whom it is written, 'Behold, I send my messenger before thy face, Who shall prepare thy way before thee.' I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there is none greater than John; yet he that is but little in the kingdom of God is greater than he."

And all the people when they heard, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized with the baptism of John. But the Pharisees and the lawyers rejected for themselves the counsel of God, being not baptized of him. "Whereunto then shall I liken the men of this generation, and to what are they like? They are like unto children that sit in the market place, and call one to another, who say, 'We piped unto you, and ye did not dance; we wailed, and ye did not weep.' For John the Baptist is come eating no bread nor drinking wine; and ye say, 'He hath a demon.' The Son of man is come eating and drinking; and ye say, 'Behold, a gluttonous man, and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners!' And wisdom is justified of all her children."

And one of the Pharisees desired him that he would eat with him. And he entered into the Pharisee's house, and sat down to meat. And behold, a woman who was in the city, a sinner; and when she knew that he was sitting at meat in the Pharisee's house, she brought an alabaster cruse of ointment, and standing behind at his feet, weeping, she began to wet his feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head, and kissed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

Now when the Pharisee that had bidden him saw it, he spake within himself, saying, "This man, if he were a prophet, would have perceived who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him, that she is a sinner."

FAITH.

O World, thou choosest not the better part!
It is not wisdom to be only wise,
And on the inward vision close the eyes,
But it is wisdom to believe the heart.
Columbus found a world, and had no chart,
Save one that Faith deciphered in the skies;
To trust the soul's invincible surmise
Was all his science and his only art.
Our knowledge is a torch of smoky pine
That lights the pathway but one step ahead
Across a void of mystery and dread.
Bid, then, the tender light of Faith to shine,
By which alone the mortal heart is led
Unto the thinking of the thought divine.

SHINGLES; CAUSE AND CURE.

T. B. K. writes: Please give a full account of shingles, its cause and cure.

REPLY: This is the common name for herpes, which develops on the chest wall. A similar eruption on the lips is called "cold sore" or "fever blister." These are but two of the many locations on which herpes may appear. The frequency with which the disease shows itself and the inconvenience it causes are shown by the unusual number of common names it has and the number of people who know something about it.

The outstanding symptom is the eruption. This, to begin with, is an elevated, painful sore. It ends in an ulcer with a scab but with not much pus formation. When the eruption occurs on the skin a rather deep scar is left behind. Herpes on mucous membranes and nearby skin as around the mouth does not leave scars.

The pain is all out of proportion to the depth and size of the sore. This is because, back of the eruption, lies a neuralgia. The local nerves are involved in a way peculiar to herpes. Another peculiarity is the location of the eruption and the grouping of the sores. In shingles they follow along a rib. They really follow the intercostal nerve located near the rib.

Herpes is the result of infection. For instance, cold sores on the mouth are very suggestive of a pneumococcus infection. There are certain infecting bacteria which are very liable to cause cold sores, while others have very little tendency in that direction. In shingles there is supposed to be an infection of the nerve roots near the spinal cord. Sometimes the intercostal nerve is infected in its parts near the ribs where the sores are, but that seems less important than the infection of the root.

While shingles is a very painful disorder and while it may be protracted, complete cure can be expected. It is, in fact, a self-limited disease. It cures itself without treatment or with any treatment. As a rule the only treatment given is something to promote comfort. This usually consists of some simple protective application to the sores and possibly of some pain killer taken internally. The best pain killers for the purpose are the salicylates.

There is another side to the story about which we can do no more than speculate. There is some relation between herpes, chicken pox, lethargic encephalitis, and a few other diseases the nature of which we do not know much. It is thought that this comes about in some way through filterable viruses which act in conjunction with other causes. On this much laboratory and chemical work is being done, but so far there is not much tangible result.

CONSULT EYE SPECIALIST.

C. W. M. writes: I have a relative who has been troubled lately with what has been said to be hemorrhage of the eye. Sometimes when he arises in the morning his vision is foggy for an hour or so. He is 25 years of age; got through college recently in a rundown condition, but seems to be in fair health. He worked steadily until this trouble commenced. What dangers are there in such a condition and what should he do?

REPLY.

He is in very real danger of losing his vision. He should put himself in the hands of the best eye specialist available.

AID IN RESISTING COLDS.

Mrs. I. H. writes: What good effects do the new sunshine arc lamps have on one's general health? Do they help cure colds? Are they of any benefit to children during the winter months?

REPLY.

Proper treatment with an efficient lamp in mid-winter is of considerable service in raising resistance to colds and pneumonia. At this season there is not enough sunlight to maintain resistance. Growing children are benefited more than adults by such treatments. They need light to promote growth, to prevent rickets, and to resist colds.

DIET FOR FOUR MONTHS OLD.

Mrs. A. M. H. writes: My baby four months old is healthy, has a good appetite, sleeps well, but he spits up his food, is constipated and is small for his age. He is fed on condensed milk. I had to wean him one month ago. Shall I change his food?

REPLY:

If a baby is happy, sleeps well, has a good appetite and is growing, no great change should be made in his diet.

Since he spits up his food, give him less at a feeding. In addition to milk, give him orange juice and, a little later, some thin cereal and clear soup. As his diet is broadened constipation should end.

MUST PAY FOR RADIO.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Three months ago I purchased a radio on time payments. During the first month after making down payment I called the firm to take back their radio; instead of doing so they sent statements. Do I have to retain the radio? Can they garnishee my salary? B. L.

Unless you have some defense not stated in your letter, such as minority or breach of contract on their part, they can take judgment for the amount due and collect out of your unexempt income or property, if any.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

SUPPORT OF PARENTS.

Melrose Park, Ill., Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will my husband have to help support his father and mother? He already has a wife and two children to support on $30 a week.

MRS. J.

Our pauper act requires near relatives to contribute according to their means to the support of destitute persons, except that married women are not required to contribute unless they have independent means. Apply to the bureau of public welfare in the county building.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CHARGED USURIOUS INTEREST.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A borrowed $5,000 from B and agreed in writing to pay B back within four years at a rate of 8 per cent. A payed B $25 for seventy weeks, which amounted to $1,750, and quit paying.

What steps could I take to get my money back? with the interest? J. H.

1. Employ a lawyer. 2. Since 7% is the legal maximum, the agreed interest was usurious and you are not entitled to recover more than the principal.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TRY ANOTHER LAWYER.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Will you kindly inform me through your paper if there is some place besides the Chicago Bar association where the public can get some protection from willfully erring lawyers?

M. H.

If the Bar association declines to act, it is probably because the case calls for ordinary civil proceedings against the lawyer and for this purpose you should employ another attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

CATCH HIM WITH IT.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can money earned on a strictly commission basis be garnisheed or attached? 2. What percentage of amount attached can be collected by law?

C. H.

Yes, if you can catch it in the hands of the person who owes it. 2. The exemption in case of wages is $13 per week. There is no exemption as to other moneys.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

65 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 16, 1865.

PHILADELPHIA. — The Washington special to the Evening Bulletin says: "Richmond papers confirm the report of Sherman's occupation of Branchville and Orangeburg. An advance on Columbia was anticipated. Wheeler's cavalry appears to be the only force operating against Sherman."

WASHINGTON. — The Richmond Whig of the 13th learns from Fredericksburg that a large Yankee cavalry force was moving towards that town.

NEW YORK.—The Tribune's Washington special says: "The rebel Congressman Foote positively refused Secretary Seward's request to take the oath of allegiance, stating that he could never return to the confederacy, as it was a failure, but he could not renounce his own conduct. Permission was then given him to leave for Europe on parole not to return during the war."

WASHINGTON. — The Petersburg Express says that Grant has thoroughly fortified his position in the rear. Every road is barricaded and lines of works extend in every direction.

CHICAGO.—H. W. Goodrich of Chicago and Miss Mattie A. Young of Hudson, Wis., were married at the home of the bride's father, Capt. S. S. Young, at Troy, Wis., on Feb. 7 by the Rev. W. W. Thorpe. Oliver C. Ely of Chicago and Miss Julia E. Peirce of Milwaukee were married in the latter city on Feb. 15 by the Rev. J. H. Towne.

CHICAGO. — The Rev. Frederick Brown of Georgetown, D. C., has accepted a call from the Central Presbyterian church of Chicago.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 16, 1900.

LONDON.—Kimberley has been relieved and the siege raised. The war office announced that Gen. French reached the beleaguered city on Feb. 15. Only the bare announcement was made, all details being suppressed. The siege of Kimberley dates from Oct. 12, last year, the day following the presentation of the Boer ultimatum to Great Britain. Gen. Botha invested the town and cut railway communications to the south. Gen. Cronje has been in charge of the investing force since Nov. 6.

CHICAGO.—Ald. C. F. Gunther is ready to give his immense private collection of war relics, historical records, and curios to the public in the city of Chicago when a suitable building shall be provided. He is in favor of erecting in Garfield park a building which shall contain the largest war museum in the United States. Mr. Gunther's collection was last seen at the Omaha exposition, where it occupied the entire government building.

CHICAGO.—The Chicago Athletic association, Frank W. Wentworth, William Hale Thompson, and nineteen athletes formerly connected with the Cherry Circle have been suspended by the Central Association of the Amateur Athletic union. The charge against the association is offering inducements in the way of clubhouse privileges to the athletes to obtain their services for the various teams. The charge against Thompson and Wentworth is that they refused to give testimony in the case and the charge against the athletes is that they received compensation for athletic services.

CHICAGO.—Charles T. Wilt, Chicago's pioneer trunk manufacturer, died on Feb. 13 of angina pectoris and the funeral will be held at the late residence, 30 St. James place, tomorrow. Mr. Wilt was 70 years old and had been in Chicago since 1855.

10 YEARS AGO TODAY

FEBRUARY 16, 1920.

PARIS.—President Wilson has notified the British, French and Italian governments that if they settle the Adriatic problem without the concurrence of Washington, the United States will not concern itself further in the settlement of pending European questions. He declares that neither of the proposed solutions is compatible with the American attitude.

PARIS, 3 a. m.—Premiers Millerand of France and Lloyd George of Great Britain are reported to have sent a reply to President Wilson's note relative to the Adriatic compromise, and hold to their positions expressed in the note sent to Jugo-Slavia on Jan. 20, giving that government a choice between the compromise or the execution of the treaty of London. Mr. Wilson's charges against Italy are rejected by the two premiers.

CHICAGO.—The confession of James Vinci, driver of the automobile from which, it is alleged, Vincenzo Cosmano shot "Moss" Enright to death, will be presented to the grand jury today. State's Attorney Hoyne announced. Mr. Hoyne said he will ask murder indictments against Cosmano, "Big Tim" Murphy, labor leader, and Michael Carozzo, protégé of Murphy.

IN THE LIFE FOR A PINT STATE.

Iron Mountain, Mich., Jan. 29.—Why is it that the continuance or repeal of the 18th amendment or even the Volstead law cannot be submitted to a direct vote of the people of this nation?

I presume conditions here are no different than in most any community in this country. Eighty-five per cent of the people here have home brew, wine, or a good quality of whisky in their homes to serve visitors and only about one out of thirty of the visitors refuses the treat. Apparently only about 5 per cent of the people believe in the dry law. Still congress goes on appropriating huge sums for enforcement. The President calls for more jails. Most of us are felons in the eyes of the dry fanatics. In a radius of four blocks, in a small town like this, one knows most of his neighbors. In the four blocks only three families would be exempt from the felon class. I have seen the chemical analysis of a whisky made somewhere around here. The chemist pronounced it very high class with no dangerous poisons. I have been told a Chicago man drove up here only a week ago and bought seventy gallons of it. Think of the revenue the government is losing on such a transaction!

M. F.

CROP LIMITATION AND THE INDIVIDUAL.

Columbus Junction, Ia., Jan. 29.—The department of agriculture warned the farmers to go slow. They said any expansion in farm crops would make prices still lower, and they included hogs, beef cattle, dairy products, sheep, and poultry, and all kinds of grain.

Shall the farmer on the delinquent tax list heed this advice and risk his home by raising only a part of a crop? Would not this only invite the moneyed corporations to come in and confiscate farms with mortgages? Is this all the Republicans meant in their last two presidential platforms when they promised to put agriculture on a plane equal to any industry? Our President surely meant more when he called an extra session to pass an exclusive farm tariff bill.

Our senate has already voted no raise on the sugar tariff, and the beet sugar men are quitting to enter other fields of agriculture that Mr. Hyde and Mr. Legge both acknowledge are overdone. And no prohibitive tariff is yet voted on blackstrap molasses that displaces 40,000,000 bushels of our surplus corn. And they have passed a duty of 10 per cent on hides! Does that boost us to the plane promised twice in our party platform?

For farmers who have put in their best licks for the last eight years, 365 days in the year, to slow up now and shirk their work would seem suicidal. Idleness has no promise of reward.

JAMES K. HELMICK.

SMOKE AND PERSONAL LIBERTY.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Et tu, Brute! Your editorial, "Tell It to the Judge," is the limit. "More fines and maximum fines are indicated," and THE TRIBUNE approves. Since when did THE TRIBUNE sell out to the professional prohibitors of the Anti-Saloon league?

The 18th amendment sure did start something. First it made it a crime to use alcohol as a beverage. Now the patent furnace and smokeless fuel people are making it a crime to keep the good old home fires burning in the good old-fashioned way. If they get away with it the next thing will be to prohibit the burning of the withered leaves in the fall, and then who will see any sense to McCutcheon's cartoon, "Injun Summer"?

What about the invisible carbon monoxide fumes that belch forth from the stacks of those buildings equipped with new fangled furnaces and cause scores to suffer from unaccountable headaches who never knew what a headache was before? Just keep up your "fines and more fines" and the American cities good and prop and soon every one with any self-re left will be migrating to Britain or to any one of her fast developing colonies which are proud and jealous of the freedom they enjoy under the union jack.

JOHN GRAHAM MCDONALD.

LORDS AND COMMONS.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—A London dispatch in THE TRIBUNE of Feb. 5 says that the MacDonald ministry may dissolve parliament, call a general election, and "go to the people" if the unemployment insurance bill, fathered by the administration, is rejected a second time by the house of lords.

I had been under the impression that under what amounted to an amendment of the British constitution, obtained through the tactics of the Irish parliamentary party, under the leadership of Redmond, the veto power of the house of lords was so curtailed as to be rendered nugatory. Under that amendment, as I understood it, a bill twice passed by the house of commons and twice vetoed by the house of lords could then be passed a third time by the commons, when it would automatically become law despite the opposition of the lords.

How this amendment to the British constitution was brought about is a long story. It may be said, however, that it was secured through the opposition of the upper house to a tax bill passed several years ago by the commons, which compelled the landed aristocracy to pay their fair share of the general taxation. When the lords rejected this bill the ministry dissolved parliament and appealed to the country in a general election.

The Irish parliamentary party seized the opportunity to tack on to this appeal a section that in effect abolished the autocratic veto power of the house of lords. The section provided that a bill passed thrice by the house of commons thereby became law. The matter, being one that touched his pocketbook, was swallowed by John Bull in that election. The Irish home rule bill, passed shortly after, was one of the first fruits of this bit of major statesmanship. It made the Irish Free State possible.

This is why I do not understand the MacDonald ministry dissolving and "going to the people" over any bill of such a nature as that in question. I should imagine that to pass the bill three times would suffice without a general election.

JAMES CONWELL.

THE STENOGRAPHER LEGEND.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—You published several letters regarding the quality of letters written by business men. One reason for the poor quality of letters written by the average business man is the fact that in hiring stenographers they do not demand ability so much as youth. My experience in applying for positions as a stenographer leads me to believe that most business men want a kindergarten or a beauty show rather than capable stenographers.

STENOGRAPHER.

WOODPECKER.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—I had the unusual experience on Jan. 18, the morning that our thermometer registered 18 degrees below zero, of finding a red bellied woodpecker sitting quietly in a small maple tree just outside my porch window. I had a good chance to look him over and he was beautiful. The top and back of his head was bright red and his back, wings, and tail were black and white striped. I had only seen red headed woodpeckers before, such as one sees in our suburbs, but the color plate in my bird book is an exact picture of the one I saw. It winters along the gulf coast and breeds as far north as Minnesota. This fellow had evidently been attracted to the loaf of bread I had put there for the sparrows.

WEYERHAEUSER, LUMBER KING, IS DEAD IN BOMBAY

Succumbs While Making World Tour.

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Charles A. Weyerhaeuser, 64 years of age, a national figure in the lumber industry, died today in Bombay, India, apparently from an infection which started in his nose, according to a cablegram received here today.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser, an officer of one of the largest concerns in the world, was on a world cruise with his wife and a party of St. Paul friends, having sailed from New York Jan. 28. He had been in poor health since an operation a year ago.

The cablegram to the company's office here announcing his death gave no details, but word received by radio a few days ago said he was suffering from a nose infection.

Son of Lumber King.

The message came from aboard the North German Lloyd liner Columbus and said the St. Paul lumber magnate would be taken to a hospital as soon as the ship docked at Bombay. The Columbus reached Bombay yesterday.

C. A. Weyerhaeuser was a son of the late Frederick Weyerhaeuser, who rose from timberman to head of a vast system of lumber enterprises scattered through the United States, including a fleet of ships operating from the Pacific coast. He headed the Potlatch Lumber company, operating mills at Potlatch and Elk River, Idaho, and was an officer and director in a majority of the other Weyerhaeuser enterprises.

Lived in Minnesota.

Mr. Weyerhaeuser was president of the Pine Tree Manufacturing company of Little Falls, Minn., and made his home there about thirty years until the central concern shut the plant down about ten years ago.

Miss Sarah Maud Weyerhaeuser, his daughter, is in Tacoma. Others who survive him are three brothers, John P. of Tacoma, Rudolph M. of Colquot, Minn., and Frederick E. of St. Paul; three sisters, Mrs. Margaret W. Jewett of Cambridge, Mass., Mrs. J. Bancroft Hill of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and Mrs. Samuel S. Davis of Rock Island, Ill.; and three nephews prominent in the lumber industry, Philip G. of Lewiston, Idaho, Fred K. of Minneapolis, recently elected head of the Weyerhaeuser Sales company, and G. F. Jewett of Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

YOUTH SHOT BY FATHER AS HE GUARDS MOTHER

Roy Wisniewski, 19 years old, was shot twice last night by his father, John Wisniewski, 42 years old, in a battle on the rear porch of the son's home, after the elder Wisniewski had threatened to kill his estranged wife, Mrs. Tillie Wisniewski. The father fled after the shooting and the boy was taken to the county hospital in a serious condition.

Roy, a pattern maker, and his brother, Eugene, 17 years old, have been supporting their mother and sister, Ester, 13, since last May when their parents separated. According to Police Lieut. Peter Tomchek, the elder Wisniewski has been arrested several time for cruelty to his family while under the influence of liquor and returned to the house intoxicated early last evening.

The father began cursing Roy, accusing him of causing the trouble between his parents, witnesses said. When the father attempted to enter the house Roy blocked his path and struggled with him for a gun which he had drawn from his pocket. Wisniewski fired four times. One bullet inflicted a scalp wound and another struck the boy in the breast.

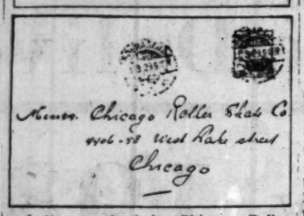
From Sourabaya, Java



Letter received by Chicago Roller Shade Co., 1406 West Lake street, Chicago.

Sourabaya is one of the chief ports of Java and lies at the head of the strait of Madura in the eastern part of this important possession of the Netherlands in the East Indies. The town is on the south side of the narrows between Java proper and the adjacent island of Madura.

It is the seat of one of the residences of the government of the island and has branch court of justice. Some interesting antique remains of temples of the Hindoo period are found near Sourabaya. The Dutch have been in Java since early in the 16th century. The population of the island is about 37,000,000.

J. C. ANDUSON, M. E. MINISTER, TAKEN BY DEATH

The Rev. Joseph C. Anderson, pastor of the Fernwood Methodist Episcopal church, 101st street and Wallace avenue, died at his home yesterday after a brief illness.

The Rev. Mr. Anderson has been a member of the Rock River conference since 1902 when he came from Canada to become the pastor of the Glen Ellyn Methodist Episcopal church. Later he served the Willard Sangamon and Park Manor churches. Funeral services will be held at the Fernwood church at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. The Rev. Edwin H. Hughes, bishop of the Chicago area, or the Rev. Frank Barnum, superintendent of the Chicago southern district, will officiate.

RUSSIA SHIPS PLATINUM TO U.S. TO MEET DEBTS

$500,000 Drain on Bank Reserve Smashes Ruble

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 15.—A large shipment of platinum, valued at around $500,000, arrived here yesterday from Moscow, for transshipment to America, where the bolsheviks are obliged to meet short term credits granted by American firms doing business in Russia. The Latvian authorities were requested to keep news of the shipment secret, since the depleted reserves of the precious metal in the Moscow State bank are causing a further fall in the value of soviet currency abroad.

Today large quantities of soviet rubles were offered here for exchange at 17 cents a ruble, which the Moscow State bank continues to quote at 50 cents a ruble.

Cancel Goldfield Concession.

In connection with this report it is interesting to note that the soviet government has set a date for the expiration of the lease of the American-British Lena Goldfields company, whose concession to exploit the goldfields on the Lena river in Siberia was arranged by Walter Brown, a personal friend of President Hoover.

President Hoover appointed Mr. Brown as head of the American relief administration during the Russian famine of 1921, and the success of the famine relief enabled Mr. Brown to obtain the concession from Moscow which was granted to the British company to continue operations with American capital.

For several years the company returned large profits, but the decreasing gold reserves of the Moscow state bank resulted in a special commission of the cheka being sent to Siberia to investigate the company. They recommended that the concession be cancelled and the goldfields operated by the Moscow state bank.

Persecution of the Lena company began three months ago, ending with a search of the company's offices in Russia and the arrest of many officials who were accused of refusing to sanction communist agitation upon the premises of the company.

Cancel Other Concessions.

Through operating the Lena gold fields concession the soviets hope to increase their gold reserves. All foreign concessions in Russia at present earning dividends are being canceled, bolshevik economists reporting that they could return larger profits under soviet management. Germany is hard hit by the present policy because it holds the largest number of concessions in Russia. As a result the relations between Moscow and Berlin are cooling.

GUNMAN ROBS GIRL AT HOME.

Miss Kay Hickey, 7236 Constance avenue, was robbed of her purse containing $53 last night by a gunman who held her up in the vestibule of the apartment building in which she lives.

JAMES H. QUINN, LONG ON BENCH, IS DEAD AT 72

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(AP)—James H. Quinn, 72, former Minnesota Supreme court justice and a member of the judiciary for more than 30 years, died today at his home here from heart disease. He had retired from the Supreme court two years ago because of ill health.

Justice Quinn was born at Kilbourn City, Wis., but came to Minnesota when six years old with his parents. He returned to Wisconsin for a part of his education and then took up the study of law. He was appointed to the district bench in 1897 and elected to the Supreme court in 1916.

During his 30 years in the judiciary many of Judge Quinn's decisions have gone into the present body of law as precedents.

His widow and three children survive.

Frank C. Otis Funeral Services to Be Tomorrow

Funeral services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow at the chapel at 6110 Cottage Grove avenue for Frank C. Otis, 72 years old, a lifelong resident of Chicago, who died on Thursday. Burial will be in Oakwoods cemetery.

Mr. Otis had been with L. M. Smith & Bros., real estate dealers, and was active in the early development of the Oakland and Hyde Park districts.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Isabelle Mary Otis, and one daughter, Mrs. F. C. Hamilton of South Orange, N. J.

Hursen Leads America in Funeral Quality

In funerals, as in everything else, changes through the years become desirable in manner, method, equipment and style. Some years ago Chicago was startled by revolutionary improvements in funeral direction established by Hursen. Since then the leading improvements which have been noted have been initiated, as usual, by Hursen.

In all that pertains to funerals, Hursen leads, not only in Chicago, but in the entire country as well. Hursen funeral equipment is acknowledged to be unsurpassed in America. In this equipment you will find the Hursen "limousine-hearses," the Hursen new idea which has revolutionized the use of the old-style, gloomy-looking, overadorned hearse.

Hursen automobiles for passengers are unexcelled anywhere for beauty, roominess and riding comfort. They are driven by Hursen-trained, liveried chauffeurs, chosen for their qualities in appearance, deportment and ability. A remarkable fact is that there is no extra charge for the use of this Hursen superior automobile equipment.

The Hursen organization wipes out distance. As proof of it, witness the many Hursen funerals even into the far suburbs of Chicago. Hursen is as near to you as your telephone. Every day there are calls from homes as much as 15 or 20 miles away.

"Hursen" Organ Chapels are the most beautiful ever built. There is no charge whatever for their use. "Hursen" automobile equipment, all specially built for "Hursen," are furnished at no greater cost than the usual auto hire.

Another fact that startles is that the price of "Hursen" funerals is but a fraction of the charges made elsewhere, a policy which has made "Hursen's" the largest funeral-directing establishment in America. Call Hursen, of course!

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam.

BERNDT—Laura Berndt. A tribute of love and cherished memory to our dear mother and grandmother, who entered into heavenly rest one year ago today.
You are gone but not forgotten,
In our memory you'll never fade,
And while life and strength are left us
We shall linger round your grave.
Rest in peace, thy cares are ended.
Rest in peace, thy work is done.
You have gone where we who loved you
Soon are coming, one by one.
LOVING CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

BOLIO—Theodore J. Bolio Jr. In loving memory of our dear son and brother, who died 7 years ago today, Feb. 16, 1923.
MOTHER AND SISTERS.

DIVER—James Francis Diver Jr. In fond memory of our dearly beloved husband and daddy, who passed away three years ago today. LOVING WIFE AND CHILD.

MARGOLIS—Minnie Margolis. In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away three years ago today.

THREE WEDDINGS OF INTEREST TO CITY'S SOCIETY

Misses Newcomet, Reay and Tilt Brides.

Three weddings of social interest were solemnized yesterday. The marriage of Miss Edith Louise Newcomet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace E. Newcomet of 20 Cedar street, to James Beach Clow, son of Mrs. James C. Clow of the Ambassador hotel, took place at 4:30 p. m. at St. Chrysostom's church. The bride wore a severely simple gown of white satin with a long court train and a tulle veil, and carried calla lilies.

Her attendants, Miss Marion Newcomet, Mrs. Walborn W. Newcomet and Mrs. Ellwood Fisher of Cleveland, Miss Roberta Harvey and Mrs. Harold H. Gade of Philadelphia, were garbed in long, full skirted frocks of yellow lace with deep cape collars and yellow tulle hats. They held bouquets of yellow roses. Elliott Donnelley acted as best man for the groom, and the ushers were Prescott R. Taylor of Boston, W. S. K. Stage of New York City, Walborn W. Newcomet, Arthur D. Bissell, Alexander Knott, and Harris Wilder.

The ceremony was followed by a reception at the Newcomet residence. Mr. Clow and his bride are to reside in Chicago after a wedding trip to Bermuda.

Miss Reay Becomes Bride.

Miss Dorothy Reay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Mason Reay of Highland Park, and James Arthur Younglove, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Clute Younglove of Glencoe, were married at 8:30 p. m. at the Trinity Episcopal church in Highland Park.

Miss Reay wore a Chanel gown of ivory satin with a court train and a net veil with a border and panel of rose point lace. She carried a long spray of gardenias. The matron and maid of honor, Mrs. James A. Roberts Jr. and Miss Irvin Reay, wore pale blue frocks of lace and tulle. The bridesmaids, Miss Shirley Reay, Miss Jean Adams, Miss Virjean Richey, and Miss Nancy Younglove, wore tulle frocks in pastel shades of pink and green. All of the attendants carried spring flowers. Mr. and Mrs. Younglove are to spend their honeymoon in Europe.

Mary Agnes Tilt Weds.

The marriage of Miss Mary Agnes Tilt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Arthur Tilt of 1500 Lake Shore drive, to Norman Bartlett Wright, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Wright, was performed at 7:30 in the evening at the Tilt resident in the presence of the families and a few intimate friends. The bride wore a white moire gown and a gardenia corsage. Her sister, Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell, was her only attendant. James Franklin Oates Jr. served as best man for the groom.

Horthy Regime to Mark 10th Year with Amnesty

BUDAPEST, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Count Bethlen, Hungarian prime minister, is preparing a general amnesty for political offenders on the tenth anniversary of Admiral Horthy's appointment as regent of Hungary, March 1. It will include those living abroad, but discriminates against "extremists," who are not included.

MARRY 50 YEARS AFTER PARTING IN LOVERS' TIFF

Hutchinson, Kan., Feb. 15.—(AP)—More than 50 years after they separated after a lovers' tiff in Grand Prairie, Neb., Davis H. Herriman and Mrs. Mary Paxton are a groom and bride here.

Each married following the separation, but their mates did not survive. Thirty-seven years ago they lost touch with each other.

Mr. Herriman, a resident of the Soldiers' home at Battle Mountain, S. D., then began a search which only recently was ended.

The couple said they did not like to make their ages public.

3 AUBURN RIOT LEADERS GIVEN DEATH PENALTY

Auburn, N. Y., Feb. 15.—(U. P.)—Three of six Auburn convicts charged with the murder of Henry Sullivan, a fellow convict, during the prison riot of Dec. 11, were found guilty of first degree murder today.

They are Claud Udwine of Buffalo, William Force of Utica, and Jesse Thomas, also of Utica.

The other three were acquitted and will return to prison to serve out their sentences.

Sentence will be passed Wednesday. The conviction carries a mandatory death sentence.

Says Boxer Mate Trained on Her at Home; Divorced

Mrs. Dorothy Verri, 5816 Glenwood avenue, dancer, yesterday won a divorce from her husband, Peter Verri, a boxer, before Superior Judge Sabath. She testified that her husband demonstrated his talents too frequently upon her in their two weeks of married life, which began last Sept. 7. She was represented by Attorney Irving Eisenman.

Model 499
5-Passenger Coupé

Built-in automatic radiator shutters mean SUPERIOR PERFORMANCE!

EVERY Nash "400" model is now equipped with built-in automatic radiator shutters—a feature of superior performance which Nash alone offers in all three Nash price groups. ¶ The opening and closing of Nash radiator shutters is automatic—nothing to push or pull—controlled by a thermostat—accurate and invariable. It keeps Nash motors operating at the most efficient engine temperature in any weather. ¶ And this is only one of many new features of these superior motor cars. ¶ Centralized chassis lubrication in every "400" model is another. ¶ Twin cowl ventilators and adjustable drivers' seats are others. ¶ All Twin-Ignition Eight and Six models have lifetime lubricated springs with flexible steel spring covers. ¶ And all Twin-Ignition Eight models are equipped with Duplate non-shatterable plate glass as standard equipment at no extra cost.

Was THIS the WEDDING RING YOU GAVE HER?

"WITH all my worldly goods I thee endow" . . . do you remember?

And you have been thoughtful and kind, no doubt. But have you paused to consider whether you have given her that greatest household gift of all . . . freedom from the worry and drudgery of furnace tending?

Undoubtedly, you have surrounded your wife with many modern conveniences. Go one step further . . . now . . . and give her the crowning gift of all—a Silent Automatic.

Think not only of the burden it will remove from her shoulders . . . but think as well of the comfort and care-free happiness it will bring to all the family.

Think of the added protection to the family health . . . with uniform temperature at all hours of the day and night.

Think of the den, or nursery, or work-shop you can add to the basement when the coal bin, with all its dust and dirt, becomes a thing of the past.

Think of the evenings when you return home tired, late at night, to a warm, cheerful house . . . with the delightful thought that not even a trip to the basement to regulate drafts is necessary . . . to retire with the complete assurance that the house will be just as warm in the morning.

Then think how quickly Silent Automatic can be installed . . . in a few hours—so quickly your house will not have time to chill. And how easily it may be obtained on Silent Automatic's convenient payment plan.

Before you order another ton of coal . . . ask us for the names of your own neighbors and friends who now enjoy the many advantages of Silent Automatic ownership. Ask them how economical this modern heat is . . . and whether anything could induce them to go back to any other method of heating. You are right now paying the price of Silent Automatic heating—why not enjoy it?

We will be glad to explain the many features of this noiseless burner, which in five years has attained world leadership in sales. Come in, or telephone that you would like to hear more about it.

NEW PLEA FILED FOR U. S. A. BOOKS IN CANAL QUIZ

Needed to Show Graft, Court Is Told.

CRIMINAL COURT.
Milton Gaston, murder, sentenced to 1 to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge John J. Sullivan.

First Assistant State's Attorney John E. Northup filed his second petition yesterday in the court of Acting Chief Justice John P. McGoorty asking for a subpoena duces tecum for the books and records of the U. S. A. company, electrical contractors. In his petition the prosecutor says that unless the records are put before the grand jury as part of the new sanitary district investigation it will act to the "great prejudice of the people and to the encouragement of graft and corruption in public service."

The prosecutor was unsuccessful earlier in the week in obtaining a subpoena because his petition did not state sufficient facts to warrant the issuance of such a document. In a sworn petition filed yesterday he charges that the profits of the U. S. A. company amounted to from 50 per cent to 80 per cent on the work done for the sanitary district, particularly on the placing of lights on the north shore channel road.

Resume Hearing Tomorrow.

Judge McGoorty started to hear arguments on the petition. They will be resumed tomorrow morning.

Attorney Thomas D. Nash, who represents some of the canal trustees indicted more than a year ago but who have never been tried, appeared as one of the attorneys for the U. S. A. company opposing the writ. This fact caused Prosecutor Northup to ask Nash if he was appearing for the company or at the behest of his indicted clients, who would not be anxious to have the books examined.

The documents asked for in the new subpoena are necessary, it is said in the petition, "in determining the nature and character of a criminal conspiracy whereby the sanitary district of Chicago was defrauded of vast sums of money."

Tells Need for Records.

"Your petitioner further says that unless said papers, books, and records are produced before the grand jury for its inquisitorial purposes as aforesaid, the avenues leading to the investigation of crimes participated in by the officers of the said U. S. A. company and by officials and representatives of said sanitary district of Chicago conspiring with them as aforesaid, will remain forever closed to the great prejudice of the people of the state of Illinois and to the encouragement of graft and corruption in the public service," says the petition.

The records are now impounded in the federal court as a result of pending income tax indictments against officials of the company.

HEADS MEDAL MEN

LIEUT. SIDNEY T. HOLZMAN.
[Burke & Koretke Photo.]

Lieut. Sidney T. Holzman, secretary to County Judge Edmund A. Jarecki, has been elected president of the Combat Medal Men's association, composed of holders of the Congressional Medal and the Distinguished Service Cross. Lieut. Holzman served in the 132nd infantry during the war and won his D. S. C. by carrying a message for help for his battalion to headquarters through an area swept by artillery and machine gun fire in the Bois de Fays in October, 1918, after six runners had been killed or wounded in an effort to bring relief.

MEDICAL COUNCIL TO OPEN SESSION HERE TOMORROW

Sec. Wilbur to Speak at First Meeting.

Physicians and surgeons, medical educators and leaders from all over the United States will gather in Chicago tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday for the annual congress of the council on medical education, licensure and hospitals of the American Medical association. The meetings are to be held in the Palmer house. The chief subjects for discussion will be medical education and hospital administration.

The first meeting tomorrow morning will be opened by Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, chairman of the council on medical education. Dr. Wilbur has been studying the problems to be discussed for several years.

One of the principal addresses is to be given by Dr. William Gerry Morgan of Washington, D. C., president elect of the American Medical association. Dr. Morgan will speak on the relations of federal, state and local governments to the maintenance of hospitals.

After the congress has been opened the members will split up into groups to consider specific topics.

One of the most important questions, it is stated, has to do with physical therapy—the employment of physical agents such as electricity, heat, water and massage in the treatment and cure of disease.

Will Hear Leaders.

This branch of medicine has developed largely since it was first employed in the world war, and methods of employing it effectively will be discussed by Maj. Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, surgeon general of the United States army; Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of Northwestern university medical school; Dr. Nathaniel Allison, professor of orthopedic surgery at Harvard university, and Dr. John S. Coulter, assistant professor of physical therapy at Northwestern.

Radiology—the use of radium and the X-ray in the treatment of disease—a comparatively new subject, also is to be considered.

Fined $100 for Carrying Pint of Whisky in Pocket

Charles Allen of the Berkshire hotel, Ohio and Cass streets, was fined $100 by Judge Alfred Erickson in the Chicago avenue court yesterday on a charge of transporting whisky after he had been arrested in an automobile with a pint of liquor in his pocket.

Dr. Hugh Black, Noted as Writer; Preaches Today

The Rev. Dr. Hugh Black, professor of practical theology at Union Theological seminary, New York, widely known preacher and writer, will preach at Kenwood church, 46th street and Greenwood avenue, this morning.

LET US SHOW YOU THE GREATEST SELECTION OF MODELS, SIZES AND PRICES EVER OFFERED BY REO

NOW REO PRICES RANGE FROM $1195 TO $1945

YOU'VE always wanted a fine car...a car you could be really proud of...a car that would be good not for just a year or two, but for four years, five years, as long as you wanted to drive it.

Perhaps you had about made up your mind that such a car was a "later on" proposition. It isn't. Today, right now, that fine car is within your grasp. Today you can buy a Reo in the model you need, the body style you want, and the price range you can afford.

Now you can choose from the greatest selection of models ever offered by Reo. Now the Reo comes in three models and three sizes. Now Reo prices range from $1195 to $1945!

And Reo is a fine car that will stay fine. For Reo is good—really good—for 100,000 miles—with close to new-car performance, new-car smoothness, new-car thrill, of ownership all the way.

In fact, an independent investigation made a few years ago showed that Reo outlasts all other cars of American origin and manufacture—regardless of price. And since then Reo has incorporated in the Flying Cloud features which add immeasurably to its long life!

Reo Beauty, Too, Is Lasting Beauty

Yes, the Reo you buy today will be mechanically good for several years—and it will be good to look at for several years, too. Reo beauty is not the kind that fades, nor the kind that needs sweeping yearly body changes, with consequent heavy depreciation. Reo has the conservative beauty, the simplicity of line, that usually distinguishes only the highest-priced cars. Reo beauty lasts!

We are showing the enlarged Reo line this week. Come and see these cars. Drive a Reo, without incurring the slightest obligation. Come and be convinced that you now can own the fine car you have always wanted!

DRAWINGS SHOW TWO BUILDINGS OF FAIR GROUP

Picture Administration, Travel Structures.

(Pictures in rotogravure section.)

Drawings of the first two buildings to be constructed for the 1933 World's fair—one to house the administration and the other the travel and transport exhibits—have been received from New York, where they were made by Hugh Ferris, architectural renderer. The structures are to rise in Grant park, south of Soldiers' field. Ground for them is to be broken early in the spring, probably by April 1.

Terraces Face Lake.

There are two drawings of the Administration building. One shows a view of the main entrance hall of the structure. The other is a general view of the main façade of the building and shows its massive lines.

The Administration building will be located on the east side of the outer drive, with its great central hall facing the road between the Field museum and the stadium. On the lake side the structure will have three wings stepping down in terraces to the water's edge.

While the building, because of the terraces and the contour of the land, will be three stories on the lake side, it will be only two stories on the land side.

The Administration building will be 850 feet long.

Domes Mark Travel Building.

The Travel and Transport building, will be a great windowless steel structure with great domes. It is to rise on the lake front, extending from 31st to 36th streets.

The final plan for this massive structure, designed to house the triumphs of transportation, calls for a building 1,070 feet long with domes at either end 200 feet in diameter and 250 feet in height. The catenary, or suspension bridge system, will be used for the support of domes in a building for the first time in architectural history in this structure.

GREEN AND LABOR DISCUSS MENACE OF RACKETEERS

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor has been in New York for two days in constant consultation with representatives of local unions in almost every branch of industry, it became known today. Among other matters to which he has given attention is the menace to progress and efficiency of labor unions and the federation itself by the usurping of power in the unions by racketeers who graft on the members of the unions and the employers alike.

The police department in its war on racketeers has found that they have entered the union labor field and have taken unions away from the control of the working men who form their rank and file and then have gone into partnership with the bosses to defeat the real purposes of the organizations they are supposed to lead.

CHINA MASSES TROOPS TO CRUSH REBELS IN HONAN

Foe Hinders Advance by Blowing Up Bridges.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 15.—Gen Chiang Kai-shek, president of the Chinese Nationalist government, has mobilized one division consisting of two brigades of infantry and one of cavalry at Hsuchowfu, a junction point on the Tientsin, Pukow and Lunghai railway in the northern Kiangsu province, but it is not known here whether fighting has yet developed.

Shi Yu-shan, former Kuominchun general, who is stationed along the Lunghai railway in northern Anhwei and eastern Honan provinces, and who is defying the government, has blown up bridges in the vicinity of Kweiteh on the eastern border of Honan in order to prevent government troops from advancing into Honan.

Nationalists Conceal Attitude.

Aside from the statement that the government intends to suppress the rebellion of Shi Yu-shan and Han Fu-chu in Honan province, there is no indication of the government's attitude toward Yen Hsi-shan, governor of Shansi province, who recently telegraphed to President Chiang, advising their joint retirement as the key to peace in China.

President Chiang issued a long statement today giving the reasons for his refusal to retire, declaring that it is necessary for him to carry on the revolution. He declared that he could not shirk his duties and responsibilities until the reactionary elements were completely exterminated and the foundations of the Nationalist party and the government are firmly established.

Unshaken by Threats.

"I regard the present moment as a time for strenuous exertion, not retirement," President Chiang said. "I will continue to shoulder the responsibility of the government in the true revolutionary spirit. I am giving no thought to personal privileges or position, nor am I conscious of any danger to my life. I only know that I must carry out my duties. Whether I am right or wrong the public and posterity must pass judgment; but no amount of slander or threats of force can affect my determination to struggle for the revolution."

Thieves Poison Watchdog and Steal 150 Chickens

To balk the thieves who had been preying on his chicken flock, Stanley T. Foote, a poultry farmer of Half Day, in western Lake county, borrowed a collie watchdog on Friday afternoon. Yesterday morning when he went to feed the flock of 150 he found the collie dead of poison and the coop empty. Auto tire tracks in the fresh snow provided the only clew.

DRUG IS FATAL

MADELINE KAHN.

[Berne Photo.]

Miss Madeline Kahn, 18 year old teacher at the Farm school in Glenview, died yesterday in the Evanston hospital of an overdose of sleeping powders which she had taken before retiring on Friday night at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max S. Kahn, 1125 Gage road, Hubbard Woods. Miss Kahn was found unconscious in her bed yesterday morning when her mother went to wake her.

According to the girl's father, who is president of the McCarrie School of Mechanical Dentistry at 1338 South Michigan avenue, she had been under a doctor's care for several years for treatment of a nervous disorder and had been taking the drug to relieve insomnia. She complained of a severe headache on Friday night and apparently took a larger dose of the medicine than usual, Mr. Kahn said.

Hangar and Nine Planes Burn at Lansing Airport

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Loss estimated at $90,000 was caused here early today when the hangar of the Wolverine Flying Service, Inc., at the Lansing airport was destroyed by fire of unknown origin. Nine planes, four of them owned by the Wolverine company, were burned. Only one plane was insured.

HEAD STUFFED FROM CATARRH OR A COLD

Says Cream Applied in Nostrils Opens Air Passages Right Up

Instant relief—no waiting. Your clogged nostrils open right up; the air passages of your head clear and you can breathe freely. No more hawking, snuffling, blowing, headache, dryness. No struggling for breath at night; your cold or catarrh disappears.

Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from your druggist now. Apply a little of this fragrant, antiseptic, healing cream in your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage of the head, soothes the inflamed or swollen mucous membrane and relief comes instantly.

It's just fine. Don't stay stuffed-up with a cold or nasty catarrh.

WORLD COURT IS A WAR TRAP, LEWIS ASSERTS

Senate Candidate Opens Fire on Tribunal.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The world court as a peace agency is the great hoax of today's politics, in the opinion of James Hamilton Lewis, candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States senator. He maintains that adherence to the court would be more likely to plunge America into war than to preserve it in peace. The Monroe Doctrine and the exclusion of Asiatics, he declares, are imperiled.

Col. Lewis, as senator from Illinois from 1913 to 1919, was whip of the senate and closely associated with the Wilson administration. He declares that the world court is an effort to "inveigle Uncle Sam" into the league of nations under a disguised name.

Finds Motive Is Economic.

The motive lurking behind all the "grandiose professions of peace," as he views it, is economic and financial. His analysis is that Europe is seeking to entice America into the court in order to protect the markets, industries and commerce of foreign nations from the invasion and competition of America.

Mr. Lewis expects to make the court a leading issue in his campaigning. Senator Charles S. Deneen voted for the world court. Four years ago the vote of the late Senator William B. McKinley for the court was held largely responsible for his defeat by Frank L. Smith.

In the present Republican campaign Ruth Hanna McCormick is emphasizing the world court as a foremost vital issue. President Hoover having indicated he will submit the question of adherence to the senate.

In his office yesterday former Senator Lewis set forth his views on the court.

"You ask why I am opposed to the world court," he said. "I remind you that Sir Robert Murray wrote a book on his travels, in which he has a chapter entitled 'Rats in Iceland.' Underneath this he says, 'There are no rats in Iceland.'

"Similarly, I answer, 'There is no world court.' When the older governments under the Roman supervision of power sought to solve disputes between conquerors without military intervention a form of tribunal was suggested of kingly power, which styled itself the world court. But the word 'court' did not contemplate a court of justice such as sits in America and England guided by laws made by the people. The word 'court' meant a royal court, the princes of the realm as directed by the kings and their counselors. The present world court suggestion embodies a copy of this ancient undertaking.

Sees Monroe Doctrine Threatened.

"Yet some ask me to advocate that this be attached to America.

"The invasion of South and Central America in violation of our Monroe Doctrine and the dissolution of our theories of the exclusion of the orientals are the two principal things leveled at by the world court.

"Let me call to your attention that this world court was not in the minds of any one until after the world war. The league of nations inaugurated by the churches fifty years ago and continued until it shaped itself under the Wilson administration, was a convention of nations for the expressing of opinion upon the public question involved 'to awaken the conscience of mankind.'

Traces Rise of Court Idea.

"The suggestion of the world court came when it was seen that the league of nations, as changed into an agency of force, would not be adopted by America. The specious suggestion of a 'court' was used as an inducement to inveigle the United States into an organization or system which could accomplish under the name of a tribunal of 'justice' what the military tribunal of the amended league, which was to be supported by the army and navy of all members of the league, had failed to succeed with as to America.

"One contention is that this could make peace. We answer that the result would be to make war, not peace.

"We would be called into each conflict of these countries to cast our vote where we have no interest, no concern, but where the casting of the vote brings resentment upon us. Should we attempt to execute that vote in conjunction with the European countries we have war upon us.

15 Entombed in Mine 60 Hours Play Card Game

SAINT ETIENNE, France, Feb. 15.—[U.P.]—Fifteen miners, entombed in a tunnel at Haute Cappe, near here, by a fall of rock, played a never ending card game against death tonight while rescue workers dug frantically to reach them. After more than 60 hours, the miners were still entombed but were kept alive by fresh air pumped in through pipes. They responded to calls through a pipe by replying that they were playing a non-stop game of cards, betting on their chances of being rescued. New rock slides hindered the work of rescue and it was not expected that the entombed men would be reached before Sunday night.

BRIDGE NUISANCE 'INTOLERABLE' TO NEAR NORTH SIDE

Lawyer Sums Up Damages from Open Spans.

Antiquated bridge regulations choke traffic on the near north side and render working conditions almost intolerable in this growing new skyscraper district. Such is the finding of Attorney Benjamin F. Goldstein as the result of his study of the bridge problem which he is making as special counsel for the city and advisor to the council bridge committee.

Seeking aid for a solution of the problem the city submitted to the war department last summer an amended bridge ordinance, placing restrictions upon promiscuous bridge openings, but last month Secretary of War Hurley, following the recommendation of Maj. H. J. Wild, resident federal engineer, refused to grant an extension of the closed hours. The council is now endeavoring to obtain a reconsideration of this ruling.

Court Decision Favors City.

In his search of the statutes, Mr. Goldstein yesterday unearthed an opinion given by the United States Supreme court in 1883 which shows an early belief in the city's right to regulate its most vital problems. The ruling said:

"Illinois is more immediately affected by the bridges over the Chicago river and its branches than any other state—and nowhere could the power to control the bridges in Chicago, their construction, form, and strength, and the size of their draws, and the manner and times of using them, be better vested than with the state, or the authorities of the city upon whom it has devolved that duty."

"The difficulties which the city has encountered in the performance of this duty, which the Illinois legislature many years ago imposed upon it, are staggering," Mr. Goldstein said.

"Until recent years, that part of the Chicago river which is crossed by the loop bridges, formed the northern and western boundary or the central business district, bounded on the south by Roosevelt road and on the east by the lake. Although this district was slightly less than one mile square, there are few districts in the world which show a comparable density of population.

Huge Volume of Traffic.

"A recent survey showed that in the twelve hours from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m. of an average week day, 1,700,000 persons entered or left the district—more than 25 per cent of the city's population. In the same period, more than 500,000 vehicles entered or left the area.

"This concentration of traffic was further augmented by the 10,000 passengers transported daily through the district from one to another of the six passenger stations serving twenty-three railways, and by the traffic demands of the 30,000 transient guests occupying the twenty-five hotels in this district.

"To alleviate this intense congestion the city has spent millions. The Michigan avenue, Clark and La Salle street bridges represent a cost of $11,510,000; the Wabash bridge, now under construction, will cost $3,500,000; the outer drive bridge and its approaches, $5,750,000; and a new State street bridge to conform to war department demands, $3,500,000. These figures do not include the improvements on bridges west of the loop.

"Thus, a new area, replete with business towers, apartment hotels, clubs and other buildings, has grown up on the near north side and new capital poured into the district. The six banks on the near north side had checking accounts of $29,484,000 and savings accounts of $11,549,000 in 1929. More than 6,000 new apartment units, 6,000 new hotel rooms, and clubs with an aggregate membership of more than 20,000 brought thousands into the district.

Heavy Losses Incurred.

"With such an aggravated congestion, the bridge situation would be sufficiently serious in the loop if all the existing bridges were constantly available for use. But the antiquated regulations which block the traffic lanes over those costly bridges during rush hours render working conditions in the near north side district intolerable.

"This has led to a great turnover of labor in the newly developed area north of the loop and to large losses of time and wages by the laboring classes, and a still greater loss to vehicular traffic."

KILLED BY STREET CAR.

Thomas Kapantais, 65 years old, 1611 Barry avenue, was killed yesterday when struck by a street car while crossing Ashland avenue at Barry avenue on his way to work.

Woman to Face Charge of Sending Neighbor Poison

Mrs. Elizabeth Tessman will return to Watertown, Wis., to answer charges of attempting to poison Mrs. Elizabeth Beakin, a neighbor. She withdrew her plea for a writ of habeas corpus yesterday in Judge Otto Kerner's Criminal court and announced that she would make no further fight against extradition. It is alleged Mrs. Tessman sent a box of ice cream bars filed with strychnine to Mrs. Beakin after a back yard argument.

A&P ESTABLISHED 1859 WHERE ECONOMY RULES

NO longer do rounds of Pineapple come unescorted to the table. Hot and brown-tinted they form delectable members of a mixed grill. Peaches and Pears and Apricots are brought forth as delicious salads . . . . . even Peas and Tomatoes and Corn may lose their "canned" identity. All because of the new era of "can cookery!" . . . . With Columbia University as authority, the modern woman knows that cooking does not reduce the amount of Vitamin A or B, and that Vitamin C is not particularly sensitive to heat in the absence of oxygen. So she does not fear canned foods on the vitamin score . . . . Next, to make canned foods more appetizing. "Can cookery" has done that. The modern housewife reaches for a can . . . her kitchen pantry holds an ample supply of good canned fruits and vegetables. It's so much easier . . . and much more thrifty, having a well-stocked pantry. Her nearby A & P Food Store makes it possible for her to replenish at a saving by such offerings as these . . . COUNTY'S FOREST WAY TO BE SYLVAN MODEL OF BEAUTY

Broad Link for Preserves to Include Memorial.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chicago will have the finest scenic highway in the world if the plan adopted by Gen. Abel Davis' advisory committee for the forest preserve, and President Anton J. Cermak of the Cook county board of forest commissioners is carried out.

This comprises a driveway, to be called the Forest Way, which will extend from the forest preserves near Des Plaines on the north to Palos hills on the south, which in time will be flanked with trees comparable to those at the Villa d'Este at Tivoli, Berlin's famous Unter den Linden, or the Champs Elysées in Paris.

The Forest Way, designed to link the forest preserve areas of Cook county into a wooded unit, eventually will have a width of 660 feet. Its course width of the Midway between Washington and Jackson parks. Its course has been planned to retain as much tree growth as possible, and to provide for informal plantings of trees throughout its length.

Trails for Hikers.

Progress being made in connecting the various links in this unique circumscribing highway for Cook county has reached the point where earliest tree plantings may be provided. Hiking is to be encouraged by arrangements to reserve certain cabins or shelters as sites for overnight stops.

Similarity, bridle paths are to be provided so that there will be a continuous trail for those who ride horseback.

One section of the Forest Way has been singled out for the spotlight of the nation. It has been made a part of the more immediate yet far-reaching plan of the forest preserve commissioners and the advisory committee of citizens. As a fitting entrance to the Zoölogical park, near Riverside, and to the memory of Cook county's soldiers, First avenue from Roosevelt road to the park's gateway is to become a model avenue of tree planting.

This soldiers' section of the Forest Way will some day, in the plans of its sponsors, be pointed to by Chicagoland's millions with unusual pride. Six avenues of beautiful elms and maples will border in natural grace this thoroughfare dedicated to American bravery ond self-sacrifice.

A Lesson in Tree Planting.

While the entire spirit that will dominate the Forest Way is to be that of woodland planting and informality, the soldiers' section is particularly to demonstrate the intrinsic and artistic value of tree planting and care for our highways of the future.

It is the hope of those in charge of this unusual planting that a wide interest among Chicagoans be secured in this model highway development. To that end, provision is to be made for family, school, church, soldiers' organizations, and other groups to provide or to dedicate individual trees along its right of way.

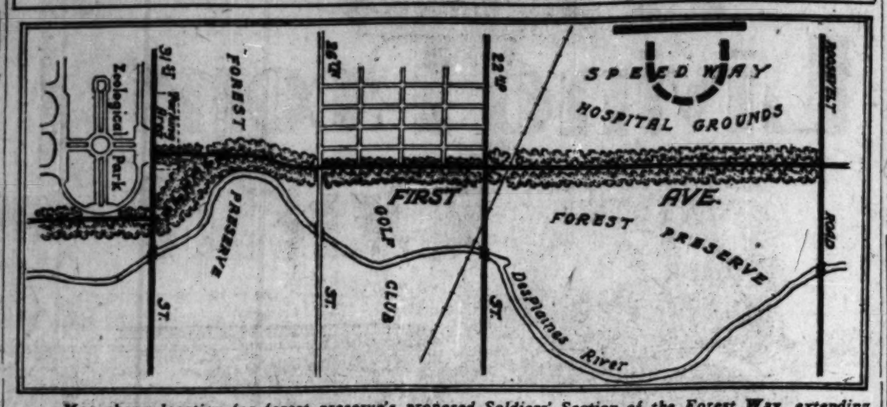
Commemorate War Heroes.

The soldiers' section, bordering the Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital on the east, is said to be peculiarly well located to commemorate wartime heroes. Part of the tree landscaping, in fact, is to be arranged through cooperation with the leaders of this great haven for disabled veterans. Living shafts of elm or maple or oak will be dedicated or sponsored on their behalf, should it be so desired.

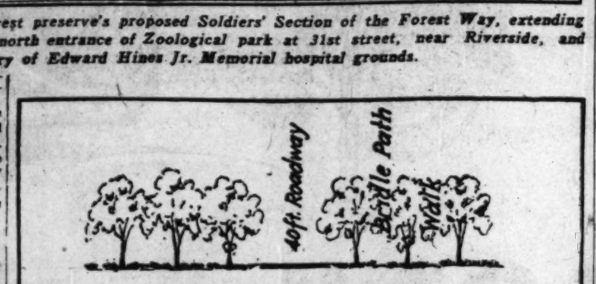
In addition to the outstanding beauty of the driveway itself, and the sacredness to come from its dedications, the soldiers' section of the Forest Way will form an imposing entrance for the thousands who will trek to the new Zoölogical park and its myriad attractions. Thus from Roosevelt road, from 22d street and 26th street and 31st street, new and convenient means of reaching this park are opened to its northern gateway.

Stress will be placed during the progress of this inspiring development on the lasting benefits of tree planting throughout the Chicago region. THE TRIBUNE plans to carry articles on the planting and care of trees for highway improvement.

Plan Tree Flanked Highway to Zoo Park Gates



Map shows location for forest preserve's proposed Soldiers' Section of the Forest Way, extending from Roosevelt road south to the north entrance of Zoological park at 31st street, near Riverside, and passing along the eastern boundary of Edward Hines Jr. Memorial hospital grounds.



Six avenues of trees will border this unique memorial drive, planned as one section of the Forest Way where pavement is needed to link forestated areas in the Cook county forest preserves. Provision is made, as shown in this sketch, for bridle and pedestrian paths, separated by tree rows from the pavement.

Tree Bordered Highway Promised Illinois Route 36

Quincy, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The first tree bordered state highway in Illinois will be a portion of route 36 from Quincy to the Pike county line, it was announced today. Louis L. Boyer, Adams county superintendent of highways, assisted by state engineers, will plant the trees. A gift of $5,000 from J. W. Gardner, philanthropist and president of the Gardner Denver company, has made the work possible.

OFFICIAL STATE HIGHWAY MAPS OF 1930 ISSUED

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Official state highway maps for 1930, brought up to date by the inclusion of the roads completed last year, have just come from the press and are ready for distribution at the office of the division of highways, it was announced here today. This year's map is an improvement over the one issued last year, it is asserted, in that it is somewhat smaller, and easier for the motorist to handle in the wind, though still as easily readable as the old style. On the back of the map, the division of highways has printed information, condensed for quick reference, concerning the state's highway system and the state parks.

Hughes, Now Chief Justice, Quits World Court Bench

GENEVA, Switzerland, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Notification of the resignation of Charles Evans Hughes from the world court, owing to his appointment as chief justice of the United States, was received by Sir Eric Drummond, the secretary general, today.

BROILING means HEALTH

Try this new

In-a-Drawer Broiler

Pulls in and out like a drawer
One hand—One motion

New invention removes all risk in broiling. Broiling compartment rolls out its full length. No burned hands. No bending or stooping.

Another marvelous new feature . . . .
Insulated Oven
—cuts gas bill in half
—assures cool kitchen

The Universal insulated oven cuts the amount of gas needed to heat the oven in half. It keeps the heat inside the oven where it belongs. Tests show that the average outside temperature of a Universal insulated oven is only 101.25 degrees. Compare this with the average outside temperature of 185 degrees for an uninsulated oven. Think of what this insulated oven will mean to you on hot, sultry summer days! This new Universal feature can be had for a small extra cost.

There is grave danger in eating too much fried food. Frying destroys much of the nutritive value in food; makes it hard to digest. Too much of it often causes indigestion, sallow complexions, moody dispositions.

This is why fried foods are never served in hospitals. Here where they know—they serve nourishing, easily digested BROILED foods.

And now a new discovery by Universal makes it as easy to broil as you formerly fried.

The new, patented Universal In-a-Drawer Broiler pulls in and out like a drawer—one hand—one motion. It moves on roller bearings. At a touch of the hand, the entire broiler rolls out into view.

All danger of burned hands or face has been eliminated. Steaks, chops and other broiling foods can be turned or removed without effort. Toast for the family can be made in a fraction of the time required by an electric toaster.

Think, too, of the added joy these healthful, palatable broiled foods will bring to your table. The juicy steaks that men love! The savory chops! All served in your home the same way as the world's greatest chefs cook them!

This big broiling improvement is but one of the many features in this famous porcelain enameled Universal. It contains all the features you have wanted in a range. Also you can have this new range with a new Insulated Oven at a small additional cost. This marvelous feature saves half of the oven gas and keeps the kitchen cool in summer.

Never before has a cast iron, porcelain enameled Universal In-a-Drawer Broiler Gas Range been offered at this amazingly low price. Volume production has resulted in savings which we are passing on to you.

Liberal terms

How much is it worth to be able to serve your family health-giving, appetizing broiled foods in the easiest way? Just a small amount down will place this new Universal Range in your home today. See it now on display in the store of the Universal dealer in your community—and you will have an entirely new conception of broiling. If you do not know the name of your Universal dealer, write us today for full information.

Wife Wins Her Divorce and Wedding Gift Auto

Mrs. Elsie Turner, 813 Dakin street, yesterday won a divorce and an automobile from her husband, Carl Turner, before Superior Judge Lewis. She testified that her husband gave her the automobile for a wedding present on the day of their marriage, March 2, 1929, and then took it for himself a few days later. She charged cruelty. The judge ordered return of the car and granted Mrs. Turner $700 and the household furniture.

CHEVROLET

SMOOTH . . . QUIET . . . POWERFUL

The minute you step on the accelerator of the new Chevrolet Six, you realize that Chevrolet has again introduced a new standard of performance into the low-price field.

You will notice, first of all, its smooth, silent flow of power. In every gear—at every speed—the refined 6-cylinder valve-in-head motor is unusually quiet and vibrationless. It has a new 48-pound crankshaft, new bronze-bushed pistons, and positive lubrication of all the bearings.

You will find smooth, stable roadability at every speed. Mile after mile—over good roads and bad—you glide along in uninterrupted comfort. The four long semi-elliptic springs are under the cushioned control of Lovejoy hydraulic shock absorbers!

You will discover even greater reserves of power. The car responds eagerly to the slightest touch of the throttle, sweeps you to the lead from a traffic stop, masters steep hills and sandy roads with energy to spare. The 6-cylinder, valve-in-head motor has been increased in capacity to 50 horsepower.

And, above all, you are sure to be surprised at the price. For, with all its extra quality—all its advancements and refinements—the new Chevrolet Six is offered at greatly reduced prices!

If you have not yet seen and driven this new Chevrolet Six—come in today.

RUPTURE

Don't submit to avoidable operations or the use of antiquated trusses, as they all set where the lump is and not where the opening is. The opening is seldom larger than a dime (no matter the size of the rupture), and all cases can be retained with the end of a lead pencil.

"The Spermatic Shield-Complex in combination with the Retainer-Simplex (Patent No. 747247 and other patents pending)—a scientific achievement in a highly specialized art. It will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case, infinitely superior to any instrument method or other procedure and producing results in no other way obtainable. All cases are secure a lifetime against further trouble or expense. Large or difficult cases or incisional rupture (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions, with distinguished personal patrons of all nations."

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A nine foot channel in the Mississippi between the mouth of the Missouri river and the Twin Cities now is in prospect.

In submitting a report on the project to congress today Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of engineers, accepted the feasibility of establishing a nine foot channel for the upper Mississippi, but recommends against final action by congress until after completion of a survey now in progress. This marked the first time the corps of engineers has ever gone on record in favor of an ultimate 9 foot waterway to the Twin Cities.

Prepare for Nine Feet.

Maj. Gen. Brown recommends that all permanent structures on the upper Mississippi river now under way as a part of the project to develop a six foot depth should be built with a view to being adopted without reconstruction or relocation to plans for an ultimate nine foot project.

"The improvement of the main stem of the Mississippi river between the Missouri river and St. Paul on a nine foot basis goes logically hand in hand with the recently completed nine foot project on the Ohio river and the ultimate opening of the Missouri river to the greatest feasible depths," Maj. Gen. Brown said in his letter of recommendation to Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley. "It is an essential part of the Mississippi valley system and part of the route from that system to the great lakes.

Greater Depth Required.

"Reliable and economical navigation is not practicable on a depth of less than six feet, but would be assured by a depth of nine feet. I believe that after completion of the survey now in progress complete and detailed plans for a nine foot project from the mouth of the Missouri to St. Paul and Minneapolis should be prepared and submitted to congress."

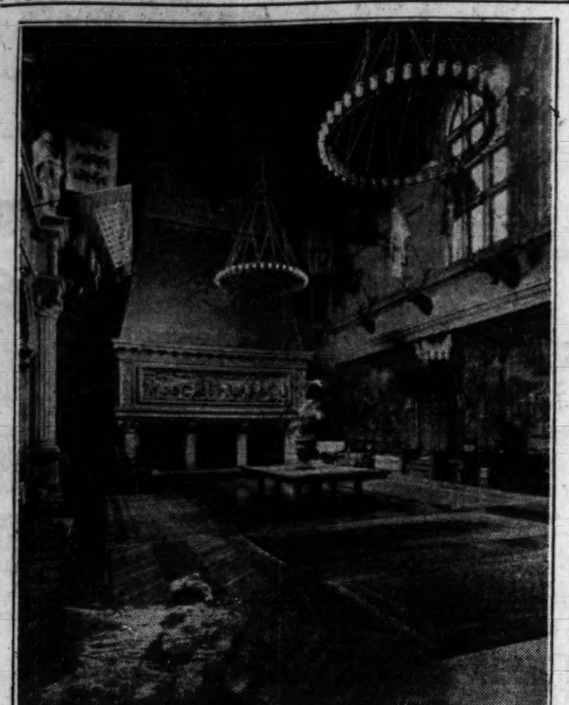
The special board which has been studying the nine foot project report recommends that congress authorize $50,000,000 for use in bettering conditions under the six foot project. The rivers and harbors board of the corps of engineers advises, however, that more details should be obtained before a definite decision for betterment of the existing project or for the development of a nine foot project.

The corps of engineers already has recommended that a nine foot channel be obtained in the Mississippi between Grafton, Ill., and the mouth of the Missouri river.

Joliet Magistrate's Son Held on Counterfeit Charge

Edward Nicholson, 37 years old, son of John J. Nicholson, Joliet police magistrate, was held in $5,000 bonds by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday pending a hearing on Feb. 21 on charges of possessing and passing counterfeit federal reserve notes. Held with Nicholson is Clyde Frazier, 27 years old, known as a minor booze racketeer in Joliet. John Tezak, alleged Joliet bootlegger, complained that Frazier paid for liquor with counterfeit money given the latter by Nicholson.

Famous Mansion Will Open to Public



The ancient Norman banquet hall of Biltmore house, Asheville, N. C., with its triple fireplace and five Gobelin tapestries which graced royalty's headquarters at the Field of the Cloth of Gold. Biltmore house, built 35 years ago by George W. Vanderbilt, will be opened to the public for the first time March 15. It contains millions of dollars in art treasures.

HULL ASSURES REDUCTION OF RIVER POLLUTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A substantial decrease in the sewage pollution of the Illinois river can be expected within the next few months, Representative William E. Hull [Rep., Ill.] assured Illinois valley residents today in a statement issued after conferences with Chicago and war department officials.

"I have recently been investigating what Chicago is doing in the way of sewage disposal," Mr. Hull said.

"I have made inquiries not only with the departments here in Washington, but also with the sanitary district of Chicago insisting on obtaining facts. As a result of these investigations, I am informed, a substantial decrease in the sewage pollution of the Illinois river is expected during the next few months.

"Extended operations of a second plant, together with additional measures looking toward the cleaning up of the river, will give the Illinois valley during the summer of 1930 its long awaited relief from existing objectionable conditions.

"It is declared that after July 1, next, Chicago's artificial sewage treatment program will reach the stage where purified wastes will be equivalent to those produced by a city of 1,400,000 inhabitants."

SUES BANK DIRECTORS.

Taylorville, Ill., Feb. 15.—[U.P.]—Suits were filed against the directors of the defunct John B. Colegrove State bank in the Christian County Circuit court here today by Robert G. Earley, receiver, and others. The suits seek to make the directors responsible for excess loans before the bank was declared insolvent.

Mother Kills Impudent Girl of 11 with Shotgun

McCook, Neb., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—A mother shot and killed her 11 year old daughter here today when the child became impudent. The mother, Mrs. Max Bender, used a shotgun to kill her daughter, Maxine. "I did it; I am to blame," she told authorities. Officers say she probably will be examined by the county sanity board.

ACOSTA JAILED FOR ABANDONING HIS 2 CHILDREN

Mineola, L. I., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Bert Acosta, who flew from Roosevelt field to Ver-sur-Mer, France, with Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd in 1927, was sentenced to six months in the county jail here today by County Judge Lewis J. Smith.

Acosta pleaded guilty three weeks ago to a charge of abandonment of his two children, Bertram Jr., 7, and Allyn, 5.

Acosta took his sentence calmly and remarked to Deputy Sheriff Charles Wood on ihs way to the jail that he "certainly couldn't support the family from the county jail."

STAGE BENEFIT FOR WORKERS IN PALESTINE

A benefit performance of the Federation of Jewish Workers in Palestine was held last night in the Lawndale theater, Crawford avenue and Roosevelt road. Theatrical stars of various nationalities took part in the show. The benefit was sponsored by the Chicago Jewish labor committee, which is pledged to raise $25,000 toward a national fund of $300,000 for the Palestine federation. The federation was organized 10 years ago to promote the welfare of Palestine's workers and develop the country's uncultivated lands.

FULL PLYMOUTH SIZE

NOT so long ago, low-priced motor cars had nothing whatever in common with high-priced cars. There was not even a basis for comparison between them.

Today, in the Improved Plymouth it is possible to secure in the lowest-priced field, a full-size measure of luxury, safety, spirited performance and trouble-free operation that completely banishes all the old drawbacks of owning a low-priced car.

See for yourself how completely the Improved Plymouth duplicates the refinements of high-priced cars—in its full-size bodies, rugged axles, deep, sturdy frame and strong, silent transmission.

Such a combination of features as the high-compression, high-performance motor, with full-pressure lubrication, live-rubber engine mountings, air cleaner, aluminum-alloy pistons and weatherproof four-wheel hydraulic brakes finds no counterpart except in high-priced cars.

To see and drive the Improved Plymouth is to know at first hand the highest advancement and greatest value in the low-cost field. Get your demonstration soon!

Results of Federation's Survey Announced.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Religious education is exerting influence on only about 35 per cent of the young people of Chicago, according to returns from the religious survey conducted by the Greater Chicago Annual Evangelism campaign under the sponsorship of the Chicago Church federation. The Rev. Dr. Asa S. Ferry, vice chairman of the executive committee of the campaign, in a report given yesterday afternoon, also found that church membership is about 50 per cent of what it could be if unified and intelligent efforts were made to get members.

Urges Use of Advertising.

Dr. Ferry urged churches to canvass their communities periodically and to use conservative advertising methods to overcome the spiritual inertia of the present day. Dr. Ferry's findings came as a result of a study of nearly 200,000 survey cards which have been gathered in all sections of the city during the last two weeks. It is expected that the number will reach 500,000 by the time all the canvassing groups have made fine returns, according to Dr. Ferry.

"Survey results from several districts of the city show a Protestant population aggregating 186,000 in these districts," said Dr. Ferry. "Of this number only 34,378 have religious instruction in church or Sunday school, while it is discovered that practically 100,000 do not. Thousands of children are being found who never go inside of a church or Sunday school from one year's end to another. They have no conception of God or of Christ except as they hear the name used in profanity."

Give Religious Picture.

Dr. Ferry declared that the survey points out that in the district recently examined—which represent only a small part of the metropolitan area but give a religious picture of the whole population—that there are 62,000 Protestants above 10 years of age with church preference but no membership.

Oil Boat Collides with Turkish Palace and Sinks It

CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey, Feb. 15.—(AP)—A curious addition was made to the long list of maritime catastrophes today through the collision of a Rumanian oil boat with a Turkish palace. Near the town of Kanlidja on the Asiatic shore of the Bosporus, the oil boat was caught in the swift current and crashed into Kadri Pasha's ancient wooden palace which was partly built over the water with such force that the palace tumbled down and was destroyed.

TEACHERS CAN DRAW BOTH PAY AND PENSIONS

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Teachers who have been retired on pensions may continue to draw their pensions and resume work as teachers, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom ruled here today.

According to State's Attorney Marion M. Hart of Benton, several teachers in Franklin county, after retirement, began teaching again and their pensions were stopped. They appealed to him and his request for a ruling by Carlstrom followed.

Carlstrom asserts the teachers' pension law fails to set any limit on the number of times teachers may retire and again begin teaching.

"In the absence of such statutory provision, it appears to me that the teacher who complies with the other provisions of the act, is entitled to the annuity regardless of the fact that he or she may retire and reënter the service again," he said.

Annual Event

Children of Lake Forest held their annual winter carnival in costume yesterday on the ice rink at Lake Forest community park. The affair, under auspices of the Lake Forest Winter club, attracted about 150 juvenile participants and several hundred parents as spectators. Among the prize winners were Edith Cowles, Dorothy Young, Betty Brooks, Durie Malcolm, Francis Manierre, Charles Holberg, Gordon Bell, and Andrew Armstrong.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15.—Quebec liquor commission, which a few weeks ago reported record sales of $27,007,430 for the year ended April 30, 1929, will pass that record this year, according to indications for the eight months ended Dec. 31, for which sales totaled $20,056,540. Sales are expected to exceed $30,000,000.

Sore Throats

Sore throat cases are all around us. Health authorities urge the utmost caution. The so-called "common sore throat" should be checked before the infection injures the nasal passages, or affects the hearing. Many cases of very serious illness have had their beginnings in a neglected sore throat. Physicians are advising a gargle made by crushing two tablets of Bayer Aspirin in four tablespoons of water. This brings quick comfort to the inflamed area, and reduces the infection. Take these tablets to relieve any cold, headaches, neuralgic pain. If you get genuine Bayer Aspirin it is perfectly harmless. The tablets should bear the Bayer cross.

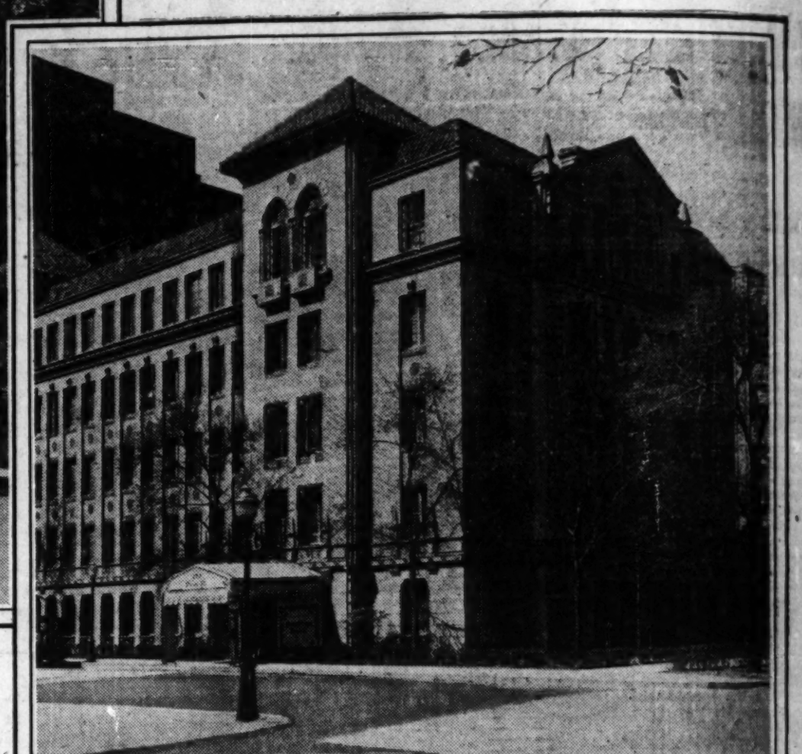
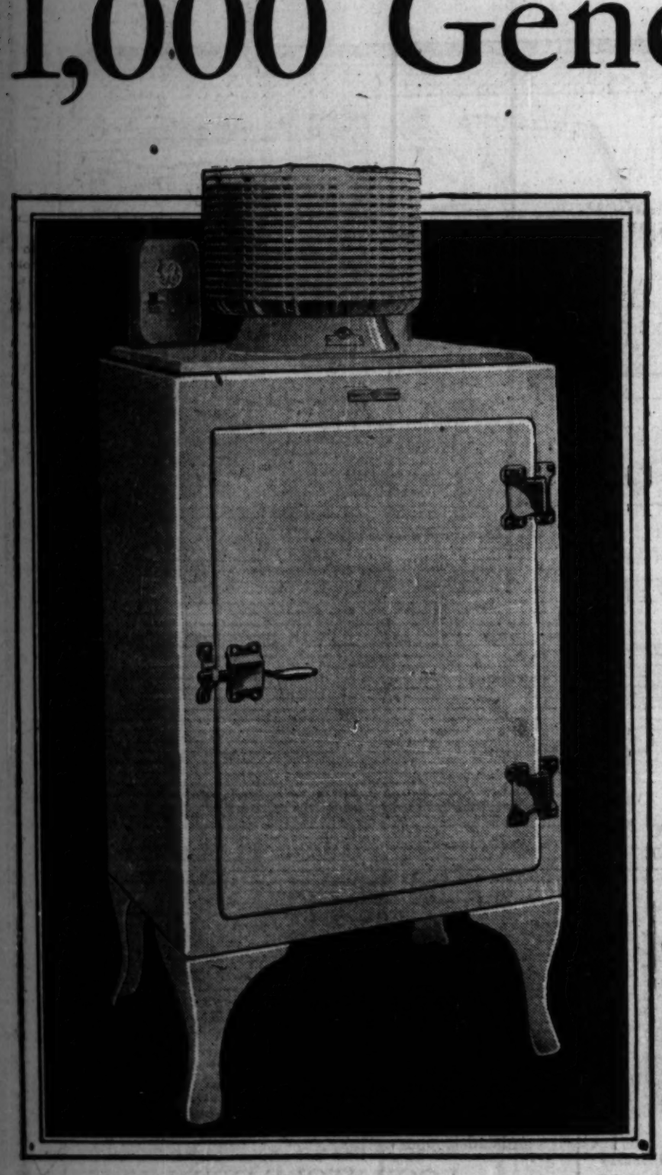
To Architects and Builders

When you are laying plans for apartments, may we send our apartment house specialist to your office to talk over your refrigeration requirements? He can prove the many advantages in providing for General Electric Refrigerators in your plans and budgets.



Every apartment of the Stoneleigh Court, Stone and Goethe Sts., Chicago, is equipped with individual General Electric Refrigerator.

Why we purchased over 1,000 General Electric Refrigerators



By Harry S. O'Neal,
President, Apartment Selection Service, Inc.
180 West Washington Street, Chicago

READ this letter from Mr. O'Neal. Here is evidence of a decision to standardize on General Electric Refrigerators, reached after years of actual experience with this and many other makes. The General Electric was selected because it gives the best service to the tenant at the lowest operating cost. These owners, like thousands of others in Chicago, have never paid one solitary cent for service for their General Electric Refrigerators.

Builders, building managers and owners are learning what a big difference it makes to apartment hunters when they discover apartments equipped with this most modern, convenient and economical refrigerator.

The General Electric is the refrigerator that is not merely incredibly quiet—but that will remain quiet—always. After you have lived in the apartment for years, you will find your General Electric Refrigerator as quiet as on the day you moved in. The General Electric is the refrigerator with the sanitary porcelain chilling chamber—absolutely protected against rust, dirt or impurities resulting from use by previous tenants.

The General Electric is the refrigerator with all moving parts permanently oiled and hermetically sealed—so dependable, so trouble-free, that of the hundreds of thousands of owners, not one has paid a cent for service!

No wonder General Electric Refrigerators are being selected as standard equipment for thousands of the finest apartments. No wonder apartment hunters are selecting apartments that display the sign "Equipped with General Electric Refrigerators!"

IN the past two years we have practically standardized on General Electric Refrigerators. We believe the General Electric more perfectly combines efficient refrigeration, economical operation and no maintenance cost. It is an electric refrigerator that satisfies every requirement of the tenant, and is an added attraction to any apartment. General Electric Refrigerators are unquestionably one of the many added features that have kept the buildings under our operation rented with better than 95% occupancy. Up to the present time we have installed over 1,000 of these refrigerators in Chicago.

PURDUE BATTLES OVERTIME TO BEAT OHIO

IT'LL BE CITY AGAINST COUNTRY IN GOLDEN GLOVE FINAL BOUTS

South Section Meet Opens Tomorrow; 300 Entries.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Whether the city bred boy or the boy reared in the rural districts is the better athlete will be determined in the Coliseum on Feb. 25, 26, 27, and 28, when the finals of THE TRIBUNE'S third annual amateur Golden Gloves boxing tournament are held.

The hundred boys who have learned to box in city gymnasiums will face a great number from cities and towns in Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, and Michigan. Boxers who will appear at the Coliseum are survivors of eliminations held not only in Chicago but in other places where managers have coöperated with THE TRIBUNE. Experienced boxers have been barred. Contestants at the Coliseum will be the flower of the amateur boxing talent. They already have had to put to the test, and now are making their final bid to earn a place on the Chicago team which will meet a New York in an intercity series of bouts at the Chicago Stadium on Feb. 19.

Bouts Should Be Superior.

The Chicago boxers may have more experience than the country club gloves are sure to fly during the four day tourney at the Coliseum. The sight will bring together semi-finalists. Each bout will be a real battle for the losers on the first two nights will be eliminated from further competition. Chicago fighters are to defend the local team which will meet a New York will be made up of 12 boxers. The out of town experts are just as certain they will beat the team. This rivalry assures hard fighting.

The sectional trials on the west and south sides have satisfied the fans that amateur bouts are more interesting than the professional. There was no pulling of punches. Boys went at it fighting, and, although some were hopelessly beaten, they protested to the referees when the arbiters stopped the uneven contests. They went from the first tap of the bell and there was action in every round.

Here's a Double Knockdown.

Everything that can happen in a boxing arena has taken place in the semi and north trials. Friday night at the Fronton, where the north sectional bouts were held, there was a double knockdown and both fighters went down for a four count. They landed solid rights to the jaw and hit the canvas. There were knockdowns, knockouts, and technical knockouts. Some fights had to go an extra round before the officials could determine the winners.

The third set of sectional trials will be held at the White City arena tonight and Tuesday night. This contest is open to all boxers living south of 22d street. Boxers from Chicago Heights, South Chicago, Roseland, Pullman, Kensington and Beverly, not to mention local talent, will show their wares. Nearly 300 boys, the largest entry received for any of the local trials, will compete. The first bout will start promptly at 7:30 each night and indications are that fighting will continue until the wee hours of the following morning. Contestants and officials must be on hand at or before 6 o'clock.

There are close to 200 boxers eligible for the Coliseum finals, the greatest tournament in the history of amateur boxing will result. In order to complete the program in four days it will be necessary to use two rings on each of the three opening nights. The rings will be placed close to each other, as only ten feet will separate them. A bell will be used to denote the opening and closing of rounds in one ropped ring and a horn in the other.

Bouts Programs at Coliseum.

Programs will be distributed free on entrance at the Coliseum. Each fighter will have a number opposite his name. Large cards with numbers of the bouts will be displayed in each corner of the ring so that spectators may know at all times who is fighting.

Winners of the first two places in each class at the Coliseum will compete in the Chicago team to meet New York. As soon as the local squad and substitutes are determined they will go into active training under direction of competent instructors and trainers. They will be compelled to go through a rigorous siege of preparation as the date of the internationals. They will be ordered to bed and work in the mornings, report at the gymnasiums in the afternoon, and to eat food prescribed by the trainers.

The team will be quartered at a local hotel where regular training quarters will be established.

Proceeds Go to War Veterans.

The profits of the Coliseum show will go to the Forty and Eight for the maintenance of its camp in the forest preserve for disabled world war veterans. Last year's proceeds amounted to $9,000 and the year before $9,000. This year's profits should be larger by reason of a year ago.

The branches of the service are going to make this year's tourney the best ever. American Legion night will be celebrated on Feb. 25, the closing night. Drum and bugle corps from all branches of the world war will be featured. Feb. 26 will be army night and the next will be navy night. On these nights ranking officers of these branches of the service will occupy boxes in the directors' box. The final night will be Chicago night. Judging from the way tickets are being sold, the Wabash avenue building will be filled to capacity of over 22,000. If every seat is sold the building will hold the largest crowd which ever has seen an indoor boxing show in the world.

Tickets for the Coliseum and Stadium shows are on sale at THE TRIBUNE'S public service office, 1 South Dearborn street. The prices are $1, $2, and $3, no tax.

Jim Weighs Only 111 Pounds, but He's Heavy Lover

South Bend, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—It takes two to make a romance in Mishawaka, the city which lately has been put on the platic map by James Lamberson, 18 year old Greek schoolboy bootblack, who will represent the South Bend News-Times in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE Golden Gloves tournament in Chicago Feb. 25, 26, 27 and 28.

MATHILDA VRANCKS.

When Jimmy won his sectional Golden Gloves medal, he wanted this statement engraved on the back: "Won by me for the sake of ——." And the girl has been found. She is Miss Mathilda Vrancks, 17, a Belgian miss, who is employed by the Mishawaka Rubber and Woolen Manufacturing company.

Miss Mathilda, or "Peaches," as Jimmies likes to call her, say that her threat to quit him if he lost in the South Bend meet for the Chicago tournament.

"You see the fellow who courts me has to be a champion and I think Jimmie has the stuff in him to lick those Chicago dudes."

Although Jimmie, who only weighs 111 pounds, may be a flyweight in the ring he's a heavyweight when it come to making love.

The manager of the White Palace barber shop, Mike Kouroube, has done away with the shower room and has cleared it out so that Jimmie can train when he isn't polishing shoes.

SHARPSHOOTING OF BRUINS BEATS PATERSON, 25-11

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—The Chicago Bruins defeated the Paterson Crescents here tonight, 25-11.

The Crescents scored first on a side shot by Borgmann and then they were halted for the next eighteen minutes, for the Bruins put on a shooting exhibition that completely halted the Silk city aggregation. Paterson never again threatened.

WISCONSIN WINS QUADRANGULAR MEET

Northwestern Takes Second; 3 Marks Fall

Elder Clips Record

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Jack Elder, flying football star from Notre Dame, bettered the world's record for sixty meters at the Crescent A. C. games here tonight, running the distance in seven seconds flat.

Elder's time clipped one-fifth of a second off the best previous indoor mark of 7 1-5 seconds, set in 1927 at Brooklyn by Bob McAllister, erstwhile "Flying Cop."

Elder's victory in the 60 meter event followed his triumph in a special 50 yard sprint a few minutes earlier.

Elder announced after his record-breaking sprint that he would compete in no more indoor meets this season.

BY HARLAND ROHM.

Taking three places in the shotput, high jump, and two mile run, Wisconsin won the seventh annual quadrangular track meet at Patten gymnasium last night with a total of 48 points. Northwestern, which sprang a surprise by running off with both the mile and two mile relays, finished second with 35 points. Ohio State was third with 27 points and Chicago fourth with 22 points.

Three meet records fell in the course of the ten events, the most impressive being Northwestern's two mile relay team, which cracked the old mark by nearly seven seconds. The Purple Wildcats took command at the starting gun and raced to a half lap victory.

Bill Rapp got off in front in the first 880 and finished a few yards in the lead. Ed McAuliffe increased the Purple's lead to 20 yards, Ted Burgess extended it to nearly a quarter of a lap, and Ralph Wolf, running last, raced around the ten-lap-to-the-mile track to win by half a lap. Their time was 8:7 7-10, displacing the record set by the Purple team of 1926 of 8:14 2-5.

Finish Hand in Hand.

Vernon Goldsworthy and John Follows of Wisconsin hit the tape hand in hand in the two mile run, eased up, but breaking the former record by three seconds. They took command half way through the race and with only John Steenis, a teammate who gave the Badgers the first three places, in sight near the finish, clasped hands to run a dead heat. Their time was 9:55 6-10, replacing the mark of 9:58 6-10 set by Baker of Ohio last year.

The third record to fall was in the shot put, when Sammy Behr, Wisconsin quarter back, pushed the brass ball 45 feet 10 inches. The former record, held by Herbert Schwarze of Wisconsin, was only an inch and a half less. Buck Weaver of Chicago, who has been doing better than 47 feet, had an off night and could only do 44 feet 4½ inches, which was good enough for second, while Gnaban and Sullivan gave the Badgers the next two places.

The expected duel between George Simpson of Ohio State and Norman Root of Chicago in the 40 yard dash didn't come off because Root was "left at the post" in the semi-final and failed to qualify. But Zack Ford, a blonde Northwestern sophomore, added the final upsetting touch by beating Simpson in both the semi-final and final. Root got off to a slow start and was three yards out of the race at the halfway mark but finished with a rush and was beaten by Hinke of Wisconsin and Lattman of Northwestern only by inches.

In the final the four men got off as one and after twenty yards Simpson was pumping his arms wildly to stay even with the flying Ford. They finished like a team with the 19 year old sophomore getting a foot decision over the Ohioan. The time was 4 6-10, one-tenth slower than Simpson's meet record, set last year.

Badgers Take Three Firsts.

Wisconsin took three firsts and scored in every event except the pole vault, in which Northwestern placed first, third and fourth. Tom Warne, the Purple star, won at 13 feet. In the high jump two Wisconsin men, Murphy and Shaw, cleared six feet to insure first and second places, and then decided to call it off and let the tie remain. Summaries:

40 YARD DASH—Won by Ford, Northwestern; Simpson, Ohio, second; Hinke, Wisconsin, third; Lattman, Northwestern, fourth. Time, :04.6.

40 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Won by Petersirlo, Ohio; Siese, Wisconsin, second; Brandt, Wisconsin, third; Van Dellin, Northwestern, fourth. Time, :05.4.

ONE MILE RUN—Won by Letts, Chicago; Hanover, Ohio, second; Thompson, Wisconsin, third; Schulze, Wisconsin, fourth. Time, 4:33.7.

SHOT PUT—Won by Behr, Wisconsin; Weaver, Chicago, second; Sullivan, Wisconsin, third; Gnabah, fourth. Winner's put 45 feet 10 inches [new meet record, breaks Schwarse's mark of 45 feet 8⅛.]

TWO MILE RELAY—Won by Northwestern [Rapp, McAuliffe, Burgess, Wolfe]; Chicago second; Ohio, third; Wisconsin, fourth. Time, 8:07.7. Breaks own meet record of 8:14.4.

POLE VAULT—Won by Warne, Northwestern; Mantz, Ohio, second; Lundberg, Northwestern, third; Van Dellin, Northwestern, fourth. Height, 13 feet.

TWO MILE RUN—Goldsworthy and Follows of Wisconsin tied for first; Stennis, Wisconsin, third; Harlacker, Chicago, fourth. Time, 9:55.6. [New meet record, former record held by Baker, Ohio, 9:58.6.]

40 YARD LOW HURDLES—Won by Root, Chicago; Brandt, Wisconsin, second; Petersirge, Ohio State, third; Black, Ohio, fourth. Time, :05.

HIGH JUMP—Shaw and Murphy of Wisconsin, tied for first; Butler, Ohio, third; Behr, Wisconsin, fourth. Height, 6 feet.

ONE MILE RELAY—Northwestern [Dixon, Wolf, Farrel, McAuliffe]; Wisconsin, second; Ohio, third; Chicago, fourth. Time, 3:32.6.

STRIDING TO VICTORY

Tom Warne of Northwestern, who won the pole vault in the meet, leaps 13 feet 4 inches in an exhibition jump to equal his own indoor record. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

The Belgian-American team of Gerard De Baets and Anthony Beckman won the six day bike race which ended last night with one hour of sprinting at the Chicago Stadium. Paul Brocardo and Alfonso Zucchetti, the French-Italian pair, were second, and Freddie Spencer and Charley Winter, the American combination, finished third.

De Baets and Beckman and Brocardo and Zucchetti were tied in mileage, but the former pair scored 580 points in the sprints against 165 for the latter. Spencer and Winter topped the second division and were two laps back. They counted 482 points. Other teams in this division were the French team of Marcel Guimbretiere and Henry Lemoine and the Chicago Frisco combination of Norman Hill and Hy Kockler.

Race Tame Until Sprints.

The final night of racing was a disappointment to the 8,000 fans. There was no jamming until the final hour. During the second sprint the real fireworks started. Belloni started the jamming and was followed by Spencer. After Spencer slowed down the field, Hill dashed out, and from them on there was a jam in every sprint.

The two leading teams went into the final hour two laps ahead of their nearest rivals. They watched each other like hawks. They also chased when dangerosu teams went out for laps. Beckman and De Baets rode well in all jams, while Tony piled up the points by winning sprints.

Two Spills Near End.

During the fourteenth sprint McNamara and Duelberg fell on the west turn. Both resumed racing after a short rest. Near the close of the event, Raes fell at the head of the back stretch. He mounted another bike and finished the race. Eleven of the fifteen teams which started the grind finished. The Italian-Irish team of Frank Delponte and Jack Sheehan was taken out of the race at 6 o'clock last night. They were nine laps behind.

The bike riders leave today for New York to compete in another six day grind in three weeks.

Former Badger Gridmen Face Robbery Charge

Ashland, Ky., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—James Correll and Guy E. Clipsell, St. Joseph county, Michigan, deputy sheriffs, left here this afternoon for Centerville, Mich., with Joe Kresky and Gene Rose, former University of Wisconsin football stars, and Peter Abraham in custody. The three youths are charged with the robbery of $3,000 worth of furs from a Centerville store on Jan. 28.

GENE ROSE.

The deputies identified the youths as those seen in Centerville at the time of the robbery. An anonymous letter from New York City started them on the trail which eventually led to the arrests here yesterday.

KRESKY'S PARENTS SHOCKED.

Marinette, Wis., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Kresky of this city, parents of Joe Kresky, who is under arrest in Kentucky, were amazed at the report about their son. They have retained Francis Murphy of Marinette to defend their son.

Wheaton Nips St. Ambrose in Last Seconds, 31 to 29

Wheaton college won its third game of the week at Wheaton last night by defeating St. Ambrose college of Davenport, Ia., 31-29. The game was won in the final seconds when Capt. DeYoung sank a field goal. J. McGill led the scoring with five baskets and four free throws. Lineup:

Brickies Play Carpenters Today in U. S. Cup Game

The Bricklayers soccer club today will clash with the Carpenters at Sparta field, 22d street and Kostner avenue, in the second round of the national challenge cup competition. The winner of this competition is recognized as the soccer champion of the United States.

Cleveland Loses Fourth in Row; All by Point Margin

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Cleveland lost its fourth game in four nights by one point here tonight, falling before the Rochester Centrals, 20 to 19. Rochester topped the visitors at half time, 12 to 3, but after running up a score of 10 to 0 on the champions, did not score for 21 minutes.

Valparaiso Cagers Beat Elmhurst College, 23 to 21

Trailing, 15 to 9, at the half, Elmhurst college Pirates staged an unsuccessful rally in the last half to lose, 23 to 21, to Valparaiso university on the Elmhurst floor. Seymour, Valpo center, scoring four field goals in the first half and two free throws in the last, was high scorer.

VACATION THOUGHTS.

FRIEND ARCHIE: Well, Archie, I don't know whether you knew it or not, but I wrote a note to Don just before he left for Florida and Cuba hoping he would have a good time and telling him how much good I thought the trip would do him and how I thought he would come back all pepped up and be able to do better work for the paper.

Of course, I thought that perhaps he would suggest I go and do likewise because I have not had my 1929 vacation either. Well, either he forgot to answer in the hurry of getting away or his reply was lost in all my Wake mail. I thought I ought to tell you about it because I'm not feeling very well. I'm terribly nervous. In fact, I'm on the point of a "nervous breakdown." I had one about this time last winter. My personal physician will sign a statement to that effect. We went to college together, and he'll sign almost anything for me, even a prescription.

So think it over, and tell me what you think I ought to do and whether you can spare me while Don's away, although he ought to be back soon now. I want to do whatever you say, but I've written to Frank Bruen and told him it would be all right if he mailed me a "courtesy" for the Miami race track to Melbourne Beach, Fla.

Perhaps, you never heard of Melbourne Beach. Well, it's not so large nor so very many people there, but it answers my purpose perfectly. You know my golf game is not so hot. That's all right. My kind of a golf course is just a mile north of Melbourne Beach at Indiatlantic. It's nine holes and measures 2,100 yards, and there are no water hazards. I might break 100 there.

Think it over and tell me what I ought to do. It's all right with me either way, but I've written Mrs. Wake I might be down soon. Really, I'm feeling terribly nervous and run down. See you tomorrow. Regards.

Dear Harvey: A fellow I know from out of town was to marry a Chicago girl and came here to get the marriage license. The cop on duty at the city hall wasn't going to let him park his car, but when my friend explained what he wanted the cop said, "O. K., but make it snappy."

Well, I just heard from the friend for the first time since, and he says marriage is fine, but he thinks Chicago policemen should be more strict regarding parking laws in the loop. Dave.

MURPHY'S SHOT TIES SCORE IN FINAL SECOND

Boilermakers Win, 27 to 25.

Columbus, O., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Ohio State threw a scare into Purdue's Big Ten conference leading basketball team here tonight before an extra period netted the Boilermakers victory, 27 to 25. It was Purdue's fifth conference triumph.

Until the last seconds of play, victory seemed secure for the Buckeyes. With two seconds to go, Wooden passed to Stretch Murphy, towering Purdue center, who dropped the ball into the net to knot the count at 22 all.

Murphy sank the first basket of the overtime, and Purdue led, 24 to 23. Evans' basket then tied the score. Hinchman shot a foul toss, but Wooden evened it with a free throw. A second later Wooden clinched victory for Purdue on a shot from under the basket.

Ohio State took a 3 to 2 lead at the start, but the Boilermakers soon hit their stride. They tied the score at 4 all, and the half ended 11 to 11.

Although losing, the Buckeyes had the satisfaction of quelling the aggressive Murphy. The trick was performed by Stewart and Capt. Fesler, who bottled him into comparative helplessness in the initial half. A record crowd of 5,700 witnessed the game. Lineup:

WISCONSIN, 29; N. U., 22

Madison, Wis., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Wisconsin's basketball team defeated Northwestern here tonight, 29 to 22, to retain second place in the western conference championship struggle.

Northwestern forced the score to a tie five times before Wisconsin broke away in the last ten minutes to pile up a substantial lead.

The Badger reserves defeated the Northwestern B team this afternoon, 13 to 9.

The varsity victory avenged a 23-14 setback handed to Wisconsin at Evanston last month. Capt. Bud Foster scored nine points while holding the rival leader, Rut Walter, to a field goal. Ed Chmielewski's dribbling and three baskets apiece by Farber and Matthusen also played a part in the Wisconsin victory.

Three Wildcats Star.

Northwestern's heroes were Lockhart, Mundy, and Riel. Lockhart secured a majority of rebounds under the basket and also came up the floor to lead the Wildcat scoring with nine points, tying Foster for individual honors. Mundy dropped in three baskets from midfloor and Riel scored with two sensational one hand push shots.

Northwestern led at the half, 11 to 10, and the teams matched basket for basket in the first ten minutes of the second half. Matthusen scored a long shot, but Bergheim's free throw tied it at 12 all. Foster's field goals were matched by Mundy's from the center circle. Lockhart put the Wildcats ahead with a follow shot, but Paul dribbled and tied the score again, 18-18.

Matthusen got another long one and Chmielewski caged a free throw. Lockhart's short shot again put Northwestern within one point, 21 to 20.

Farber, who had shot fruitlessly all night, then found the basket with two short shots and a free throw. Paul got a gift shot and then Farber came in again to score a field goal, 29-20, Lockhart's short basket ended the game.

Capt. Walter, who played on the free throw line and fed the ball to his mates, was ejected on personals with seven minutes to play. Lineup:

INDIANA HANDS CHICAGO SEVENTH DEFEAT, 28 TO 16

McCracken Leads Hoosiers with 12 Points.

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—In a listless battle here tonight Indiana won another conference victory, turning back Chicago, 28 to 16. This marked the seventh consecutive loss for Chicago.

The game had few thrills to keep the fans interested, with the exception of seeing Capt. Branch McCracken of Indiana cut through the Maroon defense to raise his total scoring for the year with 12 points on four field goals and four free throws.

Maroons' Defense Effective.

Chicago's block formation during the greater part of the game held down the Indiana scoring. The game was rather rough in spots, Chicago being checked with 12 fouls to eight for Indiana. Ashley, Maroon guard, went out on fouls after the first three minutes. Coach Everett Dean made a slight shift in the Crimson lineup when he started Bretz, a sophomore, in one of the forward positions. This marked his first appearance with Indiana, but he turned in a good game.

Veller played well for Indiana at floor guard while Capt. Changnon, and Fish were best for the Maroons.

Stephenson opened the scoring for Chicago with two free throws on McCracken's foul. McCracken and Zeller tied it with free throws. Changnon connected for the first field goal of the game after five minutes had passed. Stephenson repeated and Chicago lead, 8 to 4. Gill scored a long shot for Indiana, but Fish came back with another. Strickland and Zeller counted to tie the score at 10 all.

McCracken Scores Easily.

Chicago guards were caught asleep and Zeller passed to McCracken under the goal for an easy basket. McCracken added another goal, just before the half ended with Indiana leading, 14 to 10.

Changnon started the second period scoring with a side shot. Three free throws by McCracken and Veller gave Indiana the lead, 17 to 12. McCracken went under for a fast underbasket shot and Strickland followed with a side shot. Stephenson and Boelser brought the Chicago score up with two field goals.

Strickland and McCracken scored again to give Indiana a 25 to 15 lead. From then on the contest was a matter of waiting for the gun. Indiana made good 10 out of 13 tries from the foul line, while Chicago counted 6 out of 11. Lineups:

ILLINOIS, 26; MINNESOTA, 22

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Illinois defeated Minnesota, 26 to 22, tonight in a game which started slowly but developed into an exciting struggle in the closing minutes when the Gophers, with two minutes to play, needed only one point to tie.

Babe Kamp's one handed shot from the side of the floor and a free toss by Mills turned back Minnesota. The Gophers, who defeated Illinois a week ago, played high grade basketball and appeared to the Illini to be one of the best teams they have met this season.

Chuck Harper led the Illinois attack with 13 points, four baskets, and five free throws. Schoening and Bondy were leaders in the Gopher offense. Norgaard and Karsner of Minnesota and May of Illinois were exiled from the game with four personal fouls each. Lineup.

NOBODY'S BUSINESS

by Westbrook Pegler

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Journeying across a wide stretch of the U. S. en route to the slapstick solemnities of the heavyweight elimination bouts in Miami, I became aware that Virginia, both of the Carolinas, and a part of Georgia constitute a sort of barren land of professional sport in which the succeeding generations of life manage to struggle along without the diverting services of prize fighters, wrestlers, six day bike riders, and the horse people.

A strange quiet pervades the life about town in the towns and the local matter in the limited space of the sport pages of the newspapers picked up along the way was mostly concerned with high school and college basketball competitions and talk of the college football teams, last year's and those to come next fall. There are some minor league ball clubs along the route, supported by subsidies raised by the leading grocers, garage keepers, and other local giants of commerce.

Restless Nomad Drops Off to Pick Up Money.

Now and again some restless nomad of the prize fight industry like Broadway Johnny Cox will drop off a day coach attended by a fighter with a quilted ear, like Farmer Joe Cooper, to drum up a momentary ballyhoo, produce a slashing contest in the lodge meeting hall, and pick up a few hundred dollars of reluctant southern money. But, in general, the interest in matters which seem so vital to the people of the big cities in the north and west is distant, and although the papers print much syndicate matter by writers who are strangers to me, but who dash off their opinions with evident authority on major league fighters and players, it is apparent that the southern citizen in this reach of territory is no customer.

He reads of Jack Sharkey, Fainting Phil Scott, and Herr Schmeling; he learns that Babe Ruth is bickering with his employers about the difference between $140,000 for two years and $225,000 for three years, and he may see by a small item that the Illinois prize fight commission has barred the heavyweight wrestlers for stalling, but all such matters leave him well poised, because they never will get any of his money, anyway, or, at the most, not much.

Make Life Miserable for New York Brokers.

Virginia is one of the few states still adhering to the old notion, now suspended by special acts of the legislatures in most other commonwealths of the union, that prize fighting, like grand larceny, should be indictable. Under the law, even the prize fight customer may be indicted as an accessory to an act against the peace and dignity of the state, and while I am not familiar with the law regarding horse races, I apprehend that a wager on the results of the same is contrary to local morals.

A few years ago a hopeful band of those redoubtable optimists, the sport promoters, undertook to run a horse meeting in Richmond, and while the locals seemed tolerant enough toward the horses, they made life miserable indeed for a small group of New York bookmakers who had been lured down from New York to provide the machinery of change. So the bookmakers fled the historic charm and dignity of the old dominion in great haste and the customers, unable to back their opinions, ceased to patronize the track. The upshot of it all was that the horse people straddled their own steeds and rode them back up to Maryland.

A Carolina sport editor wistfully told of the days nearly 20 years ago when there was racing at a park in Charleston and faro was a familiar activity in the commerce of the town under the sanction of a governor who seems to have been the last southern governor with the courage of his inclinations and his thirst. But this country is dotted with abandoned race tracks, and Palmetto Park in Charleston, if it still exists, has not heard the roar of the crowd as the horses came down the stretch since this sportive statesman went on to perform greater works in the senate at Washington.

Stribling Specializes In Abuse of Bums.

Willie Stribling has given demonstrations of his unique art in several communities in this reach of country, including Charleston, but William, like Primo Carnera, has specialized in the abuse of the most lugubrious bums to be found in all this land, and even the inexperienced way station customers along this route have suspected that all was not always strictly competitive between him and his opponents. One cannot realize what deplorable bums there are to be found in the tall grass until one inspects the records of the Stribling chap and Carnera.

"Stribling," this sport editor said, "has spoiled all our little prize fight towns down this way. He picks on some poor old guy or some hungry young tramp and scores a knockout inside of three rounds. Then he and his family all hop into their trucks and flivvers and roll away to keep another date, maybe a hundred miles off, while the town council of the last stop, in a mood of great indignation, gets up a law to put everybody in jail for a minimum of 60 days the next time there is a fight show.

The citizens of this long reach between Washington and Jacksonville are not only ignorant of the rivalries of Sonnenberg and Schikat in the wrestling business, Sharkey and Schmeling in the prize fight trade, and of the various professional amateurs of tennis, but they show no desire to familiarize themselves at first hand. It is a strange area, very backward in all these cultural matters and very determined not to progress.

KANSAS AGGIES HEAR AUBURN SEEKS M'MILLAN

Manhattan, Kas., Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Close friends of Bo McMillan, football mentor of Kansas Agricultural college here and former Center college wizard, expressed confidence tonight that he would spurn any offers which would lure him from the college this year. This was in reply to rumors that Alabama Poly at Augurn was seeking Bo's services.

Associates here said McMillan had prospects for a brilliant eleven next fall and felt sure he would remain at least another year. They said they understood the Alabama offer had been made, but McMillan denied any knowledge of the matter.

THOMA 19 PINS AHEAD OF STEIN IN FIRST SERIES

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Sykes Thoma of Chicago gained a 19 pin lead over Otto Stein Jr. of St. Louis here tonight in the first ten games of their bowling match. Thoma toppled 2,109 pins and Stein 2,090.

Thoma took the lead in the opening game and held it throughout the match. At the end of eight games he was leading by 127 pins, but Stein came back with a 298 in the ninth game and 211 in the tenth.

Stein's 298 game gave the gallery a thrill, for he had 11 consecutive strikes. His twelfth ball for a perfect count was heavy, and the 4-7 pins stood.

The second and third blocks will be rolled here tomorrow afternoon and evening. The final three blocks are scheduled in St. Louis next Friday, Saturday, and Sunday nights.

PIRATES BALK AS GRIMES DEMANDS 2 YEAR CONTRACT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 15.—(AP)—A demand for a two year contract by Burleigh Grimes, holdout hurler from the Pittsburgh Pirates, was divulged today by Sam Dreyfuss, club official, as the reason for the impassé in negotiations at several conferences during the last week. Grimes left for his Minevra, O., home yesterday.

The club, Dreyfuss said, is opposed to anything but a one year contract, adding that it had been found on many years ago that long time contracts are bad for both parties concerned."

SOX START FOR SPRING QUARTERS AT SAN ANTONIO

Bush Plans to Hold First Drill Tomorrow.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The thirty-first annual spring training pilgrimage of the White Sox got under way yesterday noon. There were only five athletes, a manager, and a coach to give the departure a baseball flavor, but the limited delegation starting from here is going to grow so speedily that by tomorrow morning when Boss Bush sounds assembly for the first time at San Antonio there will be nineteen ball players of assorted shapes and capabilities on the conditioning lot.

The exact location of this conditioning lot will not be definitely known until Bush looks over the situation tonight or tomorrow. When he piloted his little band of performers, augmented by officials and friends, out of here yesterday he was still giving more than ordinary thought to the possibilities of not finding things as pictured in advance. He was hoping the St. Mary's college field would be workable, but in the event it is not he will try to share the field reserved for the Giants. If this isn't practicable it may be necessary to move to another town.

Hurlers To Limber Up.

The nature of the work Bush intends to inaugurate tomorrow, granting that he finds a piece of ground suitable for the purpose, is not going to be of a newsy variety. It will be nothing more than throwing for the pitching hurlers of the squad. This will continue for about a week, by which time some of the fellows may find physically able to attempt curving and speed balling.

There will be only one workout a day for the hurlers, but after the regulars arrive on the job the program will be switched to a two per day show. The entire affair from start to finish will be conducted on a business basis if Bush has his way. This may be rather annoying for some of the boys who took last year's training jaunt as a pleasure expedition, but they'll soon find the new boss isn't quite as easy a taskmaster as was his banished predecessor, Lena Blackburne.

Shires Still Unsigned.

Whether Bush's efforts to get things going in such fashion as will assure to Sox a better position in their 1930 career will be hampered by holdouts will not be known until discovery is made that athletes are missing. So far the club officials have made no mention of signed or unsigned contracts except in the case of Arthur Shires.

Shires now has his document and of the amount named therein meets with fancy he won't be long in letting the world know it. His original demand was for $25,000, which he knew he wouldn't get. Since then he has been knocking off a thousand a day and probably will jump at anything over $10,000. Last season he was supposed to have drawn down $6,000, minus what he lost by suspensions.

The Cubs will begin to break into the prints on a large scale tomorrow. The men billed for shipment from here to Catalina island Tuesday have been notified to report a day in advance and live at the club's expense. Manager McCarthy also will arrive Monday morning.

Sharkey Cooledge, club house boy, stands next to Cissell. In the center, with his hands in his overcoat pockets, is Ed Walsh Jr., and, peering over Walsh's right shoulder, is Bob Weiland, another of the Sox pitchers. U. S. NET CHIEFS VOTE FOR OPEN TOURNAMENTS

Louis Dailey of New York Chosen President.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The United States Lawn Tennis association at its annual meeting today voted in favor of open competition between amateurs and professionals, elected as president Louis B. Dailey of New York and ranked William T. Tilden II. first in the national list for the tenth consecutive year.

Agenda for the annual session, prepared carefully in advance by a session of the executive committee and other committees, permitted completion of business in a harmonious meeting of slightly more than three hours.

Providing the International Tennis federation at its meeting in Paris, March 21, approves of open competition, the first annual United States tournament will be held either the week of Sept. 15 or 22 at the Germantown Cricket club, Germantown, Pa.

New York was selected for the 50th annual meeting in 1931, at which time the golden jubilee of the association will be celebrated. The meeting also approved of a mail vote by the executive committee on resolutions.

Having provided, early in the meeting, for the creation of the office of second vice president, James C. Stewart of Chicago, the nominee for secretary, was elected to the position and Joseph W. Ivy of Kansas City named as secretary. Louis J. Carruthers of New York was named vice president and Donald M. Hill of Waban, Mass., treasurer.

Samuel H. Collom, retiring president from Philadelphia, was named to the executive committee to serve for one year, along with George T. Adee, Jones W. Mersereau, Julian S. Myrick, and Henry W. Slocum, all of New York, and Dwight W. Davis, governor general of the Philippines. Davis was named as an honorary gesture for his promotion of tennis.

Mrs. Frederick S. Moody, the former Helen Wills of Berkeley, Cal., was again ranked No. 1 in women's national singles, and Julian Myrick announced she would compete against England in Wightman cup competition.

Favor Close Expense Check.

The annual meeting went on record as favoring a stricter check on expense accounts; voted to return $20,000 from the national association treasury to sectional associations for tennis promotion, $10,000 at once, and voted to hold the entry list to the national veterans singles championships to 64 players to expedite the running off of the tournament.

The West Side Tennis club of Forest Hills, N. Y., was awarded the women's national championships for the week of Aug. 18, and the men's national singles and veterans singles for the week of Sept. 6. Other tournament awards:

National intercollegiates, Merion Cricket club, Philadelphia, week of June 23.

National clay courts championships to Missouri Valley Tennis association, probably the Rockhill Tennis club, Kansas City, week of July 7 or 14.

Culver Gets Meet.

National public parks tournament to Washington, D. C., week of Aug. 18 [including women's events for first time].

National doubles championships [men] to Longwood Cricket club, Chestnut Hill, Mass., week of Aug. 25.

National girls' championships [singles and doubles] to Philadelphia Cricket club, week of Sept. 2.

National girls' hard court championships, to California Tennis association, place and date to be decided by California, but date to be some time in September.

National junior and boys' indoor championships, to Seventh Regiment armory, New York, week of Dec. 26.

Baseball Worth Remembering: Old Red Faber to the Rescue

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

(This is the seventh of a series on interesting baseball events of the past.)

When old Red Faber finally quits pitching, he can look back at quite a record. He has a two hit win to his credit and at the age of 40 years he turned in his second one hit triumph. He has won three games in one world's series. He went through unsullied in baseball's biggest scandal, and there are dozens of other things that might be mentioned. But close to the top of the list must be placed his rescue act in a game that went through nineteen grueling innings at Cleveland June 24, 1915, before the White Sox whipped the Indians by 5 to 4.

Faber entered this struggle in the home ninth, just after the Sox had avoided defeat by scoring once to tie the count at 4 and 4. He had been preceded by Jim Scott, who worked seven innings and allowed two runs, and Eddie Cicotte, who was nicked for a pair of runs in the eighth.

For a moment in the ninth Faber seemed destined to fall down on his assignment. He filled the bases, but pulled through without the deciding run going across. Then he settled down to ten more scoreless rounds that were almost monotonous because of his effectiveness. When he had completed his string of eleven runless chapters, only four hits—two of them scratchy—had been made against him, and he had retired nine men on strikes.

Faber Pitches Way Out of Trouble.

There was only one lapse in his performance after the ninth. In the nineteenth round, with the Sox already in possession of what proved the winning tally, Steve O'Neill singled with one out. Wamby ran for him and took second on a wild pitch. Billy Southworth, manager of the Cardinals last season, batted for Guy Morton, who had taken up Cleveland's pitching burden in the ninth, and walked. Both runners moved up on Leibold's infield out. A single meant the ball game, but Turner grounded to Weaver at short, and the fight was over.

Stranger than the game itself was what fate later dealt out to some of the participants. Here are a few:

Joe Jackson, who played first base for Cleveland, was traded to the Sox a year later. He was swept out of baseball in the 1920 exposure, along with Felsch, Weaver, and Cicotte, who were in the Sox lineup this day.

Elmer Smith, right fielder for the Indians, achieved lasting fame by hitting a homer with the bases filled in the world series of 1920 and then faded from the majors.

Ray Chapman, Cleveland shortstop, was killed during the 1920 campaign when a "bean" ball thrown by Carl Mays struck him on the side of the head in a battle between the Indians and Yanks at the Polo grounds.

Three men in the Sox lineup made three hits each that day. They were Eddie Collins, Ray Schalk, and Lena Blackburne. These three became Sox managers in the same order in which they batted. They were fired in the same order.

E. Collins' Wild Throw Gives Cleveland Lead.

The Indians got the jump on Scott in this game because Eddie Collins made a bad throw trying for a forced play at second in the first inning. Two runs resulted. The Sox then went seven innings without being able to score on Willie Mitchell. In the eighth they jumped on him for three runs. Blackburne singled, Scott fouled out; Felsch doubled, and a single by Weaver scored "Lena." Eddie Collins then tripled to far left, scoring Felsch and Weaver.

Cleveland went back into the lead in the home half against Cicotte. Two scored on a double by Chapman and singles by Jackson and Graney. Then the Sox tied it in the ninth by counting once after filling the bases with none dead. Morton came in to stop this rally. The fight then waged until the nineteenth, when with two out Weaver singled for his fifth hit of the day and was driven home with the winning run on a double by Eddie Collins. Score:

Bobby Jones Ties His Lowest Score on Atlanta Links

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Not that there is any doubt about it, but Bobby Jones still swings a wicked driver.

He equalled the best score he ever made on the treacherous East Lake course yesterday by turning in a 63, nine under par. A piece of gravel on the green of the eighteenth hole robbed him of a new course record. His putt was headed directly for the cup when it struck the gravel and rolled to one side. He shot a 30 on the out nine.

Bobby profited by winter rules of the East Lake course, which put the shorter tees into play, but this advantage was offset by the condition of the greens, which were rough from the freezing weather earlier in the winter.

Babe Refuses to Let Salary Worry Him

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—If the highest salaried holdout in baseball is worried about the situation in any respect he did not manifest it today in the course of an 18 hole tour of the Jungle club links.

The Babe is more concerned over a tendency to push his wood shots with a new set of clubs he obtained from a Miami beach professional than he is, apparently, over the failure to sign a contract yet with the New York Yankees for 1930.

It is doubtful whether the middle of February ever has found Babe Ruth in any better physical condition than he is today.

Babe in Shape.

He is tanned to an olive brown shade by the Florida sun and plays at least 18, usually 36 holes of golf daily; his waist line is reduced to no more than a 40, possibly a slyph-like 38; his weight is around 222, three pounds less than it was when he started training at this time in 1928 and eight pounds under the figure that this correspondent's chart shows for the year 1926.

"When do you expect to be swinging a bat for the first time?" the Babe was asked.

"March third," he shot back.

That is the date when the Yankees will romp out for their first workout under the new management of Bob Shawkey.

Solution Is Expected.

It is the general belief that contract difficulties or no contract difficulties Babe Ruth will be taking his regular turn at bat for the New York club again.

So far as the contract business is concerned, the most celebrated of all holdouts prefers not to go into any further details or discussion.

"I have had my say on the subject," observed the Babe today. "I don't want to discuss the situation, except to say that I expect to play baseball. You can draw your own conclusions from that. The New York club has always treated me fair and I think we will continue to get along all right."

5 TIE FOR LEAD IN TRAP SHOOT AT KANSAS CITY

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Five gunners were tied for the lead with perfect scores after the first forty shots in the international flyer championship race had been fired today in the twenty-sixth annual interstate trapshooting tournament here. The forty entrants from throughout the nation will toe the marks again tomorrow for forty shots each and Monday for the final round of 20 in the 100 flyer event closing the meet.

Tied for the leadership are C. B. Franz and B. M. Crawford, both of St. Louis; Mark Arie, Champaign, Ill.; Charley Etchen, Coffeyville, Kan.; and Fred Ludington, Wauwatosa, Wis.

Three gunners missed only once and had scores of 39. They are E. J. Boenker, St. Charles, Mo.; Peter Baggerman, St. Louis, and Frank Hughes, Chicago.

Sam Jenny, Highland, Ill.; E. W. Renfro, Dell, Mont.; Frank Etchen, Independence, Kan., and G. A. Schulz, Sheridan, Wyo., tied at 38.

SCHMELING SAYS HE'S WILLING FOR N. Y. TITLE BOUT

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—With a stately gesture of forgiveness toward the New York state athletic commission, Max Schmeling announced himself today as ready and willing to furnish one-half of the competition for the world's heavyweight championship in the ring at the Polo grounds next June.

Der Maxie, hibernating in Germany since his victory over Paulino Uzcudun and the bitter quarrels with the commission that followed the fight here last June, ushered himself back into the picture in a cablegram to William Muldoon, aged cauliflower king. Max agreed with Muldoon's oft published statements that the winner of the Jack Sharkey-Phil Scott tussle in Miami should fight him for the crown vacated by Gene Tunney. He said he would meet the designated gladiator at the milk fund show, now scheduled for June 27 at the Polo grounds.

KIMBALL SETS WORLD MARK FOR 25 MILE DOG DERBY

Ogden, Utah, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Driving for a part of the distance over bare pavement, Earl Kimball of Reno, Nev., today made what was announced as a new world's record for 25 miles when he won the first day's heat of the Wasatch dog Derby in one hour, 33 minutes, and eight seconds.

The world's record was said to have been set by Bill Trude in the American Derby at Ashton, Idaho, in 1926, when he covered the distance in 1 hour, 55 minutes, and 35 seconds. The course today was measured as 25.2 miles.

Delbert Groom, Sacramento, Cal., was second in today's race in 1:57:02, and Thula Geelan, representing San Francisco, the only woman driver, came in third in 1:59:41. The second 25 mile heat will be run tomorrow.

SONJA HENIE TO APPEAR AT STADIUM FEB. 28

Sonja Henie, world's champion figure skater, will appear in an exhibition sponsored by the Norwegian American Athletic association at the Stadium Feb. 28, instead of March 1. She is due to arrive Feb. 24.

The little Norwegian girl who, although only 17, has won four consecutive world's championships, will repeat the maneuvers which won her the world title in Madison Square Garden recently.

Game Ends, 9-9; Fifth Overtime, 14-14; Cagers Quit

Harrisburg, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Two high school basketball quintets here are wondering how to settle their debate. Harrisburg high school, of the Big Seven conference, encountered Galatia of the Little Egyptain conference today. The regulation period ended with the score 9 to 9.

They played two overtime periods, but the score remained the same. After another extra period it was 12 to 12. The score was 14 to 14 at the end of the fifth overtime period, and everybody agreed on going home.

ELGIN MILITARY ACADEMY BEATS ONARGA, 29 TO 20

Elgin, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Elgin academy defeated Onarga Military academy team tonight, 29 to 20, in a rather listless game at Onarga. McNerney and Duvall starred for Elgin while Bailey showed best for the losers. By virtue of this victory, Elgin retains secord place in the midwest prep conference.

POLOISTS BEGIN TO FILE ENTRIES FOR MEET HERE

Canadian Golf Association Votes Against Larger Ball

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Royal Canadian Golf association has rejected the new and larger ball which will be adopted by the United States Golf association in 1931. At its annual meeting the association decided to follow the lead of the Royal and Ancient club, saying it was deemed unwise to make a change at this time.

Columbus Promoter Gets Wrestling Title Match

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The National Boxing association today made a public opening of sealed bids offered by promoters who sought the right to stage title and elimination world's wrestling championship matches.

The heavyweight match between John Pesek, Ravenna, Neb., and Jim Londos, of St. Louis, attracted the most bids. H. H. Hamer of Columbus, O., offered the highets bid, $20,001, and was awarded the match. Hamer guaranteed Pesek $12,001 and Londos $8,000.

Pesek and London were the only heavyweight wrestlers who qualified for the N. B. A. tournament. Their match will be for the title.

Morgan Park Cadets Beat St. Albans; Retain Lead

Morgan Park Military academy heavies retained their lead in the Midwest Prep conference by defeating St. Alban's academy, 22 to 20, on the home floor. Thrasher and Lange featured for the winning cadets, and Beal, with 8 points, starred for the losers.

Exmoor's 479 Takes 1st in Country Club Trapshoot

Exmoor with a total of 479 won the fifth event of the Country Club Trapshooting league yetserday at Onwentsia. Onwentsia was credited with 474; South Shore, 472; and Glen View, leader of the league, 468. George Henneberry of Glen View and Edward F. Swift Jr. of Onwentsia were high scorers, each breaking 94 out of 100 targets.

The Inquiring Reporter

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

The Question.

Would you like to be a six day bicycle racer?

The Answers.

Charles J. Driscoll, 3006 Fillmore street, bank clerk—I don't believe so; the the grind is a little too tough. There's very little sleep for a fellow in that line and I love sleep. I never saw a six day bicycle race, but I have read about them. Friends tell me the races are interesting, especially when the sprints start.

John B. Herin, 833 Cornelia avenue, clerk—Yes, I believe I would. I used a bicycle as delivery boy for a grocery store, and I rode for three years while with the Western Union company. I never did any racing, but one day I rode 26 miles. However, I guess six day racing is too strenuous for me.

Claude Herman, 3727 Pine Grove avenue, chauffeur — I am getting too old for that. When I was a boy, I raced a lot, and out in Colorado I did some road racing. But I never could have stood the strain of a six day bicycle race. It takes a well trained man to pedal around any track for six days.

Michael McTigue, 2612 Farrell street, clerk — I have done some bike riding, but I am not bugs enough about it to want to be a six day racer. A few hours of riding a day would be enough for me. I imagine that kind of racing would be more tiresome than horseback riding.

Howard Stevens, 6603 Maryland avenue, postoffice delivery messenger—I wouldn't care to be one. I think it is a lot of foolishness. This thing of riding around on the same track for six days without rest or sleep—what do you gain when you are through with it? There's nothing to be proud of even if you win the race.

SOUTH MAKES PROGRESS, BUT KEEPS RASSLIN'

Big Munn and Others Hold Sway.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 15.—Dixie has conquered immeasurable handicaps in recent years. Malaria and yellow fever long ago were stamped out; educational problems have been solved; erstwhile swamps and barren acres now are productive; roads are being paved every day; bridges and free ferries have made countless bayous, rivers and creeks mere scenic incidents. Dixie has everything the north enjoys, plus good weather in the winter time.

But here's a sad thing: Southerners still think wrestling is a sport.

We have just concluded a tour of several thousand miles through the south and were startled to observe the extent to which the south is addicted to wrestling.

Ray of Hope in Mississippi.

In only one place did we find a ray of hope. The day we were in Jackson, Miss., the Mississippi athletic commission suspended fourteen rasslers, including Gus Sonnenberg, world heavyweight champion of the western rassling cult, and Richard Shikat, world heavyweight champion of the eastern brotherhood.

Elsewhere in the south wrestling is rampant, with the worst of the epidemic still a month away. It now is feared that by St. Patrick's day every wrestler in the United States will be below the Mason and Dixon line, and, except in the Mississippi instance, nothing is being done to abate the matter.

True, New Orleans is a little quiet about its wrestling. Leather lunged bus and taxi hustlers swarm about the entrances of the leading hotels, loudly and shamelessly croaking the attractions of the hooche coochee shows and similar entertainment features on their routes, but even the most brazen of these panderers modulate their voices when they contract to drive you to a wrestling show. They explain that they sometimes doubt that wrestling is on the level.

Munn "Sparkles with Wit."

Right here in San Antonio they have a big wrestling show every Friday night. Last night, for instance Abe Coleman, the human rock, rassled Al Karasick, the Russian lion. The big boys delighted a large gathering at Fort Sam Houston.

Big Munn, former world champion, has been in town all week delivering lectures and radio talks in addition to teaching members of the police department how to rassle all manner of criminals. We did not get to hear any of Mr. Munn's lectures, although we were assured by one of the papers here that "Mr. Munn's talks sparkle with wit."

On the way across Louisiana we said to ourself: "Well, we'll stop at Lake Charles for the night. We'll have a good rest and won't be reminded of the wrestling epidemic."

And when we unloaded at Lake Charles we found cards in every window in town setting forth that Joe Shimkus, former lightweight champion, was on the verge of wrestling Joe Varga, the Hungarian headlock king.

Houston Is Excited.

We got out of Lake Charles early in the morning and reached Houston shortly after noon. We found Houston in a high pitch of excitement. A city fireman told us there was to be an all-star wrestling show in town that night.

On the way from Lake Charles to Houston we passed through Beaumont. We bought a newspaper to see who was wrestling there that night, but got no further than the first page. There were four items [no foolin'] about crime in Chicago and an "ad" announcing the beginning of a series of the reasons Chicago is bankrupt.

Later on we are going to visit Houston again. Then Fort Worth, Dallas, and Little Rock. All told we ought to have a chance to see nearly forty wrestling shows before we get back up north.

We understand there's nothing like a good book to help pass a long evening. Based on the foregoing prospects we ought to get 40 good books read between now and April.

Hold Funeral Services for Brother of John McGraw

Toledo, O., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Funeral services for the late James McGraw, secretary of the Toledo baseball club and brother of John McGraw, manager of the New York Giants, who died suddenly a few days ago following an operation, were held here this morning. John McGraw, who is in Cuba, was unable to arrive in time for the funeral.

Chicago Team Loses in Railroad Cage League

The Chicago Terminal team was defeated yesterday by the Fort Wayne quintet in the quarter finals of the Pennsylvania railroad's western region basketball race. The score was 33 to 15.

2,443 CLEVELAND QUINTETS ENTER BOWLING MEET

Peoria, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Cleveland came within eight five-man teams of the record established a year ago in Chicago, when 2,523 bowling quintets entered in the American bowling congress there.

Figures available from Secretary A. L. Langtry's office show that 2,443 five man teams will roll in the 1930 classic, which opens March 1. Cleveland furnished 1,020 of these teams. The two man team entry totaled 4,503, while the individuals reached 9,027. The total prize fund will aggregate $30,000.

Buffalo is hot on the trail of the host congress. Columbus, Detroit, and Louisville are also bidding. Chicago's entry for this year totals 190 teams; Buffalo has 100; Detroit, 80; Milwaukee, 50; New York, 35; Erie, 35; Syracuse, 30; Columbus and Louisville, 25 each, and Cincinnati, 40.

LANDIS REFUSES TO O. K. TRANSFER OF GUS MANCUSO

Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, has disapproved the proposed transfer by the St. Louis National League club to the Rochester International League club, of Catcher Gus Mancuso.

Landis refused to sanction the transfer because St. Louis already has optioned out Mancuso to minor league clubs during successive seasons, and because he did not consider the transfer an outright release. He made the latter decision because the Rochester club is operated by the same ownership as the Cardinals.

WIETZ, ILLINOIS GUARD, TO COACH AT MIAMI UNIV.

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.] Ray Wietz, guard on the University of Illinois football team for the last three years, announced today that he had accepted an appointment as line coach in football and wrestling coach at Miami university at Oxford, O. Wietz will be graduated in June. He was considered by Gus Lindgren, Illinois coach, as the best defensive guard he has coached in twenty-five years at Illinois.

Wietz played high school football at Harvey township, Harvey.

Allen Wins Way Into French Net Semi-Final

PARIS, France, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Bill Allen, American tennis champion, entered the semi-finals of the southern France championships today, defeating Borel, a player of no pretentions to international fame, at 6-3, 6-0, 6-2.

Story of a Salesman's Success

A salesman, 40 years of age, came to one of our branch offices a year and a half ago seeking a new line of endeavor—a line which he had heard was meeting with unusual public acceptance. At that time he had just completed a $6,000 year. He made more than $5,000 his first six months with us. Last year, in a full twelve months' period, he made $8,400.

And he's only an ordinary salesman with no particular spark of genius.

We are enlarging our organization to prepare for a large expansion of business during the next few years. We have similar openings for two or three good men with successful sales records—the type of men who, in a few years, will be sales executive timber.

Our methods of training, our lead system, and our strong newspaper advertising make it hard for a really strong salesman to fail.

No business is growing faster or offers more unlimited opportunities than does domestic oil burners at the present time—and no one else in the industry pays as high a commission rate as we.

Only applicants of unquestionable integrity who are desirous of bettering their present position—men with high grade references—will be considered.

Call in person between 9:30 and 10:30 A. M. or 3:30 and 5:30 P. M. Ask for Mr. Andrew.

IRISH TRACK MEN SCORE 63 TO 32 WIN OVER ILLINI

Verne McDermott Vaults to Gym Record.

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb 15.—[Special.]—Notre Dame won its first track meet in history from Illinois here tonight, 63 to 32. Since its first dual meet with Notre Dame in 1916, Illinois had won 24 consecutive contests. The meet tonight saw a new gym record in the pole vault established by Capt. Verne McDermott of Illinois, who cleared the bar at 13 feet 4⅝ inches, bettering the mark made here last year by Tom Warne of Northwestern at 13 feet 3⅝ inches. Incidentally, McDermott tied with Warne at 13 feet 7 inches for first in the Western conference championships outdoors last spring.

Little Wins Mile Run.

John O'Brien tied his own gym record of 7.6 seconds in the 60 yard high hurdles to defeat Rodgers of Illinois. Baille of Notre Dame was second in this event.

Brant Little, Canadian sophomore star at Notre Dame, scored a spectacular win over Evans of Illinois in the mile run after leaving a hospital to compete. He has been in bed for a week with a cold. He also ran second on the mile relay team.

Irish Take Relay.

Notre Dame placed first and second in the mile run, high hurdles, and shot put, and won the relay. Summaries:

IOWA BEATS CARLETON

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Displaying strength in only four events, the high and low hurdles and the one an dtwo mile runs, Carleton college lost an indoor dual meet to the University of Iowa track team here today, 73 1-3 to 30 2-3.

The Hawkeyes scored slams in the 75 yard dash and the running broad jump, despite the fact that Gordon, Iowa Olympic performer, fouled all three of his tries in the latter event and was disqualified. Conway, Iowa sophomore, turned in the best performance of the afternoon when he equaled the field house record of 7 8-10 in the 75 yard dash. Two Carleton hurdlers, Henderson and Gossard, collected six points each to share high scoring honors.

For the second time this season Canby, Iowa pole vaulter, bettered 13 feet. Summaries:

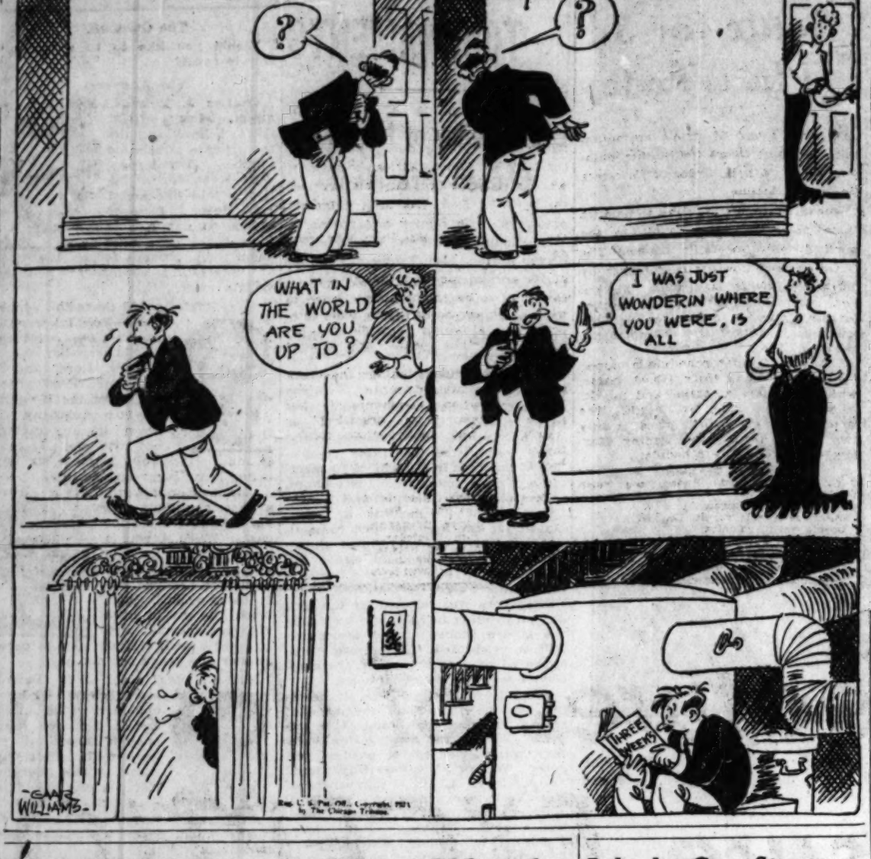
Pantaleo to Meet Gorman in Milwaukee Ring Feb. 28

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Bud Gorman, who toured Europe last year, meeting heavyweights, and who is to meet Primo Carnera in the east soon, was matched today to fight Paul Pantaleo, Chicago Italian, at the Milwkanee Auditorium, Feb. 28. Gorman lives in Newark, N. J., but formerly resided in Racine, Wis.

Lawrence College Five Defeats Knox Team, 35-13

Appleton, Wis., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—A rejuvenated Lawrence college basketball quintet won a one sided match in the Midwest conference here tonight when they defeated Knox college, 35 to 13.

AMONG THE FOLKS IN HISTORY



Jimmy McLarnin Near Weight; White Displays Old Punch

JIMMY McLARNIN.

Jimmy McLarnin, baby faced welterweight contender, arrived yesterday and announced he would have little trouble making the required weight of 145 pounds for his bout with Sammy Mandell at Chicago stadium March 1. The Mandell-McLarnin bout of ten rounds is the windup of the first of four shows in the west side arena during March.

McLarnin has been idle since his two round knockout of Ruby Goldstein in New York nearly two months ago. The Goldstein fight was his only engagement since he defeated Mandell in the stadium Nov. 4.

This long layoff was expected to leave McLarnin well over the 145 pound limit because he is growing so fast. McLarnin has campaigned in every division from the flyweight up to the welterweight class.

Upon his arrival in company with his trainer and manager, Pop Foster, and his brother, Bob McLarnin, he declared he was down to weight and that he merely would have to take light workouts. McLarnin will start training tomorrow at Barry's gymnasium.

HENRY GETS CHANCE

Ted Henry, stockyards lightweight, will get a chance to break into fast company tomorrow night when he boxes Harry Dublinsky in the six round windup at the Ashland Boulevard auditorium.

Paul Pantaleo expects to add his eighteenth straight knockout to his record against Bud Doran in the semi-windup of six rounds. Another heavyweight fight on the card will bring together Tony Lungo of Rockford and Eddie O'Day of Philadelphia. Tommy Kluth, Logan Square welterweight, will box Jack Collado in the other six rounder. Frankie Boyle, Harry Graham, Andy Urban, and Nick Clementi are set for their four rounders.

U. S. GIVES UP DEMPSEY-TUNNEY FIGHT PICTURES

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Pictures of the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Philadelphia which were seized by department of justice agents at the Capitol theater here in September, 1927, and simultaneously in other large cities, today were ordered returned to the former defendants in the case by Federal Judge A. F. St. Sure.

The order closed a case which the government never prosecuted. Harry Burke, exhibitor of the pictures, his son, Billy Burke, and J. J. Moore were indicted by the federal grand jury here for illegal interstate transportation of the pictures. Two months ago the indictment was dismissed.

CANCELS FIGHT; VON PORAT FACES SUSPENSION

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Cancellation of the 10 round bout scheduled for Tuesday here between Otto Von Porat, Norwegian heavyweight, and Angus Snyder, Wichita, Kas., was announced while the state boxing commission considered suspending Von Porat.

The Norwegian boxer refused to go through with the bout, declaring that his right hand, injured in a recent fight with Pauline Uscudun, was still too sore to permit him fighting such a strong opponent as Snyder. Another opponent will be sought for Snyder.

Moline Snaps Davenport High's Winning Streak

Moline, Ill., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Davenport High school, Iowa basketball champion and winner of nineteen straight victories, was defeated by Moline, 29 to 22, here last night. The Moline lightweights also won, the score being 17 to 12.

Henry Perlick, one of the fighting twins of Kalamazoo, Mich., will oppose Charlie White when the veteran Chicago warrior returns to the ring, after an absence of six years, at the Coliseum Friday evening.

Time was when Charlie's name was linked with such luminaries as Bennie Leonard, Richie Mitchell, Freddie Welch, Willie Ritchie, and other outstanding fighters of years ago. Friday he is paired with a ringman who was only a tot when White was in his prime. Perlick, who is quite capable of giving a good account of himself against any of the leading lightweights, will be running the risk of having a veteran demonstrate the superiority of lightweights of former years over the 135 pounders campaigning in the ring today.

Still a Sock in His Left.

White has shown in his workouts that he has lost none of the sock in his left hook.

Aside from the bout that will feature White's return to the ring, the Coliseum show offers three eight rounders and a pair of sixes. Henry Perlick's twin, Herman, will be seen in one eight against Emery Cabana, French-Canadian. Cabana recently whipped Louis "Kid" Kaplan, Pete Nebo, Johnny Jadick, and Jackie Pilkington.

O'Dowd to Face Greenfield.

Another eight heat affair pits Al Greenfield against Midget Mike O'Dowd. Fans will remember O'Dowd for his sterling bout with Earl Mastre last fall. Greenfield's showing against Jean Boireau a few weeks back indicates he is ready to mix with the best of the 126 pounders. The third eight rounder, between Ernie Peters and Harry Fierro, is being billed for "the bantamweight championship of the middle west."

Jimmy Lundy, coast battler, and Georgie Kerwin, local kayo artist, clash in one of the sixes, while Joe King, New Orleans heavyweight, takes on Walter Madey in the opening six.

Carnera Moves on to Next "Knockout" in Ring Junket

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 15.—[U.P.]—Primo Carnera arrived here today and retired with his entourage to a hotel. He will fight John Erickson, known as "Man Mountain," here Monday night. Erickson, who weighs only 200 pounds, slipped into town unnoticed, while his opponent was heralded by a large crowd that delayed transport of his eight trunks to his hotel.

Baby Joe Gans Stops German in 7th Round

New York, Feb. 15.—[U. P.]—Baby Joe Gans, Los Angeles welterweight, scored a technical knockout over Billy Drako of Germany, at the start of the seventh round of their scheduled 10 round bout here tonight. Drako was unable to answer the bell starting the seventh.

Gans weighed 144½ and Drako 147¾.

INDIANA MAT TEAM DEFEATS NORTHWESTERN

Four falls and two decisions out of eight bouts gave the University of Indiana wrestling team a 24 to 8 victory over Northwestern in a dual meet at Patten gymnasium yesterday. ST. MARY'S GIRLS BEAT LORETTO IN H. S. TOURNEY

Capt. Florence Cashman's free throw in an overtime period gave St. Mary's a 14 to 13 victory over Loretto, in the second round of the Catholic high school girls' basketball tournament yesterday at Victorian Athletic club. In the second championship St. Catherine defeated Alvernia, 28 to 27, Martin Dohney contributing the winning point.

Aquinas triumphed over Marywood of Evanston, 40 to 7, in a consolation game. The third round will be played next week.

HAWKS RETURN TO ICE TONIGHT; PLAY CANADIENS

Games Tonight

Les Canadiens at Chicago.
Boston at Detroit.
Ottawa at New York Americans.

After a ten day layoff from league hockey the Blackhawks return to their home ice at the Stadium tonight to play four games in eight days. Their opponents tonight are their most successful rivals, Les Canadiens of Montreal, who are playing in Chicago for the last time this season.

In the three games played by the two teams this year the flying Frenchmen have won two and tied one, but all three went into overtime. Each Canadien victory was won by a single goal. Two weeks ago the two teams battled scorelessly until the overtime, when Howie Morenz slipped in the winning goal while the Hawks were a man short.

In Morenz the Frenchman have one of the greatest hockey players of all time, a clever, speedy, and tough individual, who is getting at the age where it takes him time to get in condition, but when he does he is a streak on skates. Reports from Canada indicate Morenz is cutting loose with everything and veritably dazzling the Canadians.

With all the cripples recovered and the bruises of the last road trip fully healed, the Hawks are raring to reverse those two decisions against them. The Hawks were dropped back to third place during their layoff, as the Rangers piled up two more points. A win tonight would put the Hawks back in a tie for second place.

RANGERS DEFEAT FREEBOOTERS, 4-2, IN MIAMI POLO

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special].—The Rangers defeated the Freebooters, 4 to 2, in the finals of today's polo tournament at Nautilus Fields.

The winners reached the final round by the flip of a coin after a preliminary game with the Flamingoes ended in a 2 to 2 tie. The Freebooters advanced by whipping the Rovers 5 to 4.

British Driver Prepares Speed Car for Daytona

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—A week before leaving for Daytona, Fla., in an attempt to lower the automobile speed record of 231 miles per hour, set by Sir Henry Seagrave, Kaye Don is at Wolverhampton watching the mechanics putting the finishing touches to the car, Silver Bullet.

The designer says the machine will do 275 miles per hour, but under official speed test conditions probably will register only about 250. The car is fitted with two 12 cylinder engines running 4,000 revolutions a minute. Each engine develops 2,000 horse power and weighs less than 1,000 pounds, thus producing more than two horse power per pound of weight.

The Silver Bullet is 30 feet long, built in the form of a streamlined cylinder, to minimize wind resistance. It was tailored around Kaye Don's body in order to waste as little space as possible.

Among the novel features is a brake contrivance resembling airplane rudders, which will be used to slow down the car by increasing the wind resistance before applying the wheel brakes. Another item is an ice tank in the radiator to prevent overheating.

BRUINS' GOAL RALLY DEFEATS TORONTO, 5 TO 3

TORONTO, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins showed their class here tonight in a National league hockey game when, trailing by two goals going into the third period, they whistled in four tallies and left the Toronto Maple Leafs on the short end of a 5-3 score.

There was nothing sensational in the rally staged by the Bruins. Rather it was a cool, well calculated offensive that by its very smooth working brought results. They never appeared overanxious and the final frame was more than half gone before the barrage of goals began to rattle in behind Lorne Chabot.

MAROONS WIN, 3 TO 1.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons outplayed the hapless Pittsburgh Pirates to win a 3 to 1 decision in a National Hockey league game here tonight. The defeat automatically eliminated Pittsburgh from any chance of getting into the championship playoffs.

*In the Unisteel type of construction, the body and chassis are designed as a unit, eliminating body sills and all other wooden parts. The body is bolted directly to the chassis, so that the two become mutually supporting and mutually flexible.

The low price of the new De Soto Straight Eight is indeed sensational, but an equally great sensation is De Soto Eight's extraordinary excellence. The price does not begin to index the quality and ability of this fine car. On inspection you find that it possesses an unusual number of distinctive quality features—and Chrysler Motors engineers have given it a performance ability not surpassed by Eights costing hundreds of dollars more. The superiority of the new De Soto Straight Eight is so plain and unmistakable that all authorities agree in predicting for it a success equally as great as that attained by its famous companion car—the record-breaking De Soto Six.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Molasses Jane, a consistent winner back in the fall days of Maryland, returned to her brilliant three year form today to win the J. P. Murphy memorial handicap and $3,780 at Hialeah Park.

Driving honors of the race with the speedy Miss from the Brancastle stable was Merlyn Knight, America's leading jockey of 1929. Preceding the mile and sixteenth jaunt over the picturesque track, Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia announced the signing of Knight as a first string rider for his stable on the northern tracks this year.

And then as if to uphold the trust placed in him by the head of the Miami and Belmont Park tracks, Knight went out to give Molasses Jane one of the smartest rides of his brief turf career. He got the daughter of Ballot away well, but was soon forced to take up, as the large field bore over to the rail. Knight, however, kept his mount on the inner fence back of the pace setting Sandy Ford, carrying the silks of M. Shea.

Turning into the stretch, Knight took Molasses Jane to the outside, from where she closed with a rush to defeat Sandy Ford by a half length. E. T. Archibald's Crystal Domino was third and George D. Widener's Parchman fourth. Herrick, winner of the Miami Beach handicap and co-favorite with Molasses Jane at 5 to 1, finished fifth.

PAUL BUNYAN WINS

New Orleans, La., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—One of the most consistent records made by a horse at this fall and winter meeting was continued at the Fair Grounds this afternoon, when L. M. Séverson's Paul Bunyan won the Edgewater Gulf hotel handicap and the purse of $2,300. Since last October the son of Paul Weidel and Audrey Austin has started ten times and won six of his efforts. Twice he has been second and once third. Paul Bunyan's only poor race was in the New Orleans handicap, when he finished far back after being made the favorite.

He was the favorite again today, being backed down to 2 to 1 in a field of seven. At the end of the mile and an eighth he was a length and a half ahead of Strong Heart, from the Walnut farms, which led the Reuter stable's Galahad by the same distance. Lord Braedelbane, Star o' Morn, Inception, and Thistle Fyrn trailed in the order named.

Jockey L. Martin rode the winner, and he also brought home Punkie in the sixth and Keydet in the seventh. Jockey C. Landolt scored a double using Lightning Jones and Ulniu. In the Edgewater Beach hotel purse Mrs. Ivy Pollard's Ulniu made it two in a row when he got home in front of Clayton Morris' Uncommon Gold, which was backed into favoritism.

NORTH SECTION C. OF C. LEADERS HOLD SPOTLIGHT

With the two leaders in the northern section slated to go up against formidable opposition this afternoon, interest will be centered in the games in the Broadway armory in the Knights of Columbus league. Ravenswood, one of the top liners, will encounter Marquette, sectional champion, while Lane Tech, another favorite for the title, will meet University.

Four in Central Race.

St. Patrick and Fort Dearborn will share interest with the Santa Maria-La Salle match in the central section at St. Rita's gymnasium. All four of these fives are fighting for a place in the finals.

One of the features of the southwest division at the Lions' gym, 4300 West North avenue, will bring together the fighting Washington five against Sherman.

Carroll Meets Hennepin.

Carroll will attempt to knock Hennepin out of first place in the west division at 4711 West Madison street. Last week Carroll defeated Damen. The headliners in the south division, where practically every five is in the running, will be the McHale Loyola-Mount Carmel Park and the Dowling-Auburn Park games. The schedules follow:

Wisconsin Skier Makes Best Jump in Utah Meet

Ogden, Utah, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Comparatively low marks were made today by the first of the contestants in the two day ski tournament at Decker's Hill, near here. The best mark, 102 feet, was made by Sigurd Ulland of Westby, Wis. Halvor Walstad of Omaha jumped 97 feet and Einar Fredke of Hudson, Wis., 96.

Floridans Use Small Skiffs to Land Fish

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Punta Gorda, Fla., Feb. 15.—There are a number of moderate sized salt water fish down here which should interest the northern angler who wants quiet water angling and a chance to fish with his bass or muskellunge tackle. There are scores of kinds of game fish in Florida waters, but, contrary to common belief among many northern anglers, you do not have to go into the open ocean in a big boat to get many of them.

Down here on the west coast the boys are landing all kinds of fish in small skiffs with outboard motors or by merely still fishing or casting from strategic places.

Here are a few salt water game fish which you can get in salt or brackish water without expensive equipment:

The robalo, or rovallo, snook or sargeant fish. This is a long bodied, pikelike fish which is built like a northern pike or muskie. A good fighter. The robalo [Spanish name for the European bass] has habits resembling the bass. It will take a spoon or a plug like our northern bass or muskie. Down here we catch them by trolling up the Peace river in brackish water, by keeping the boat close to the bank, or by casting around deadheads. These fish attain a length of 3 or 4 feet. Last year we caught one weighing 17 pounds. Usual weight is considerably less than that. A steel casting rod, pretty heavy line and a spoon will land this sporty fish.

Spotted weakfish or spotted sea trout. This sporty member of the weakfish family is a close relative of the squeteague or weakfish of the Atlantic coast. It is a fine fish for the light bait rod and lure. Runs around 2 or 3 pounds in weight. A great fish for traveling about. Down here the boys try to locate a school over a grassy shoal or a bunch traveling up one of the rivers.

Good strings can be caught with bait, too. With a light skiff or rowboat and an outboard motor to shove you around you can locate schools of sea trout in the bay or up the rivers and have quiet water fishing with plenty of casting.

Michigan City Loses Its Final Game to Nappanee

Michigan City, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Michigan City High school basketball team ended its season tonight, losing to Nappanee, 34 to 30. At half time the score was 15 all.

Foresters in Battle for 3d Place Today

Another round of strong opposition is in prospect today for leading quintets in the Catholic Order of Foresters Basketball league.

Queen of Angels, battling to hold its third place tie with Loyola in the north division, meets St. Leopold. The latter showed unexpected strength by defeating Loyola last week. St. Eugene and De Soto clash in another feature game. A defeat for De Soto will put it out of the championship running.

The west division schedule is topped by the Lawndale-Holy Ghost game, with third place at stake, and the St. Aloysius-West Side No. 1 tilt. The latter, although in fifth place, is only two games behind the leading Harmony quintet. The schedule:

NORTH DIVISION.
[St. Michael's gym, Hudson and North avenues.]
De Soto vs. St. Eugene.
Queen of Angels vs. St. Leopold.
Loyola vs. St. Monica.

WEST DIVISION.
[Provident gym, 3127 West Van Buren.]
Lawndale vs. Holy Ghost.
Harmony vs. West Side No. 2.
St. Aloysius vs. W. S. No. 1.

SOUTH DIVISION.
[St. Rita's gym, Thursday.]
St. Elizabeth vs. St. Sabina.
Englewood vs. Carmelite.
Tom Moore vs. St. Willibrod.

Duke of York to Challenge Wales to Golf Match

LONDON, Feb. 15.—[U. P.] — The prince of Wales probably will be challenged to a golfing duel when he returns from South Africa because it was revealed today that his brother, the duke of York, has been diligently practicing with niblick and putter on the lawn behind his Piccadilly residence.

The duke hopes to meet and beat the prince and his professional instructors believe he has a good chance to win. They say he has the golfing temperament, although they did not explain what that meant, and a good eye.

So far the duke's gallery has consisted of his little daughter, Princess Elizabeth, whose comments on her father's style were described as "naively frank rather than flattering."

AMERICANS WIN IN INTERNATIONAL RACQUETS MEET

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Paced by the veteran pair of Clerence C. Pell and Stanley Mortimer, the United States today made a clean sweep of the four international racquet singles matches with Great Britain at the Racquet and Tennis club. The rout of the invaders today gave the United States the series, five matches to one, the English having won one doubles contest yesterday.

Pell, driving with the power that won him the national championship in 1928, defeated Lord Aberdare, 15-2, 15-1, 15-3. Mortimer also scored in straight sets over P. W. Kemp-Welch, winning, 15-10, 15-6, 15-3. Dr. H. W. Leatham of Great Britain forced Hewitt Morgan, the change of pace stylist, to five sets before being defeated, 17-14, 8-15, 3-15, 15-11, 18-16. E. I. Edwards completed the Americans' sweep by turning back Duncan Cambridge, the youthful English sensation of yesterday's doubles, 4-15, 15-7, 15-3, 8-15, 15-1.

Ward Wins Squash Title.

New York, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—In nineteen minutes of fast play, Frank Ward of the City Athletic club, who made his debut in squash tennis in 1926, won the world's open championship today for the fourth time. He triumphed with the loss of only five points in the three games, defeating Rowland Dufton of the New York A. C., 15-2, 15-0, 15-3.

A crowd that filled the gallery of Fraternity club court watched the City A. C. professional run his score to 10-0 in the first and third games before his opponent was able to halt the rush.

Dufton could not stop Ward in the second game at all, being forced to a number of errors by the defending titleholder's diversified attack, which was frequently interspersed with a change of pace.

Chicago Whist Association to Hold 13th Carnival

The Chicago Whist association will hold its thirtieth annual carnival at the Edgewater Beach hotel Thursday, Friday and Saturday. The carnival brings to Chicago many prominent players and championship teams from Cleveland, Indianapolis, Detroit, Milwaukee, and many other cities will take part.

Unusual features of design assure EXCEPTIONAL ECONOMY

$1045 AND UP

superior performance

Though it is known mainly for its superior performance and remarkable smoothness, the New Oakland Eight is also exceptionally economical. Its parts are unusually accessible, and for this reason maintenance expense is low. Its sound basic design assures long service. And its gasoline mileage equals the mileage obtained with many six-cylinder cars of similar size and weight.

The design of the New Oakland's power plant permits ample room for large, long-lived bearings. It also makes possible the use of a short, rigid crankshaft which eliminates torsional vibration and bending, two of the greatest enemies of long life. Generous water passages around cylinders and valves form a protection against overheating. A water recirculation system eliminates hot spots and insures uniform cooling.

Oakland's complete down-draft carburetion and manifold system promotes more economical use of fuel and also keeps the engine operating at high efficiency. A new-type cylinder head found only in this car insures uniform combustion. Positive lubrication under a pressure of 25 to 30 lbs. supplies a constant flow of oil to moving parts. And a system of crankcase vegtilation prevents dilution of engine oil.

In addition, Oakland's Fisher bodies provide the wear-resisting strength of composite wood-and-steel construction. They are solidly built of excellent materials, chosen for hard service and long life. All these features keep operating and maintenance costs at a low level and protect the car's ultimate resale value.

Finally, in view of all it offers in the way of performance, style and all-round desirability, the New Oakland Eight's price is surprisingly moderate. Why not discover for yourself the new standard of motoring enjoyment the New Oakland Eight makes available? Why not come in and drive this newest General Motors Eight—the car whose superior performance is made all the more attractive by its exceptional economy.

NEW BILL WOULD PUT AIR MAIL ON DIFFERENT BASIS

If Passed It May Change Whole Air Picture.

BY ROBERT WOOD.

After nearly a year of research and study to devise a satisfactory method for developing, extending, and stabilizing the air transport system in America, Postmaster General Brown has brought forward the Waters bill to amend the present air mail act. Representative Waters, chairman of the subcommittee on the air mail act, announces that the hearings will soon begin on this bill.

The bill changes the measurement of air mail from a pounds per mile basis to a space weight per mile basis, similar to the rates which now apply to the carrying of mail by rail. The new basis, if ratified by congress, is expected to materially change the whole picture of air transportation.

Short Lines May Go.

Comment among the mail operators indicates that the measure will have the general support of the companies which now fly the mail, although it is said that a number of small operators are opposed to the bill. It is generally believed that the bill will give the postmaster general wide authority in readjusting the present system of routes. Several short lines operating at a large cost to the government, but affecting little saving in time, seem doomed to go and in their place the government is expected to establish longer lines tieing up the loose ends of the air line system and sending the planes over longer distances where the air mail is found to be most effective. New groups and consolidations are expected to result if congressional approval is given the bill.

One of the most significant aspects of the bill is the provision for a multiplicity of schedule. This will have two important effects: it will increase the number of flights by operators who now fly mail exclusively and will provide a stimulus for growth in the number of air passenger lines, for the bill opens the way for passenger ships to carry mail. Passenger lines which are now struggling through the lean pioneering period with only the questionable revenue of travelers' fares may, if their schedule is properly arranged, secure an additional source of income through a mail carrying contract.

Lose on Passengers.

Such a development may force the operators, who now fly mail exclusively, into the passenger carrying business to retain the bulk of the mail carrying contract in sections where they are already established. Many successful mail carriers prepared to institute passenger service, but either postponed the inauguration of this service or dropped their plans entirely after watching the financial difficulties of other lines which have spent the profits of mail carrying in maintaining passenger service.

From an economic standpoint, flying the mail has remainded the most successful branch of the aviation industry. While air travel rates have been greatly reduced and a much larger portion of the public is taking to the air, the passenger line operators are still wondering how to make ends meet. The revenues of the two types of services were compared here recently by Gen. John F. O'Ryan, president of Colonial Airways.

Unequal Fees

"Our line flies mail, express and passengers between New York and Boston," he said. "On one trip we may carry 200 pounds of mail, 200 pounds of express and a 200 pound passenger. For the mail we recieve about $600; for the express nearly $400. To handle these requires no great outlay of ground facilities or salary for personnel. But from the 200 pound passenger who requires a person to sell him a ticket, an attendant to help him aboard and a comparatively large place in the cabin which is only large enough to carry six passengers, we recieve only $27."

With the new elastic rate schedule and the increased authority of the postmaster general, many mail operators believe that the ground will be prepared for a wide spread development of aerial service for parcel post. They would welcome such a developement as a new source of revenue.

Ther is a growing belief among air mail operators, supported by the predictions of Assistant Postmaster General Glover, that air postage rate will ultimately be reduced to the regular postage rate and that all first class mail will be carried in airplanes.

Railroads Enter Air.

How this tremendous project is to be accomplished and what is to happen to the millions invested in rail mail cars has not been seriously considered, but the aviation industry is confident that such a development is bound to come.

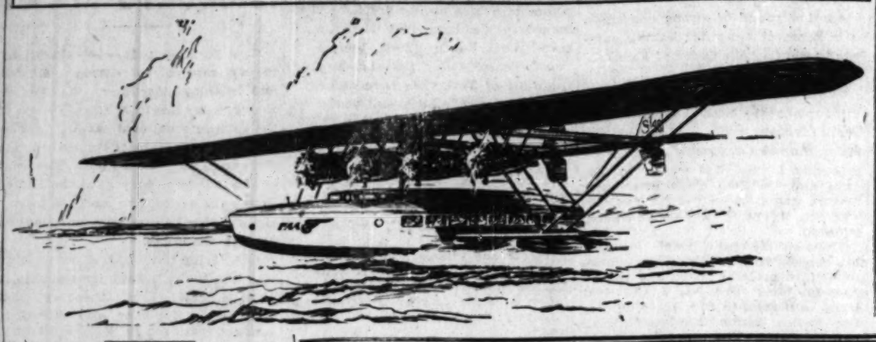
Perhaps the railroads sense this possibility for many roads have entered the new branch of the transport system either by effecting combined air-rail service or by actually financing the establishment of air lines. Instead of competing with air lines, most of the railroads are co-operating, convinced that the transportation occupies a definite place in the transportation picture.

While the 7,000,000 pounds of mail carried by planes last year is only a drop in the bucket compared with the total mail poundage, the increase in schedules provided in the proposed bill, is expected to materially increase the amount of air mail.

U. S. Air Mail Now Flown to 22 Foreign Nations

Air mail letters dispatched from the Pacific coast to Buenos Aires are flown 9,000 miles by five air mail lines, the longest distance air mail can be dispatched. Air mail can now be flown over United States airways to twenty-two foreign nations, representing 16,736 miles of airways.

NEW 45 PASSENGER AMPHIBION



IGOR SIKORSKY, builder of the twin-motored Sikorsky amphibion, last week announced plans for a new four motored amphibion capable of carrying 45 passengers. When completed it will be the largest plane of this type in the world. Two of the ships are now under construction and are expected to be ready for delivery to the Pan-American Airways for use in its service through the West Indies on Dec. 1 of this year.

Pan-American plans to use the ships over on a new line from Miami to Cristobal in the Canal Zone to effect a saving of two days between the west coach of South America for mail and passengers. Pan-American expects to fly the 1,200 miles from Florida to the Canal Zone in two hops, with a probable half way stop at Jamaica.

The new plane is designed to have a 900 mile cruising radius. It will be capable of carrying 24 passengers and 1,000 pounds of mail and baggage. On short flights carrying passengers exclusively the S-40 is built to have a total passenger capacity of 45, including a crew of four.

The power plant of the new ship will comprise four Pratt & Whitney "Hornet" motors suspended under the wing, giving the ship a total power of 2,300 horse power. The wing will have a span of 114 feet. The overall length is 73 feet and the height 23 feet. The plans call for a plane capable of carrying 11,250 pounds of useful load and of cruising at 108 miles per hour with a top speed of 129 miles per hour. Its ceiling is expected to be 13,000 feet.

According to the designer the giant amphibion will be able to fly and climb with any one of the four motors dead.

Mr. Sikorsky lists these new departures in the construction of the S-40: Pilot's cockpit can be used either open or closed; storage space and hoisting arrangement will be provided for carrying a spare engine; davits will be provided in the front marine compartment; part of the fuel tanks will be carried in the tanks located on the top of the floats; no passengers or crew are located in the plane of rotation of the propellers.

NEW AIR LINE TO OPEN VAST AREA IN WEST CANADA

EDMONTON, Alberta.—One of the most difficult and northernmost airline in the world to open an immense trade area from Alberta to the Arctic ocean has just been established from Fort McMurray, Alberta, to Aklavik, on the Arctic ocean, by the Commercial Airways, Ltd.

The airline serves a territory rich in mineral deposits and abounding in fur bearing animals. The inhabitants are few in number, however, as only prospectors and traders live in the country.

It is hoped by officials of the Canadian government that new settlers will be attracted to the territory because of fast transportation afforded by airplanes to and from the larger settlements.

Fast ships will ply up and down the Mackenzie river. In winter, skils will be attached as landing gears and in summer, pontoons will take their place.

Mail and supplies will be transported. Low fares, considering the expense of operating the airline, will prevail. Freight and express will be hauled on a cost basis comparable to passenger fares.

AIRPLANES USED TO DUST POISON ON MOSQUITOES

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Sure death to malaria spreading mosquitoes has been found effective by another creature of the air—the airplane—announce officials of the United States public health service.

Paris green dust sprayed from underneath the carriage of a plane, which is able to cover thousands of acres of swamp land in a day, is proving to be the death knell of the mosquito larvae.

"This method is especially valuable where dense vegetation is present or the territory is covered by débris," says a statement of the health department.

"The first experiment was conducted by a marine corps airplane in Haiti. According to a report of Samuel W. Honaker, consul at Port-au-Prince, the first trial was entirely satisfactory and areas, which were not liveable, are now cleaned up."

Strong Winds Help Mail Planes Set New Records

Last week's strong winds from the northwest and west helped air mail pilots flying out of Chicago to set up new speed records over two mail routes. Pilot Robert Hopkins last Sunday flew from here to Cleveland, 318 miles, in 94 minutes at an average speed of 202 miles per hour. Pilot John Pricer flew over the Interstate Air Lines route to Atlanta, 683 miles, in four hours and sixteen minutes last Monday. His average speed was 146 miles an hour.

SETS SAFETY RECORD.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—An enviable record for dependability and service is being hailed by Western Air Express for its tri-motored plane No. 101, which completed its 200,000th mile of flying recently between here and San Francisco without experiencing mishap to plane or passenger.

438 TOWNS IN OHIO AIR MARKED TO AID FLYERS

COLUMBUS, O.—Planned to make Ohio safe for night and day flying, 438 cities and towns are airmarked, it is reported by John Vorys' state director for aviation.

Under the direction of the state department this work has just been completed by the various municipal officials. A report said that there are 103 airports and landing fields in the state, of which 15 are municipal, 45 commercial, 22 private and 21 emergency.

MICHIGAN AIR MAIL.

Poundage reports just released for 1929 show that planes of the Thompson Aeronautical corporation carried over 85 tons of air mail in Michigan during the last year.

AVIATION QUESTIONS

Questions relating to aviation are answered in this section by Maj. A. W. Schroeder, famous world war flyer, who formerly held the world's altitude record. Inquiries should be addressed to the Aviation Department, Chicago Tribune, Chicago.

Q.—When the engine in an airplane stops, does the airplane fall?—S. W. R. —Chicago.

A.—Your question is one that is asked by many people and I will attempt to explain in a simple way just what takes place when the engine stops while flying. The pilot always throttles his engine down so that it is doing no work, when he is through flying, and then begins to glide or volplane. The term glide is now used entirely. If the engine stops of its own accord the pilot merely glides just the same. Whether the engine is dead or just throttled down, his gliding ability is little affected. This is what actually takes place: gravity takes the place of the propeller, the nose of the airplane is pointed down a trifle and the airplane glides forward and slightly downward on what may be called an inclined gliding path. In many ways this can be compared to a weight sliding down an inclined plane. The smaller the angle made with the horizontal, the greater will be the radius of action, and the better will be the opportunity of picking out a suitable landing place. This gliding angle is an inherent feature of every airplane and bears a direct relation to the weight and the head resistance.

Very efficient airplanes will have a glide angle of about one to twelve. At an elevation of one mile this airplane will travel forward twelve miles before touching the ground. You can readily understand how simple it is for a pilot who flies at a reasonable height to always be within gliding distance of a suitable landing field.

Q.—In the world war did the gunner sit in front of the pilot or in back of the pilot?—C. J. A.—Chicago.

A.—The gunner in war type aircraft during the recent war sat in the rear seat as a general rule, though there were a few instances in which the gunner sat in a front nacelle type of fuselage.

IMPROVED IN QUALITY ADVANCED IN VALUE

Pleasing changes will meet your eye when you examine the fine Oldsmobile which is now presented for 1930. You will note decided improvements in appearance—but you will recognize that Oldsmobile's distinguishing characteristics remain unchanged.

As you become better acquainted with Oldsmobile, you will discover new ease of handling, new comfort, and new luxury—but you will also find that these important improvements have been achieved through refinement of proved fundamentals of design, not through any radical change.

You will see an Oldsmobile improved in appearance, longer—lower—and smarter than ever.

You will find new comfort in its wider, deeper seat cushions and its more spacious interiors.

And examination of Oldsmobile's mechanical refinements will suggest to you the advanced performance made possible by more efficient carburetion, more responsive steering, and improved, fully-enclosed, mechanical four-wheel brakes.

You will be convinced, as you examine these betterments, and as you drive the car yourself, that Oldsmobile has been definitely improved . . . and you will find it representative of a value so marked that Oldsmobile is drawing the attention and approval of new thousands everywhere.

MOTORS — TRAFFIC — HIGHWAYS

MICHIGAN WILL SPEND $250,000 ON ROAD BEAUTY

New Shrubs and Trees to Be Planted.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Michigan highway department is expanding its program for beautification of the roads in the state that attracts thousands of Chicago motorists every summer. The department's 1930 budget calls for $250,000 for roadside cleanup, trimming and transplanting; $50,000 for the planting of 12,500 deciduous trees, 500,000 pine seedlings and 5,000 shrubs, and $50,000 for the purchase of virgin timber.

During 1929, the Michigan highway department spent $60,500 for tree trimming, shrubs and transplanting; $21,000 for planting and caring for trees on new pavement jobs, and $50,000 for virgin timber adjacent to state trunk line roads.

Historic Spots to Be Marked.

Places of historic interest are to be marked this year. Distance and directional signs are to be erected to guide visitors to these attractions. Last year, the state renewed and added to its signs with the names of lakes and streams.

Modern American families use automobiles for recreation more each year. Michigan, manufacturer of automobiles, wants to give pleasant surroundings to the thousands who spend their holidays rolling over pavements.

The theme is timely. In but a few weeks, spring will draw Chicagoans into the country roads. The snow and ice of a severe winter will be gone. A warming sun will be arousing woods and meadows.

Grover C. Dillman, state highway commissioner of Michigan, tells of this roadside beautification and its coordination with the state's park system in an article in a recent issue of American Highways, which is published by the American Association of State Highway Officials.

Cost Can Be Justified.

"With the constantly growing use of the automobile," he writes, "there is an ever increasing demand for public facilities for the fullest enjoyment of outdoor life. Every man has an innate desire urging him to seek the things of nature.

"The careless hand of a rapidly expanding population striving for material wealth, has destroyed much with which our country was so richly endowed by nature, and it is now time that a helping hand be given to preserve for ourselves and posterity a small part of our God given heritage.

"Aside from the esthetic values, the cost of tree planting can be justified from a utilitarian standpoint. They increase the value of adjoining land, prevent erosion, serve as windbreaks and control snowdrifting; provide a source of food where nut bearing and fruit bearing varieties are planted; protect the roadbed from the sun; prevent shifting of sand dunes, and provide nesting places for birds."

Advocates Wide Authority.

Mr. Dillman is an advocate of regulations giving state highway departments wide authority in the roadside beautification work.

"There is," he writes, "a quite general practice in this country to permit public service corporations to erect pole lines, pipe lines, sewer, etc., in the highway right of way. This creates a conflict of interests.

"On the one hand it is imperative that the public service corporation keep its lines clear by removing trees in some cases and trimming away the limbs in a great many cases. While on the other hand highway beautification demands that trees and shrubs be preserved in a natural condition or nearly so. Laws regulating these corporations are therefore indispensable.

"Individuals as well as corporations require legal restraint to properly protect flowers, shrubs and trees growing on the highway right of way. Even with regulatory measures in effect it requires considerable time to educate the public to the fact that anything growing on the right of way is not common property.

Advertising Signs Intolerable.

"Outdoor advertising is very largely restricted to highways and the property immediately adjacent. If not prohibited, every tree, stump, fence and large stone would soon become covered with advertising signs, making a very undesirable blot on the landscape. These signs, which are intolerable on the highway right of way, are of doubtful value to the owner and the sooner their use is prohibited on and alongside all highways the better it will be for all concerned.

"In addition to the laws just mentioned, provisions should be made to enable highway authorities to properly trim and otherwise care for existing trees and shrubs, to plant trees, to set out flowers and shrubs, to cut noxious weeds, to destroy litter and rubbish found along the road, to supervise planting by individuals and to control the erection of advertising signs at road intersections and railway crossings even though such signs are on private property."

The commissioner issues a pertinent word of warning to those engaged in landscaping rights of way.

"With a constantly increasing volume of traffic, wider pavements are inevitable," he points out, "and work done on roadside development today may be a loss tomorrow unless such work has been properly correlated with future requirements of pavements."

Postage Stamps to Tell National Park Beauties

Issuance of a series of postage stamps depicting the beauties and recreational assets of the national parks has been recommended to federal authorities by the American Automobile association, as a part of a comprehensive program for the protection of travel in the western states.

WIRE SAVES AUTO

This photograph, taken on Sheridan road near Waukegan, Ill., recently shows how a skidding car was saved from a plunge by this woven wire road guard, which is now standard material of the Illinois highway department. Last winter there was a wooden rail at this point and a motorist is reported to have been killed when his automobile crashed through the fence and down the embankment.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

TO CALIFORNIA ON $106.

Downers Grove, Ill., Feb. 12.—The following may be of interest to persons contemplating a motor trip to California. The trip was made by a relative and the family consisted of parents and three children.

The cost and mileage per day are as follows:

Thirty-four quarts oil, including two changes; average cost per quart, 27½ cents; total, $9.35. One hundred seventy gallons gasoline, average per gallon, .2159 cents; total, $36.70. Average miles per quart oil, 81.56. Average miles per gallon gasoline, 16.31. Bridge tolls, $3.20. Meals, lodging, and miscellaneous expenses, $56.74. Total cost, $105.99.

Mileage per day—First day to Centralia, Ill., 285; second day to Earl, Ark., 317; third day to Nashville, Ark., 296; fourth day to Fort Worth, Tex., 299; fifth day to Midland, Tex., 348; sixth day to Deming, N. M., 446; seventh day to Phoenix, Ariz., 363; eighth day to San Diego, Cal., 419. Total miles, 2,773.

The average daily mileage was 346.6.

FIRST AID DELAYED.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—I am pondering this question: When a pedestrian or other person is injured by a common carrier, which is more important—the taking of statements and signing of forms which will protect the carrier if it is humanly possibly to do so, or the rushing of the victim to a place where he can secure medical attention in time to avoid more serious consequences?

A case in point—at Sixty-seventh street and Blackstone avenue, a man was struck, and bruised and badly cut about the head and neck by a street car. He was taken into a restaurant near the scene of the accident, and questioned until the arrival of an ambulance, and for at least fifteen minutes after the ambulance came, although evidently in great pain, and bleeding around the head profusely. Finally, after every conceivable point had been looked after which would bear on the case, he was asked where he wanted to be taken. Policemen and car employés were present during all this time.

My understanding is that in cases of this kind, pneumonia is an extra hazard, and as the man was supported on a lunch counter seat near the door, I wonder whether the zealousness of the company employés in getting statements letter perfect before help was offered might not cost the company more in the long run—expense seeming to be the main consideration. And if so, I wonder whether it wouldn't pay the company to instruct its employés to rush aid first, and then take statements. Of course there is the danger that the victim might succumb on the way to the hospital without a statement being gotten.

OBSERVER.

URGENT NEED FOR REPAIRS.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 11.—Who is responsible for the disgraceful condition of Touhy avenue, half way between Tessville and McCormick road, just east of the railroad tracks? It has been in this condition for over two years, being full of ridges six inches high which the motorist must bump over with the danger of skidding and turning over in the ditch. This happened to one car after another one Sunday night recently, the road being very slippery.

Our car was one that turned over, our lives being saved by a miracle. Just 15 minutes earlier a car had been pulled out from the same spot and 5 minutes after another skidded clear around and just stopped before going over.

For the sake of a truckful of cinders or a fence along the 5 foot ditch all this could be avoided and better still there is no apparent reason why the road should not be repaired, but the public must suffer even though we do pay taxes.

WEST PARK SNOW PLOWS.

Chicago, Feb. 13.—For the enlightenment of Mr. H. Green, whose letter was in the "Voice of the Traffic," and to correct any false impressions he may have created, I wish to give your readers the following information:

The west parks operate 14 snow plows, eight on trucks and six on tractors. The frames, minus the blades, are installed in the fall and left on all winter. As soon as weather conditions are such that plows will be needed, all work for these vehicles is suspended and the blades attached, a two or three hour job for the entire fourteen.

The plows are sent out, regardless of time, in gangs of three or four as soon as necessary, each gang going in a different direction and covering a regular route. They work continually until the boulevards are cleared. After that the crossings and intersections are cleared. This work has required, at times, 36 to 48 hours of continuous plowing.

In December the west park plows operated for 461 plowing hours or about 32 hours per plow, and during January they operated for 318 hours or nearly 22 hours each.

The length of time required to clear the boulevards depends upon the storm conditions, duration of storm, amount of snow fall and traffic conditions. In December, 1929, we had an exceptionally bad blizzard with a fall of 14.7 inches and in January a storm with a fall of about 8 inches.

The Chicago Motor Coach company operates with the west parks by helping to keep their right of way clear, but in addition to sending our plows over boulevards traversed by the buses we have many miles of boulevards over which they do not travel.

BUT THE MOTORING PUBLIC PAYS.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—In your editorial "Pick the Pavement for the Motorist" you express distress that political influence is being sought in behalf of the use of brick for paving public roads and feel sure that any politician who would openly champion the use of brick would suffer extinction at the hands of motorist drivers.

Unfortunately for the paving brick manufacturers and perhaps for other manufacturers of paving material, it is a political organization such as a municipality, county, state, or federal government that buys practically all pavement materials. There is nothing sinister, as seemed to be implied in your editorial, about presenting sales arguments to the legally designated purchasing agents for one's product.

Paving brick men call in the same way on railroads and street car company officials and in selling these corporations, who buy pavement on performance alone, seem to be successful.

Dishonest politicians would scarcely consider a brick pavement because it is usually higher in first cost and because it wears so long. A dishonest politician wants to build pavements that have a comparatively low first cost and a short life. On the basis of the low cost, the politician shows how he saved the public money; the short life feature permits him to employ an army of voter repairmen who stay on the pay roll and vote as they are told, thus perpetuating the politician's power.

Hence, the unholy political formula: "Build cheaper pavements to employ more pay rollers to reflect the boss who will build more cheap pavements," and so on ad infinitum.

I do not believe THE TRIBUNE should criticize or seek to influence open minded officials from listening to arguments for paving brick especially after THE TRIBUNE'S splendid work to wreck the state political highway juggernaut of a few months ago. After all, Illinois has a competent highway department and it will probably judge any plea on the basis of the yearly cost of the two paving types mentioned.

THIS DEMANDS EXPLANATION.

Chicago, Feb. 14.—I was driving my car on Addison street. I brought my car to a stop at Sheffield avenue. Two men rushed toward me and one pulled the front door open. He appeared to be planning to jump into the car. I pulled the door shut and they both cried, "Open that door!" Finally one of them succeeded in opening the door and putting his foot on the running board. When I demanded to know why he was holding me up, he said, "Where's your 1930 license?"

Both men were in citizen's clothes, with no outward sign of authority. One of them took a star out of his pocket and showed it to me when I asked for it. After telling me that they were being paid to check up on licenses, they handed me an arrest slip and permitted me to drive on.

In a city with the crime record which Chicago has established, a woman driver has a right to protest against this method of checking up on auto licenses. Why is this work not done by uniformed policemen?

TRIBUNE TOURING SERVICE.

Jackson, Miss., Jan. 21.—I am writing you first because I feel that your very excellent information service warrants a word of thanks, and second because the information I now have may be interesting to those contemplating this trip.

I called on you for road advice recently and you gave me federal routes Nos. 66, 51, 60, 61, 51, from Chicago to New Orleans. At the same time, particularly in view of flood conditions, I asked advice from the Chicago Motor club. They stated that the best route was south from Cairo on the east side and that there was a bad detour on the west side road. In spite of this I followed your advice and want to say that you were right while they were far from being correct.

In the first place the detour they spoke of has been discontinued for several weeks and the route goes right through on the main highway from Cairo to Memphis with no trouble whatever and none in prospect. There is no danger from high water at any point. Furthermore, the route south on the east side from Cairo which the Chicago Motor club suggested, now includes a bad detour on account of a wrecked bridge south of Cairo. The danger from flood water anywhere along the route we have come is entirely past and we are told here that this road from here to New Orleans, No. 51, is perfectly O. K.

PAUL JENSEN.

INDIANA PLANS TO IMPROVE 500 MILES IN 1930

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—With a record of overdrafts, some of which were covered by advanced appropriations purported to have been approved by the state finance committee and others made good by prepayments of gasoline tax fees on a monthly instead of a quarterly basis, as stipulated by law and without available figures as to its outstanding obligations, the Indiana highway commission nevertheless proposes to spend $22,500,000 this year.

The total which may be spent this year—the largest sum ever proposed for highway financing in the history of the state—was arrived at by the "estimate" method. It was figured on the basis of previous returns.

License Fees $6,500,000.

The automobile license fees would produce $6,545,110, as compared to $5,950,115 in 1929. The gasoline tax of 3 cents a gallon should produce $12,716,706.34, as compared to $9,973,723.19 last year. Miscellaneous receipts should bring in $1,184,470, as compared to $1,201,955.53 in 1929, and federal aid should add $2,131,891, as compared to $2,368,772.56 received last year.

Thus the commission plans to spend approximately $3,000,000 more in 1930 than it did in 1929.

In the last fiscal year, however, its expenditures, $20,677,795.78, were $1,192,199.59 greater than its receipts, which totaled $19,485,596.19. The failure of expenditures and income to coincide is pointed out by the state board of accounts in a report just made public covering highway commission activities for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1929.

$12,470,000 Budget.

The highway commission is operating this year on a legislative budget of $12,470,000, which is divided as follows: Administration, $70,000; construction, $8,000,000, and maintenance, $4,400,000. The appropriation act, however, provides that all automobile license fees, gasoline taxes, and miscellaneous receipts in excess of the appropriation, together with federal aid, "shall be added to the appropriation herein made for the construction of pavement and bridges."

If the forecast of the commission is correct and the income reaches $22,500,000, then the construction division will receive all above $12,470,000 or $10,030,000. This figure added to the regular appropriation of $8,000,000, would give the commission, therefore, a total of $18,030,000 to be used for construction purposes alone.

Plan to Pave 500 Miles.

The commission has set down a program calling for the paving of 500 miles for this year. As pavement costs an average of about $30,000 a mile in Indiana, the 500 mile program, if completed, would entail an outlay of $15,000,000. It is planned to spend more than $1,000,000 on bridges. Already 237 miles have been placed under contract for paving, which with 94 miles left over from last year, makes a total of 331 miles actually under contract. Last year 301 miles were paved with concrete and 120 miles were surfaced by the maintenance department, a total for the year of 421 miles. It would cost approximately $2,400,000 to pave the additional 69 miles which is the difference between the completed 1929 program and the proposed 1930 program.

If consideration is given to the $1,000,000 difference between income and expenditure last year and the advance payments of more than $600,000 already made from this year's appropriation, the anticipated increase of $3,000,000 this year would be half gone before the new program could be carried out.

NEWS AND VIEWS

The bantam Austin will go into production this spring at Butler, Pa. C. A. Best, general sales manager, says he has orders for 85,575 cars of the new American edition of the English machine. The automobile will weigh less than 1,100 pounds and will sell under $500.

Paul W. Seiler, president of the Yellow Truck and Coach company, announces the organization of the Terminal Cab corporation, which will operate taxicab service from railroad stations. The new corporation is controlled by the Yellow Truck and Coach company, which in turn is a subsidiary of the General Motors corporation.

The trend in motor truck designs, according to Clarence E. Eldridge, sales manager of Reo, is toward machines capable of the agile maneuvers of modern traffic.

Shipments of Chrysler built passenger cars, trucks, buses and commercial vehicles increased fifty per cent over the record of December, and the prospects for February, according to a factory bulletin, are for a further increase.

Pierce-Arrow shipments for January, following the introduction of three new groups of straight eights, greatly exceeded all of the company's previous records, it was announced by A. J. Chanter, first vice president and general manager. The total was nearly three times greater than that of any previous January in the company's history, he said.

In the new Oakland V type eight, engineers have for the first time in the history of internal combustion motors solved down draft carburation, according to H. A. Wehmeier, vice president and general manager of Community Motors, Inc.

The Met-L-Wood corporation has developed a patented body material advertised as eliminating the need for ribs in the interior of commercial cars. The material makes sidewalls three-eighths of a inch thick, consisting of thin sheets of steel over wood with a fabric bond between the metal and the wood. Strength with light weight are claimed by the manufacturers.

55 Year Old Auto Racer May Drive at Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Rene Thomas, grizzled speed veteran of France, who won the Indianapolis 500 mile race in 1914, wants to return, at the age of 55 years, to compete in the eighteenth running of the historic race classic here May 30. Thomas, a national hero of France for many years, wants to "win the 500 mile race just once more before I retire," he declares in a communication to the management of the Indianapolis motor speedway with whom he is negotiating his plans to compete in the coming speed event here.

The road mileage of the world is now 7,805,629 miles, and there was a gain of 18.6 per cent, or 1,222,028 miles, in 1929, according to Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor club. Of the total, 3,016,281 miles, or 36.7 per cent, are in the United States.

"Considering mileage in proportion to area without regard to road surface," he continued, "Japan leads all other countries of the world with three miles of road to the square mile of area, with the United States in thirteenth position with one mile to every square mile of area.

"Of the countries reporting by types, the United States is the only one with more than 100,000 miles of hard surfaced roads. Italy stands second, with 94,731 miles; India third, with 66,176, and the Irish Free State fourth, with 46,371 miles. These are followed by Czecho-Slovakia, which has 44,752 miles; Rumania, 36,660; New Zealand, 31,289; Poland, 30,904; Netherland East Indies, 25,075; France, 24,885; Austria, 20,627; The Netherlands, 15,534; Jugo-Slavia, 17,436; northern Ireland, 12,992; Portugal, 11,899, and Hungary, 11,244."

116,000 U. S. Autos Stolen in 1928; Many Recovered

Automobile thieves got away with 116,000 cars in the United States during the last year. They are valued at $81,200,000. Eighty to 90 per cent of the automobiles are eventually recovered in a damaged condition. Thefts of cars increase in October and November. In February the number reaches the lowest point of the year.

ONE-LIGHT CAR A MENACE.

Operating a car with only one headlight burning is a serious source of danger to other automobile drivers, as the lights are the only way to judge the position of a car at night.

LEADS all low-priced sixes in performance and value

In tested quality, in the smartness and individuality of its design, in speed and pick-up, in luxurious comfort—the new Chrysler "66," priced at $995 and upwards, definitely leads all low-priced sixes in every phase of performance and in value.

The advanced character of its engineering is evidenced by its modern 75-horsepower engine with counter-weighted 7-bearing crankshaft, Invar Strut pistons, impulse neutralizer, mechanical fuel pump instead of a vacuum tank, rubber engine mountings, and numerous other typically Chrysler engineering features.

A new riding ease is achieved through an entirely new type of rubber spring shackle, noiseless and never requiring lubrication. Another exceptional asset is the safety of the famous Chrysler internal-expanding four-wheel hydraulic brakes.

Note, too, its French-type roof and steel quarter panels at sides and rear—characteristics of the latest trend in finest coach work. Point after point, feature after feature—emphasize conclusively the fact that the new Chrysler "66" is the major value of all the lower-priced sixes. Demonstration and comparisons furnish the proof.

PHONE BOULEVARD 3010

PLAN $500,000 HOTEL TO FACE WORLD'S FAIR

Building to Go Up on Lake Park Ave.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

That Chicago's 1933 World's Fair is going to be an important factor in putting the local building situation back on a normal basis is becoming more and more apparent to real estate men and builders, although comparatively few projects have been announced as influenced by the coming exposition.

Today, however, a half million dollar hotel project is made public which is frankly counting on its location overlooking the World's Fair grounds as one of its biggest assets. In addition it is contemplating using the name "Fair View" to emphasize its commanding site.

The new structure is to be erected at 3603-05 Lake Park avenue by Mrs. Julia L. Nelson, who lives at 8001 South Green street, in the Auburn Park district. Mrs. Nelson, who is a large owner of improved real estate, will manage the new hotel herself.

Will Overlook Fair Grounds.

According to Albert S. Hecht, architect of the Fair View hotel, the building will be erected with two important future developments in mind. The primary one, of course, is the World's Fair. The tentative plans lead the owner to believe that her hotel will overlook several of the most important structures of the big exposition.

With that in mind, Mr. Hecht has designed a structure with two fronts, or, in other words, there'll be no unsightly rear wall. The building's east elevation, overlooking the World's Fair grounds, will be identical with the west elevation on Lake Park avenue. In fact, the east wall may develop into more of a front door than the avenue entrance, for a private walk will lead directly from the east doors to the nearby 36th street station of the Illinois Central.

But the Fair View hotel will not be a double shirt front building, with two principal elevations and two unsightly side walls. Mr. Hecht states that both the north and south walls, which eventually will be hidden from view by adjoining buildings, will be built of paving brick of the same shade as the face brick used on the east and west walls.

Have New Boulevard in Mind.

The architecture, by the way, will be Gothic. The east and west elevations will be of dark reddish brown wire cut brick, laid up with Indiana limestone and with marble base.

The second important development kept in mind by Mr. Hecht in designing the Fair View hotel is the long talked of ultimate covering over of the Illinois Central right of way when that road is completely electrified, and the transforming of what are now unsightly railroad tracks into a magnificent boulevard, sweeping from Grant park along the western boundary of Burnham park, through Hyde Park and south to connect with various state highways into Indiana and southern Illinois.

Calls Project Logical.

"Of course, there has been no official action or even definite assurance on the part of the railroad that this will be done," said Mr. Hecht, "but when one considers what was accomplished in New York along these lines, it seems logical for Chicago to carry out a somewhat similar development over the Illinois Central.

"Such a project would not only give one of the widest and finest boulevards in the world from the loop to the far south side but it would open up for the construction of tall apartment buildings a stretch of several miles of fine building sites along the west side of the proposed drive. All these structures, at least between Grant park and 49th street, would look out over this boulevard, across Burnham park to the lake."

Will Have Subway Garage.

The new Fair View hotel will be seven stories in height and have 105 large one room kitchenette apartments, all with concealed beds. The bathrooms and kitchenettes will have colored tile wainscoting. Each suite frigerator. All of the metal kitchen refrigerator. All of the metal kitchen cabinets and bathroom fixtures will be in colors. The suites all will have large dressing rooms with cedar lined cabinets.

The entire building will be furnished. On the main floor will be the office, lobby, and writing rooms. The building will have two passenger elevators.

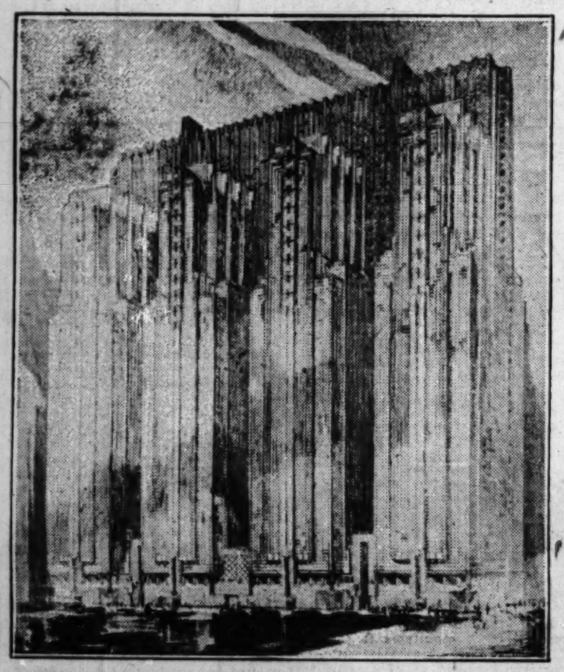
The plans call for underground space to accommodate 100 cars of the tenants of the hotel. The entrance to this subway garage will be from Lake Park avenue. The building site is 67x155.

According to Architect Hecht work will start on April 1 with the expectation of having the hotel ready for guests by Oct. 1. He states that the building will cost $350,000, the land $60,000, and the furnishings and furniture, $45,000, or a total of $500,000.

WILL OVERLOOK EXPOSITION

Albert S. Hecht is architect of the above seven story reinforced concrete apartment hotel, to be erected at 3603-05 Lake Park avenue by Julia L. Nelson. The total investment, it is reported, will be $500,000.

LOOKING AT CITY OF FUTURE



Above is a skyscraper office building with walls of glass which Frank Lloyd Wright, with the collaboration of Charles L. Morgan, has designed for possible erection in Chicago. Mr. Wright says there is a possibility that a structure of this type may be put up in time to awe the crowds that will come to the World's Fair in 1933.

ON WEST MADISON STREET

Work is now under way on the above ramp type garage building at 5651-55 West Madison street from plans by Fox & Fox. The owner is the Waller Garage company, of which Richard G. Stege is president. The total reported cost of land and building will be $175,000. The structure will be 75x140, with front elevation of modern design in Indiana limestone. Completion is set for March 15.

STEAMSHIP LINES LEASE STORE ON NORTH MICHIGAN

The North Michigan avenue travel center is to be further enlarged through the lease of the premises at 216 North Michigan by the United States lines and the American Merchant lines. After alterations—to be completed about May 1—they will open one of the most elaborate steamship offices in the city. Willoughby & Co. negotiated the lease.

Orr to Discuss Values with Future Realtors

"The Effect of the Neighborhood on Land Values" is the subject of a talk Louis T. Orr will give before the class in real estate fundamentals at the Chicago Central College of Commerce at 6 p. m. Tuesday, Feb. 18. The class is given in conjunction with the Chicago Real Estate board.

MASON PREDICTS GOOD BUSINESS FOR REALTY MEN

Frank R. Mason, president of the Frank R. Mason company, predicts a good year in real estate and backs up this prediction with the announcement that he has recently added forty men to his sales force.

"The best indication of a good real estate market is the amount of new salespeople entering the business," he said. "The last month and a half has brought back to the subdivision business a great many old time real estate salesmen who left during 1928 and 1929 because of a slow market.

"The Frank R. Mason company has put on more new salespeople in this period of time than we ever did during a like period since the inception of this concern. Among them are D. Waterman, formerly general sales manager for the R. Roy Berry company, and Ben H. Laudermilk. Others are Clarence Walsh and Oliver McIntosh."

Gotham Milliners Lease Willoughby Tower Store

Jaccard, Inc., a New York organization, have leased the store at 79-81 East Madison street, in the Willoughby Tower, for an undisclosed term and after alterations will open with a millinery establishment. L. L. Sachs was broker.

G. F. Anderson to Address Real Property Institute

George F. Anderson, an attorney specializing in real estate law, will address the Real Property Institute of the Cook County Real Estate board Tuesday, Feb. 18, at 8 p. m., at the board's rooms, 100 North La Salle street. He will talk on "What a Lease Means." At 7 p. m., M. M. Oshe will lecture on "Joint Tenancy—Effect of Judgment or Certificate of Sale on the Interest of the Surviving Joint Tenant."

SKYSCRAPER OF GLASS MAY RISE ON CHICAGO SITE

Wright Discusses Plan for Novel Edifice.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

If an enterprise now being developed by Frank Lloyd Wright, internationally known architect, in collaboration with Charles L. Morgan, his associate, comes to fruition, visitors to Chicago World's Fair in 1933 will see one of the most unusual buildings on the continent—a glass skyscraper office structure.

Mr. Wright has prepared tentative plans for a glass cloaked skyscraper to rise to a height of 264 feet on a lot 300x105 feet. He states that the enterprise is not visionary and that there is a strong likelihood that this prospective glass skyscraper will become a reality.

Already Mr. Wright has planned a tall apartment house which he asserts St. Mark's Episcopal church of New York will erect at an early date in Gotham for general renting.

Permits Colorful Effects.

The building of a tall glass structure would greatly enhance the beauty of the night scene in Chicago, Mr. Wright comments, because by reason of the material used most novel and beautiful lighting effects could be obtained.

The framework of the proposed building will be of reinforced concrete, Mr. Wright states. Cantilever construction permits the covering of the structure with glass, which would weigh much less than the customary masonry walls. Mr. Wright asserts that a glass covered building weighs a third less than the ordinary structure and at the same time is three times as strong. Further, he holds that it would cost less to build than present day edifices.

The metal framework to hold the glass coat is to be tied to the skeleton of the building at the floors. Each glass pane, according to Mr. Wright's plan, would measure about 2 feet by 2 feet. The type of glass and the manner of use to insure retention of heat is now the subject of study by the architects.

Plan System of Shades.

Control of outside light would be secured by an elaborate system of shades which would permit the entry of the amount desired.

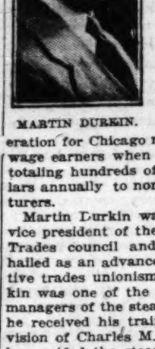
In his discussion of the enterprise Mr. Morgan said that undoubtedly glass permitting the passage of ultraviolet rays would be used. Mr. Morgan, who is one of the leading exponents of modern or contemporary architecture and design in the city, was especially enthusiastic about the colorful effects that might be secured at night. Decorative touches could be secured through the use of opaque and translucent glasses and light weight building materials.

CHICAGO TRADE FOR CHICAGOANS, UNION DEMANDS

Wants Business Held Inside City.

BY THOMAS WREN.

Chicago for Chicagoans is the keynote appeal embodied in a resolution adopted by the Metal Trades Council of Chicago.



MARTIN DURKIN.

Protest is voiced in the council's communication against the letting of contracts to nonresident Chicago manufacturers. It states that many city officials, sanitary trustees, board of education members and park and county commissioners evince no consideration for Chicago manufacturers and wage earners when they let contracts totaling hundreds of thousands of dollars annually to nonresident manufacturers.

Martin Durkin was recently elected vice president of the Chicago Building Trades council and his selection is hailed as an advancement of constructive trades unionism. For years Durkin was one of the assistant business managers of the steamfitters' local and he received his training under supervision of Charles M. Rau. The latter has guided the steamfitters' organization for the last thirty years and today it is classed as one of the most efficient building trades units in the country.

Builders state its strength lies in the fact that officers of the local measure their economic advancement with fairness to all parties of agreement.

John F. Schilt is president of the Metal Trades council and Julius Uhlmann is the secretary and the council is comprised of units of electricians, technical engineers, blacksmiths, molders, factory and mill workers, pattern makers, laborers, machinists and sheet metal workers. All trades are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

Copies of the resolution have been sent to all city officials.

Newton Farr to Address North Side Renting Agents

Newton C. Farr, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, will address north side renting agents at Govan hall, southeast corner of Wilson and Broadway, at 8 p. m. Wednesday, Feb. 19. He will discuss the tax situation. Other talks will be given by Thomas J. Fleming of Ross & Browne and Herman V. Silvertrust of Ziv, Loomis & Silvertrust.

Walgreen Drug Company Leases at 79th and Essex

The Walgreen Drug company has leased the store at the northwest corner of 79th street and Essex avenue from Grace M. Kern and E. Mathias Owens. After alterations there'll be another Walgreen drug store on the south side. Gus C. Manos was broker.

FARM and GARDEN BY PAUL POTTER

PLANTS INSURE LIFE OF SPECIES IN VARIOUS WAYS

The means by which plants in nature reproduce their kind are seeds, spores, rootstocks, stolens, suckers or root sprouts, bulbs, corms and tubers. By these means nature has provided for the perpetuation of species, for the continuation of general types. But man endeavors to reproduce the peculiar desirable qualities found in a single individual, and to mutiliply the number of individuals possessing these qualities. Therefore, in addition to using the natural means of reproduction, man has developed several artificial means of reproducing plants, of which the principal are cuttings, layering, grafting and budding.

Many species of plants, including a number of common grasses, spread by means of vigorous, fleshy rootstocks which push out laterally in all directions from the parent plant, developing rootlets and throwing up the stems of new plants at intervals. Johnson grass and Bermuda grass are excellent examples of plants which spread in this manner.

Some plants throw out trailing branches or runners which take root at their ends or at joints, thus reproducing new plants. The strawberry is an excellent example of this class. Black raspberries reproduce in a very similar way, as the tips of the drooping canes readily take root when they touch the ground.

Produce by Sprouts.

Many plants reproduce by means of suckers and sprouts sent up by lateral roots.

Nursery practices are greatly facilitated by this natural tendency in plants which reproduce their kind true to variety, as do the red raspberry and blackberry and some plums.

In general, seedlings and all plants that have grown from cuttings will come true from root sprouts if they reproduce in that way. Outside the bush fruits, however, this method of reproduction should be discouraged rather than encouraged. Nothing is more annoying to the orchardist and fruit grower than persistent sprouting.

A bulb is a short rudimentary axis incased in more or less close fitting fleshy leaves or bulb scales, in which is stored up nutriment to be used in subsequent growth. It is, in fact, a more or less permanent and compact leaf bud throwing out roots from its lower portion. Bulbs usually form at or just beneath the surface of the ground. They may be divided into two general classes, those composed of more or less continuous and close fitting layers or plates, as in the onion. Bulbs often divide naturally into two or more parts, or may be so divided artificially. Each of these parts serves the purpose of a complete bulb in propagation.

Other Bulb Types.

Small bulbs or bulbels, sometimes called "daughter" bulbs, develop around the large or "mother" bulb, and are used in propagation. Bulbs are often caused to produce these bulbels artificially by wounding or mutilating them. A bulblet is a small bulb borne entirely above the ground in the axil of a leaf or at the top of a stem, as in the case of onion "sets."

A corm resembles a bulb, but it differs from it in being solid throughout. Small corms, or cormels, are developed in very much the same manner as are daughter bulbs. Examples of corm producing plants are the Indian turnip, crocus, gladiolus, and caladium.

HOME BUILDING AND REMODELING

ITEM OF COLOR IS IMPORTANT POINT IN HOME PLANNING

Various Hues Now Being Built Into House.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.
[Home Builders Editor.]

Color in the home is no longer merely a matter of paint and wallpaper and draperies within the home; color is now incorporated in the very materials with which the home is built. And the consideration of "what color materials we shall have" is a vital problem to the prospective home owner long before the first shovels have been started working on the basement excavation.

LOUISE BARGELT. [Hutchinson Photo.]

Take the house exterior first. With a frame house color has long been a matter of paint and individual taste, with the owner offered an infinite variety of possible colorings. Masonry construction, however, is now possible, in many cases with as infinite a variety of shades as that afforded by paint.

Stucco walls are available in almost as many colors as the spectrum.

With brick in its modern development, a wide assortment of colors is possible. Surface treatment, for instance, may be given cement brick which can produce almost any shade. With brick the mortar colors are vitally important, as brick work and the color effects obtained are influenced by these same mortar colorings.

Many Roof Colorings.

With stone walls their colorings are natural, usually subdued and blending in harmoniously with nature's tints.

Roofing materials, expensive and inexpensive alike, possess practically every possibility for color.

Within the home the question of floors comes up almost immediately. The floor, in many instances, establishes itself as a definite color note where once rugs and draperies were depended upon.

Wood, the ever beloved standby of home owners, has kept in step with the popular demand for color. Many different shades are possible in the close grained, narrow hardwoods, stained as they are under a varnish or wax finish.

Blue and Green Floors.

We see these floors in blues and greens, jet blacks, deep purples, as well as the soft browns and reds and tans. Individual blocks of oak, stained in desired colors, can be laid to create the floor effect of marble or tile.

Other floorings possessing permanent and rich colorings are ceramic tiles, rubber and cork and linoleum tile.

Walls must be considered at the same time with floors in the building of a house, especially if one is planning to have color built in the walls rather than laid later by wall paper, fabric, paint, or plaster.

Wood paneling can be had in almost any shade desired; unusual and new colors produced by fillers and stain combinations on such ever popular woods as oak, maple, mahogany, cypress, pine, and so on.

Glass Is Popular.

Ceramic tiles for walls, as well as floors, are always rich and colorful and possible for many different rooms. Stone walls and interesting compositions resembling stone are use. Structural glass is a popular and lovely treatment for boudoir and bath, for kitchen and dining room alike.

An interesting and fascinating attitude, this, of incorporating color in the fundamental building materials of the home. An attitude making necessary increased care on the part of the home owner that colors may not jar and that harmony may reign supreme.

Lowest Building Bid May Not Be Best

BY HOMER GRANT.

"I do wish that you would advise me how to choose a builder for the house I am going to erect shortly. We have a lot all paid for in a suburb outside Chicago and a set of plans purchased some years ago—just the plans we want. We put an ad in a local paper, showed plans and specifications to four builders and received bids ranging in price from $10,500 to $12,200. Now $1,700 difference seems a lot of money, but we want to make sure the cheapest bid is from a good builder. Where can we go to secure reliable information? Is it a risk to take the lowest bid?"

One might say off hand that if one knew that all the builders to whom one submitted plans were reliable, conscientious men one could then safely take the lowest one. Indeed, one should never submit plans to any builder to whom one is not willing to give the job if his price is right, for it costs a builder money to estimate and simply to use his price as a check on the other builder is not fair.

But if one receives bids "helter skelter," as it were, it would be folly just to take the lowest without due investigation. That is precisely why so much trouble is often encountered by home builders. The bid which is so low that it seems like a "heaven sent" boon can turn out to come from a very different place.

There are plenty of ways of finding out about builders and so many good and honest and reputable ones that it seems veriest folly to take a chance with a questionable one.

Sometimes a prospective home owner for economy's sake will deliberately choose a builder whose price is very low, and in whom he has not much confidence, thinking that he can hold him to a right performance of his duty by close supervision. This is poor policy indeed for there is little pleasure in building if one has to worry about every stick of lumber and hod of mortar that goes into his house, and there is little enjoyment in living in the house afterwards if an open fire can't be started without the grate smoking, or a nice warm rainy spell enjoyed because the basement floods and the roof leaks.

Good, reliable builders will erect a house much cheaper in the long run, and every community has these builders. They stand out, their reputations are good, they are not hard to find.

A prospective homeowner has to remember again that a good builder with a reputation to sustain has a good organization behind him; he furnishes good materials and does first rate work. He has credit back of him, moreover, and can make provision against loss of time and meet unexpected emergencies of various kinds. In return for delivering a substantial, well built house he expects a reasonable profit and he does not want to take that profit by scrimping on materials.

On the other hand there are shoestring builders whose offices are mostly in their hats an who perhaps work on the houses themselves. Many of these men know plenty about building and can often deliver an entirely satisfactory house and because they have practically no overhead they can underbid the more established builders.

The risk is that they may have little business backing, none too good credit with material dealers, and they sometimes get into all sorts of trouble as the house progresses, diverting payments from Peter to pay Paul.

Building is an exacting one and calls for a high grade man with an organization.

Predict Widespread Warfare Over Gasoline, Oil Prices

FIELD'S SHOWS $9,388,000 NET; LISTS SHARES

New President Once Was Cash Boy.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Directors of the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday approved listing of the new common stock of Marshall Field & Co. It is expected trading will begin on Tuesday simultaneously with a public offering of 540,000 shares by a Chicago banking syndicate.

MARSHALL MCKINLAY.

The stock exchange also made public a statement of assets and earnings of Marshall Field & Co. Total assets are $134,595,922, including any effect of appreciation in real estate, buildings, and leaseholds and with good will carried at cost. Net profits for 1929 were $9,388,000, equivalent after preferred dividend requirements to $5.14 a share on the 1,800,000 common shares to be presently outstanding.

The authorized capitalization of Marshall Field & Co. will consist of $18,000,000 first mortgage 5 per cent bonds, $17,500,000 of 4½ per cent debentures, $40,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock, and 2,000,000 shares of no par common stock. But there will be outstanding only $14,875,000 of bonds, of course, $31,267,000 of preferred stock, and 1,400,000 common shares. Of the 600,000 unissued common shares, it is intended to reserve 200,000 shares for sale to employés at a later date.

Assets Applicable to Common.

After deducting from total assets liabilities and reserves of $51,406,164 and the outstanding preferred stock the net assets of $51,949,348 applicable to the common stock, or approximately $37 a share.

Marshall Field & Co., is the largest organization in the world devoted to the manufacture, importation and wholesale and retail distribution of dry goods," a summary issued by the stock exchange says. "It was founded in 1865 by Marshall Field and has grown through successful operation, largely out of earnings, to its present size, with activities spreading throughout the world.

"Aggressive developments in recent years and still in progress have rendered the company's business today more diversified than ever before. Inauguration of a large retail sore on the Pacific coast and initiation of branch retail stores, both during the last year; acquisition of a group of small stores during the last two years; new manufacturing developments, and construction of the Merchandise mart in Chicago stand out among these. Satisfactory results attending these steps assure continuation of the successful growth which has marked the institution from its inception.

Rise of McKinlay.

Records of the business to 1871 were lost in the Chicago fire of that year. In every one of the fifty-eight years since, the company has earned substantial profit. The present company was incorporated in 1901. The management is in the hands of men who have grown up in the business with long years of service. Employés of unusual merit have been allowed to purchase common stock in a substantial amount of stock is held."

James Simpson, who was promoted from president to chairman, was not only the office boy of Marshall Field, the founder. John McKinlay, promoted from vice president to president, started to work for the firm in Scotland when he was 14 years old. He started as a cash boy and received $2.25 a week. It is related that he spent his first week's pay for long trousers, which he was told were essential. Later he received an increase of salary of 25 cents a week.

It is a coincidence, both Mr. McKinlay and Mr. Simpson were born in Greenock, Scotland, in 1874. Ten years later, Mr. McKinlay's parents came to this country and the boy attended the old Pullman school until he started to work for Marshall Field. He attended the Y. M. C. A. night school and later the night school at the Chicago College of Law and was admitted to the bar.

Stockholders Approve Merger of Five Utilities

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Stockholders of the Commonwealth Power corporation and the Southeastern Power and Light company have approved the plans of merger and consolidation of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, Allied Power and Light corporation, Southeastern Power and Light company, Commonwealth Power corporation and the Penn-Ohio Edison company. Stockholders of the other companies approved the plan at meetings earlier this week.

Weekly Debits Decrease, Reserve Bank Reports

Debits to individual deposit account reported to the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago for the week ended Feb. 12 by 255 banks in 34 leading clearing house cities aggregate $1,147,371,000, a decrease of 23.5 per cent compared with a week ago ($1,499,967,000). Compared with the corresponding week last year ($1,488,166,000) a decrease of 22.9 per cent was shown.

Sees Hook-Up of Chemistry With Business

BY SCRUTATOR.

Attempts to capture the world chemical markets have brought into conflict American and European ideas of industry as well as of technical skill.

Chemistry grew out of alchemy. Mysterious persons, some of them charlatans and some of them merely silly, played with strange retorts in the middle ages, talked of philosopher's stones and dreamed of changing base metals into gold.

In the modern age we know that chemistry is a method of finding usable goods of value. Yet the traditional assumption of mystery remained and on this basis the Europeans built up a separate chemical industry, divorced as far as possible from mechanical processes.

"The tradition," states Robert T. Baldwin of the American Chemical society, "came from the European economic scheme of a division of labor and the curious nature of a business derived from the dark schemes of alchemists. The rise of the German dye industry continued the tradition of aloofness."

Correlate Processes.

Mr. Baldwin sees this separation of the chemical industry as contrary to American practice in most lines, with the trend being to correlate chemical processes with mechanical, although the European tradition delayed it considerably.

It was observed some fifteen years ago that excellent dyestuffs were made in the United States in open wooden sheds and that the profits were used to build huge glass and steeel structures, with the result that there was for a long time an oversupply of plant built for strictly chemical manufacturing.

Meanwhile, since the war, the Europeans have gone about intensifying their control of chemicals as something that was separated from other business. We know that the German dye trust, with the other countries like France and Switzerland coöperating, have trade agreements that make the whole chemical business outside the United States a combination that would be opposed here as in restraint of trade.

On the other hand, the United States is following a different system. Industrial companies make their own chemicals on their own premises if the needed chemicals are sharply defined and do not include by-products. Smelters make sulphuric acid and phosphate fertilizer; and certain hydrocarbons are made from the wastes of the petroleum industry.

Spreads Out Manufacture.

It has been found economical in many instances to use low pressure steam from high pressure engines in processing chemicals. This and the general desire to keep operations moving in a straight line have had the effect of spreading the manufacture of chemicals over wide areas, with a large number of plants engaged in it.

We have in the United States some very large chemical companies. They are not, and probably never will be, comparable in monopoly power with those of Europe. The laws prevent it, for one thing, and the frequent discovery by manufacturers that they can make their own is another.

We know that much of our progress in future, as in the past, depends on a broadening knowledge of chemistry, on new materials and new uses for them. Likewise we know that there is a great battle on, in which the European cartel is striving to keep a market here as well as dominating the rest of the world in chemicals. There is evidence that this will fail, not only because the American companies have certain tariff protection but because chemical production is so well tied in many instances to mechanical production.

BANK CLEARINGS CONTINUE LOWER THAN YEAR AGO

Bank clearings were further reduced, the total for the week at all leading cities in the United States, as reported to Dun's Review, amounting to $8,331,272,000, showing a decline of 29.3 per cent from that of a year ago.

At New York City clearings of $5,488,000,000 were 34.4 per cent lower, while the aggregate for the principal centers outside of New York of $2,843,272 was 16.8 per cent below last year's.

The decrease in bank clearings since November last has been progressively larger each month. The report covers the first half of February.

Great Lakes Dredge Has $1,499,699 Net Income

Earnings of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company last year were the best since 1925, except for 1927, according to the annual report issued yesterday. Net income was $1,499,699, equivalent to $21.73 a share on 69,015 shares of capital stock, compared with net income of $1,131,487, or $16.39 a share, for 1928. Dividends totaled $10 a share and after surplus adjustments, total surplus was increased by $1,002,059 to a total of $6,111,674. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1929, shows current assets of $5,136,041 and current liabilities of $1,134,543, compared respectively with $4,286,982 and $837,546 at the end of 1928. Total assets now are $14,147,718.

BIG COMPANIES ENTRENCH FOR SUMMER FIGHT

East to Strike Back at Competition.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—In back of the reductions in the price of crude oil in the midcontinent field, concurred in this week by the Sinclair Consolidated Oil corporation after the Standard Oil companies of New York and New Jersey had established the lower schedules nearly a month ago, observers in the oil industry see the beginning of a widespread gasoline war during the coming spring and summer.

Based upon the production in the midcontinent fields during the week ended Feb. 8, the large distributing companies are saving about $500,000 a day in the cost of crude oil due to the reductions and with this differential the distributing companies dependent upon the midcontinent fields for their crude supply, it is pointed out, won't be as helpless in the matter of meeting price competition from California producers in the eastern distributing field.

Standard of Ind. Acts.

The latest step in the struggle was taken today when the Standard Oil company of Indiana announced a reduction of 2 cents a gallon in tank wagon and service station gasoline prices in its territory outside of Chicago and Detroit, effective Monday. The reduction is the result of competitive conditions, according to President Edward G. Seubert. Prices in Chicago and Detroit were adjusted some time ago.

Despite the record breaking consumption of gasoline during the 1929 season of peak use of automobiles, executives of practically every company complained that there was no profit in the business due to the multiplicity of filling stations and keen competition among them for a fair share of trade.

While Standard Oil of New York instituted all the gasoline price cutting that was done last year, officials of that company stated that the lower schedules were announced merely to meet prices of competitors who had not made official announcements of reduced prices.

Cite Shell Invasion.

The unsatisfactory conditions of last season as far as the gasoline distributing companies are concerned were attributed to the invasion of the eastern markets by the Shell Eastern Petroleum corporation, a subsidiary of the Royal Dutch Shell company, and the large importations of California gasoline on the Atlantic seaboard.

Heretofore the eastern markets had been principally served by gasoline refined from midcontinent crude oil, and the entry of California crude products into New York, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, and as far west as Ohio put a new factor into the field that admittedly upset trade practices.

Cuts in midcontinent crude prices were predicted last fall, but none came, and it was understood that the larger companies were waiting to see whether voluntary reductions in production in the midcontinent field and the working out of the California law for stopping the waste of natural gas would bring the crude supply down to the point of demand.

Gasoline Taxes.

Gasoline taxes in the United States were ninety-six times greater in 1929 than in 1921, and for the year just ended showed an increase of 47 per cent over 1928, according to estimates announced today by the American Petroleum institute, based upon reports from thirty-five states and estimates from thirteen.

Total collections by states for 1929 amounted to $449,731,000, an increase of $144,537,000 over the total of $305,223,824 collected in 1928. In 1921 the gasoline taxes amounted to only $4,700,000.

New York state, with a total of $20,000,000 collected by the imposition of a 2 cent tax on each gallon of gasoline, is sixth in the list of states in the total amounts collected, but the five states ahead of it all impose a larger tax. California with a 3 cents a gallon tax leads the list with a total collection of $37,599,713, which is an increase of more than $5,000,000 above the total collected in 1928. Ohio, with a 4 cents a gallon tax, ranks second in total amounts collected with $36,000,000, a gain of approximately $10,000,000, and Pennsylvania third with a 4 cents a gallon tax and collections of $35,038,619.

MIDDLE WEST HEADS CHICAGO STOCK ACTIVITY

Prices Trend Lower; Volume Moderate.

Week-end profit taking caused a sagging tendency in Chicago stocks yesterday, but declines were largely confined to fractions. The volume of trading was moderate, with a total turnover of 158,300 shares for the two hour session.

Middle West Utilities continued to lead in activity and eased a minor fraction on a turnover of 27,000 shares. At the company's annual meeting next month the stockholders will be asked to increase the authorized common stock from 18,200,000 to 25,000,000 shares in order to provide for payment of dividends in stock and for other future purposes.

Central and Southwest Utilities relapsed 1¾ points following its recent advance and Public Service of Northern Illinois fell three points on light trading. Midland United and National Electric Power "A" lost a point each and Associated Telephone Utilities was off a fraction, but Commonwealth Edison gained a point.

Allied Motor Features.

Active trading in Allied Motor was a feature in the automotive group. This issue advanced more than a point on a statement that a subsidiary, the Weatherproof Body corporation, set a new high record for sales last month with $105,057, which was more than double the figure for January, 1929. Auburn Auto gained two points in light trading, but Bendix declined more than a point and Borg-Warner and Cord sustained fractional losses.

The investment group was weak with fractional losses recorded in Corporation Securities, Insull Utilities and Utility and Industrial. Burnham Trading was off a point. Continental Chicago and Seaboard Utilities were unchanged. Chicago Corporation common was unchanged but the preferred was off a fraction. Chicago Investors and National Securities made fractional gains.

In the general list Great Lakes Aircraft rose two points, while Jefferson Electric was up fractionally on declaration of an extra dividend of 50 cents and a report that earnings last year were equivalent to $5.05 a share. Vortex Cup and Miller & Hart gained a point or so. Electric Household was up a fraction.

Submits Stock Split-Up.

The Central Public Service company sent notice to stockholders that a proposal to split the stock on a five for one basis will be submitted at a meeting next Wednesday. The common stock will be increased to an authorized issue of 1,069,230 shares.

The fifty most active stocks traded on the Chicago Stock exchange last week had a market value of $2,351,387,497 at the close of business yesterday, compared with $2,323,396,982 at the close of the previous week, according to a compilation by Swift, Langill & Henke.

Rock Island Ry. to Offer $25,000,000 in Debentures

The Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railway is planning to offer $25,000,000 convertible debentures, according to reports in Wall street circles. According to preferred stock provisions the 6 per cent and 7 per cent issues may share in any rights that may accrue, as well as the common stock.

JAN. EXPORTS DECLINE, IMPORTS GAIN; BALANCE OF TRADE FAVORABLE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—(AP)—Exports from the United States during January decreased $9,646,000 under the previous month, while imports increased by $3,000,000, leaving a favorable balance of trade of $105,000,000 for the month, compared with a favorable balance of $119,000,000 for January, 1929.

The department of commerce announced today that exports during January totaled $417,000,000, a decrease of $71,023,000 from January of last year, and that imports were $312,000,000, a gain of $3,000,000 over December, but $56,897,000 under the corresponding month of 1929.

Exports of gold during January totaled $8,948,000, as compared with $72,547,000 in December and $1,378,000 in January last year. Imports of gold totaled $12,908,000, against $48,577,000 in January, 1929.

Silver exports in January totaled $5,891,000, against $8,264,000 in January last year and $6,369,00 in December, 1929. Silver imports totaled $4,756,000, against $8,260,000 in January, 1929.

DEPOSITS IN U. S. SAVINGS BANKS REVERSE TREND

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—For the first time in twenty years, the amount of savings held by the American people in savings banks showed a decline last year instead of the usual sharp increase, according to a compilation prepared by the savings bank division of the American Bankers' association.

The shrinkage in savings deposits for the year ended June 29, last, amounted to over $195,000,000, contrasted with an appreciation of over $2,300,000,000 for the previous year, the largest gain on record.

Not only was there a decline in the amount of savings, the report shows, but the number of savings depositors also decreased during the year by more than 500,000 accounts. The total savings deposits in banks and trust companies of continental United States, as of June 29, 1929, stood at $28,217,656,000, the report shows.

In large part this decline in savings deposits is ascribed to the lure of the stock market and affiliated activities. The tremendous public participation in stock market speculation was financed, very largely through the withdrawal of savings bank accounts, while installment purchase of securities took the place, in many instances, of regular savings bank deposits.

New Financing for Week Is 152 Millions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—New bond issues placed on the market this week aggregated an amount more than double that of last week and reached the third largest weekly total for the year to date. The new bond financing this week reached $152,165,000, compared with $76,403,000 last week and $127,449,000 the previous week. The record weekly total for the year thus far was reached in the week ended on Jan. 11, when new flotations aggregated $293,746,000, with the following week ranking next with a total of $177,431,324.

Cuban Issue Leads.

The principal offering this week was that of $40,000,000 Republic of Cuba 5s which were offered on a 5.70 per cent basis. The second largest piece of financing was the issue of $35,000,000 Western Union Telegraph company 5s priced at par. A railroad financing consisted of two issues of $15,000,000 4½s and $10,000,000 5s, respectively, of the Morris and Essex Railroad company. The 4½s were priced to yield 4.75 per cent and the 5s to yield 4.76 per cent. Both issues were guaranteed by the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western.

Although more municipal issues were offered than the total of all the other groups combined, the total of state and municipal financing for the week amounted to only $24,400,000.

Most New Issues Received Well.

Most of the new issues brought out this week were well received. Subscription books on the Western Union 5s and Morris and Essex issues were closed shortly after they were formally opened.

Investment bankers are working on several sizable railroad, public utility and foreign issues, some of which are expected to reach the market next week.

PALMOLIVE HAS NET INCOME OF $8,910,631 FOR '29

For the year ended Dec. 31 Colgate-Palmolive-Peet company, makers of soap and toilet articles, reports net income of $8,910,631 after all charges, which is equal, after dividends on the preferred stock, to $4.45 a share on the 1,999,970 shares of common stock outstanding. In the preceding year the company earned $6,127,173, or $2.60 a share on common after the preferred stock requirements.

The directors voted the regular quarterly dividend of 62½ cents on the common stock at the annual meeting yesterday and also decided to apply for listing on the New York exchange.

The preliminary balance sheet as of Dec. 31 shows current assets of $34,002,000, as against current liabilities of $6,719,000. Surplus amounted to $15,779,000, against $13,327,100 at the end of 1928. Marketable securities and cash totaled $8,823,000.

Munson Line Buys Control of Gulf Mail Steamship Co.

New York, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Purchase of control of the Gulf Mail Steamship company by the Munson line was announced today by Frank C. Munson, president of the line bearing his name. "We have acquired an interest in the Gulf Mail line and will operate it as an American passenger, mail and express service between New Orleans and Progreso, Mexico," Mr. Munson said. "As the requirements of the trade increase we contemplate an increase in service, both as to ports and frequency."

REFUSES REHEARING ON ASSESSMENTS OF BANKERS' LIFE CO.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 15.—(AP)—The Iowa Supreme court today refused a rehearing of Albert P. Bratt's suit to restrain the Bankers' Life company of Des Moines from putting into effect increased assessments on holders of assessment policies.

Bratt and others first sued the company in the Marshall county District court seeking to prevent by injunction an increase in the rate for those persons who obtained policies from the Bankers' Life before it was converted into a legal reserve company. They also asked for an accounting of about $6,000,000 worth of funds they claimed to belong to the assessment policyholders.

In his petition Bratt claimed that the company had used funds belonging to assessment policy holders in promoting legal reserve business. He charged that had these funds not been converted there would have been sufficient funds to pay the death claims of those persons still holding assessment policies without increasing their assessments.

AMERICAN CAN REPORTS NET OF $22,724,802

A substantial increase in earnings for the American Can company for last year is announced. Net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1929, was $22,724,802 after depreciation, interest and federal taxes, equal after preferred dividends to $8.02 a share on 2,473,998 shares of $25 par, compared with $19,863,326, or $6.85 a share, in 1928.

BY FRED HARVEY.

(New York stock list page 12.)

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 15.—The stock market developed a heavy list to stardard in the abbreviated week-end session today. Profit taking and liquidation invited by the high levels to which prices have recovered since the first of the year knocked holes in the leaders and unsettled the course of trading generally.

Most of the important issues were in liberal supply including U. S. Steel common, the recent leader of the market, and the final tables reflected net losses of from 1 to more than 5 points.

U. S. Steel at 186 was off 3¼, Johns-Manville showed a dip of 4⅝, Eastman Kodak was off 6¼, Western Union was down 1⅝, Byers company 2¼, Chesapeake and Ohio 2½, Du Pont 2⅛, Standard Gas 2¼, New York Central 2½, Water Works 1⅜, and Columbia Carbon 2¼ points.

Trading Is Subdued.

Trading was generally quiet and the energetic operations for the advance which have pulled the market out of its week-end sluggishness in the late dealings on recent Saturdays failed to develop in force in any quarter. Overnight commission house letters were mostly bearish advising clients to lighten commitments on the bulges in readiness for the long expected setback and a large part of the early selling no doubt was due to the tenor of these missives. No doubt there are few among the trading elements who are genuinely bearish for a pull but the belief just as surely is growing

SIGNS CONSPIRE TO AID BEARS IN LONDON MARTS

Sterling-Dollar Exchange One Cause for Worry.

BY SIDNEY CAVE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Copyright: 1930: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—The bears gathered in the majority of the pickings in the stock markets this week. The weakness due to budget fears, the uncertain industrial situation, accentuated by the board of trade's official report and export trade figures of a less favorable nature this week, increasing political tangles for the government, and the continued lack of interest on the part of the public made the situation ever so good for the bears.

Paradoxically the bears have been especially rampant in the railroad stocks where, although a majority of a big group of companies announced increased dividends this week, the stocks immediately weakened and the bears made this market their happy hunting ground to the disappointment of the general investors.

On the basis of current declarations, British home rails junior stocks now offer yields of from 8 to 8½ per cent, which certainly appear to be commensurate with any risks involved such as an adverse trade situation and the effect of the government's coal mines and the operations. As considerable working economies have been effected in the last year, the railroads have already wakened to the possibilities of linking up with road transport.

Wall Street Is Factor.

Wall street again was a factor in practically the only real liveliness in the industrial markets, where fluctuations in trans-Atlantic favorites, International Nickel and Columbia Gramophones, indicate that large Wall street interests are still adopting the policy of "selling on the strong spots."

Last week's reduction in the bank rate and the expectations of cheaper money produced little effect except in the gilt edged market. Since the reduction the short loan market has subsided. Supplies funds have dried up and relatively high rates are now having to be repaid for short loans. In fact, daily money is dearer than before the bank rate dropped, another paradox. Advance knowledge of the reduction of the New York Federal Reserve bank rate is now believed to have influenced the Bank of England directors last week in coming down to 4½ per cent.

Germany Buying Gold.

The reappearance of Germany as the principal buyer of bar gold on the open market has not had a steadying effect. Financial experts confidently insist that the world is entering an era of cheaper money generally. Even the exceptionally high figures previously current in countries such as Austria and Hungary are giving place to more normal quotations, and the downward movement has extended to Java, though the latter is hardly a factor of the London market. If the world movement continues, money market interests believe a 4 per cent rate will rule before long. Some quarters suggest that a still lower rate is probable in the summer months.

Financial circles continue to be extremely worried over the decline of the sterling-dollar exchange, a fact regarded here as exceedingly unsatisfactory and somewhat discouraging. The current rate is now well below a parity, and if the present tendencies persist an even lower rate is envisaged by market interests.

Total receipts yesterday, $11.90; average, $10.75.
Estimated receipts at Chicago Monday: Hogs, 66,000 hogs, and 18,000 cattle.

There was a good clearance of hogs at the week-end session, but on a scale to 10c lower price basis, the whole top showing 10c loss at $11.25, with the general average came down to at $10.75. Almost all interests bought readily on the downturn, and only 1,500 pen holders and inferior sales remained at the close.

Outsiders obtained 2,500, while local traders handled 14,700, including direct. Light weights showed most weakness at the finish, but bulk of offerings are still 10@30c above the close of the previous week.

Beach Peak During Week.

Continued small receipts coupled with good eastern demand elevated hog prices to new high levels for the week during the last week. The general average for the week at $10.75 made highest since middle of last August, and compares with $10.40 the previous week and with $10.20 a year ago.

At this time in 1923 hog prices were ranging $8.10, among the lowest in recent years. Demand for pork holds good in face of rising prices, the accumulation throughout the country being unusually small since the first of the year.

Run at Chicago finished the week at 14½@23c, against 16@21½c a week ago, 16@22c a month ago, and 9@18c a year ago. The eleven leading markets during the last two weeks handled 1,123,000 hogs, which compares with a total of 1,448,000 a year ago and with 1,693,000 two years ago. The condition of the cattle market showed the first signs of improvement last week, the result of several weeks of "starvation" receipts, which has likely had the desired effect on the English dressed meat trade.

The surplus of beef has been worked off at stronger prices, and with closing firm on the wholesale market slightly cheaper a week ago, the buying power of local interests was increased enough to allow a recovery of 25@50c in the market for live cattle.

The week's general average price of fed beef steers at $12.35 was 15c above the previous week and compared with $12.65 a year ago and with $12.80 two years ago. With the exception of a few days, when supplies were also below normal, aggregate receipts at leading centers during the last few weeks have been among the smallest in record for the time of year.

Lambs Sell Low.

For the first time in recent years lambs are selling for less than hogs. The disastrous break in lamb prices developed during the first half of last week and brought quotations to among the lowest since almost before the war. The week's general average at $10.85 was 10c below the hog average and barring the year of 1921 was back to 1916 for an equal low level.

Receipts for Monday are estimated at 17,000 cattle, 66,000 hogs and 18,000 sheep, against 13,057 cattle, 74,183 hogs and 24,260 sheep a week ago, 14,820 cattle, 57,749 hogs and 20,-[illegible] sheep the corresponding day a year ago. Next week's receipts are estimated at 45,000 cattle, 200,000 hogs and 75,000 sheep, against 43,220 cattle, 133,134 hogs and 62,655 sheep a year ago.

STOCK MARKET SHIP DEVELOPS A HEAVY LIST

that a reaction of some sort is necessary to correct the technical position of the market.

Many observers are convinced indeed that there has been an organized plan behind the upward move in stocks in the last two weeks. It is pointed out that no attempt is being made to bolster up weak stocks which are being allowed to adjust themselves and find their own levels. This is considered to be a healthy plan of action and one less likely to involve a drastic wholesale reaction.

Wall Street Opinion.

Large amounts of money are available for investment in this country and it is natural that this money should seek employment in high grade common stocks. This money, rather than lie idle, will be satisfied with a small return, it is believed. Wall street is of the opinion that the quickest way to start business booming again in this country is to have a good buoyant stock market. A good market, it is declared, would restore confidence and bring a great deal of cautious money out of hiding into active business.

Selling orders had accumulated in large volume in brokerage houses overnight and except for a show of strength by a number of isolated favorites the main list was under pressure from the start of operations today.

News from other centers helped liquidation in some sections. Thus the oil shares suffered from continued prospects of a spread in cutting of crude oil prices by independents following the lead of the Standard Oil interests and Sinclair and uncertainty over curtailment programs. Skelly, Standard of California and Sinclair all sank to new low levels for the year.

Fox Film was again under pressure and slipped to the lowest level quoted since the reorganization plan was announced, as the bears proceeded to capitalize the continued uncertainty over the plans for refinancing the company.

Move Against Trend.

Short covering, however, enabled a number of favored stocks to move against the general trend. International Telephone was one of them. A large short interest is reported to be still outstanding in this issue. Radio was firm in sympathy. Gillette rebounded sharply, scoring a net gain of 3 points. American Machine and Foundry and Continental Baking were others to distinguish themselves by moving against the current.

Week-end business reviews described a general trend toward improvement and money conditions continue uneasy.

Since the New York federal reserve cut its rate last week a number of other regional institutions have followed with lower charges. The highest rate in effect now is 4½ per cent and four banks are on the 4 per cent level. That means, of course, reduced charges by the banks to their customers, but during the week no significant changes in money rates have taken place here. Call money has ruled at 4 per cent, with a rise to 4½ per cent at the end, due to mid-month settlements and payments for some recent financing.

WHEAT PRICES WORK LOWER ON BOARD OF TRADE

Closing Quotations Show 1 to 1¼c Loss.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Liquidation on a mild scale continues in all of the world's wheat markets, and prices were on the down grade again yesterday with prices here off 1@1¼c for the day, with March finishing at $1.15½@1.15⅝, and May, $1.20@1.20¼, week-end evening up causing a small upturn from the inside figures of the day.

Winnipeg was 1¼@1⅝c lower, with futures at a new low on the crop, while Liverpool lost 1⅜@1¾d, and Buenos Aires was ⅛@1c lower.

There was nothing in the general run of the news to account for the selling, which in the main was by scattered commission houses in small lots. However, the trade has been looking for an increase in the foreign demand for North American wheats since the turn of the year, and the business during the past 6 weeks has fallen far below expectations, and despite the creation of the stabilization corporation and the persistent buying of country run grain by the co-operatives sentiment in general has turned to the bear side. At the inside prices showed 4⅛@4⅜ under the high point of the week.

Grains Lower for Week.

While there was a rather sharp upturn in wheat at one time, the bulge brought in persistent selling and at the last net losses range ⅞@1c as compared with the previous week. Corn was 1⅜@1⅝c lower and oats, ⅛@⅜c lower for the week, while rye was unchanged to 1⅛c lower. Lard declined 2⅛@5c for the week and bellies advanced 7⅛@17½c.

At the moment the average wheat trader is not disposed to get far from shore, and awaits fresh developments in either the export or crop situation.

The world's crop of 3,415,000,000 bu is 528,000,000 bu less than last year, but the decrease was offset to a large extent by the abnormally large carryover from the old crop, and so far importers' takings this season have fallen well below the most pessimistic estimate as requirements.

Crop Reports Mixed.

The trade is commencing to pay a little more attention to reports as to the outlook for the new winter wheat crop. Private returns from Kansas and Oklahoma failed to disclose any damage of consequence, but considerable winter killing was claimed in Ohio. However, the damage claims were not backed with buying orders.

Corn Nears Season's Low.

There was scattered selling of corn futures which gave the market an easy undertone, and at the inside prices were within a fraction of the lowest figures of the season. Week-end short covering caused a small upturn from the bottom with the close at net losses of ½@⅝c, March being 86⅝c, and May, 90⅜c.

Hedging sales in oats by cash interests had a depressing effect and the close was ⅛@⅜c lower with March finishing at 44⅛c and May 45⅝c. Commission house interest was small.

Action of the rye market was largely a reflection of wheat, trade being light and the undertone easy. March rallied toward the last on short covering and closed ⅝c higher at 82⅜c, while the deferred futures were unchanged to ⅛c lower, with May 82⅛c. Argentina is estimated to need 275,000 bu rye for seed, and has asked for offers from North America.

LARD STOCKS INCREASE

Lard stocks in Chicago increased 6,023,469 lbs since Feb. 1 and are 37,125,314 lbs, as compared with 82,965,756 lbs last year. Bellies increased nearly 1,000,000 lbs in the last two weeks and are around 10,000,000 lbs less than a year ago, being 17,530,000 lbs.

Shipments of meats for the week were less than the previous week and larger than last year, and of lard showed increases for both periods. Hog prices were lower and larger receipts are expected Monday. Prices follow:

HO HUM!

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH YOU?

NOTHING

HO! HUM!— NOTHING! — I KNOW WHAT THAT HO HUM — NOTHING — MEANS —

THE HOME LOVING MR. GUMP — HAVING TO SPEND AN EVENING AT HOME IS LIKE GIVING YOU A JAIL SENTENCE — IF HOME IS SO DISTASTEFUL TO YOU WHY DON'T YOU JOIN THE NAVY — OR SOME ROAD SHOW THAT PLAYS ONE NIGHT STANDS —

OH WELL — HERE IT COMES — GO AHEAD — SHOOT —

THIS IS THE FIRST EVENING THAT YOU HAVEN'T BEEN OUT FOR FIVE STRAIGHT NIGHTS — AND JUST LOOK AT YOU — LIKE A BIRD IN A CAGE — JUST CAN'T STAND CONFINEMENT —

HE ISN'T CONTENT TO SIT AT HOME WITH HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN ANY MORE — FOR A QUIET LITTLE EVENING — NO! — HE CRAVES EXCITEMENT —

WELL — IF IT'S EXCITEMENT YOU CRAVE — YOU'LL HAVE ALL THE EXCITEMENT YOU WANT RIGHT HERE IN YOUR OWN HOME —

I SUPPOSE WE'LL HAVE TO PUT ON A BULL FIGHT EVERY EVENING TO KEEP YOU HOME — WHAT?

MY WILD IRISH ROSE

I WISH SOME OF THE NEIGHBORS COULD JUST PEEK IN — AND SEE THE WAY YOU ACT — THE MAN I PROMISED TO HONOR AND OBEY — LOOK AT THAT FACE — OH — IF I HAD A SNAP SHOT —

AND YOU'RE GETTING SO STINGY THAT YOU WON'T FILL THE GAS TANK ANY MORE FOR FEAR THE CAR MIGHT BE STOLEN — DO YOU HEAR ME?

WILL YOU TAKE THAT PILLOW AWAY FROM YOUR EARS AND LISTEN TO WHAT I HAVE TO SAY?

BE IT EVER SO HUMBLE — THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME

AND YOU WONDER WHY — WE DON'T GET ALONG

HAROLD TEEN

HO! HO! AMONG MY SOUVENIR'S — I WOULDN'T PART WITH THESE FOR ALL TH' MONEY IN THE WORLD — I COLLECTED THIS DAINTY 'KERCHIEF TH' DAY OF TH' PICNIC — WHAT A DAY — AND THIS GUM WRAPPER TH' NIGHT SHE WAS SO SWEET TO ME — —

-AN THAT LIL' BITTA PIECE OF RIBBON — THAT WAS TH' DAY SHE SAID "HAROLD! HOW CAN YOU BE SO INDIFFERENT?"

HEY? WHAZZIS?

HE'S BEEN HERE TODAY!

BEG YOUR PAHDON — BUT WHO —?

POISON PEMBROOK! THEM'S HIS GLOVES!

THEY'RE FAWTHAWS! HOW DARE YOU?

FATHER! HEH! HEH! HEH! HEH!

I'VE NEVER BEEN SO INSULTED IN MY LIFE — PLEASE GO!

I'M NOT SO DUMB — THIS — IZZZ TH' END!

WHY, HAROLD! YOU'RE PERFECTLY TERRIBLE!

SOUVENIRS! BAH!

SHE CRIED!

MEBBE I WAS WRONG!

I'VE BEEN A BRUTE!

EMPTY?

YEH! I SAW TH' GARBAGE MAN GO THROUGH TH' ALLEY 'BOUT AN HOUR AGO!

YE GODS! WHAT HAVE I DONE?

MOON MULLINS

MY WORD!

WHAT'S TH' MATTER WITH YOU GUYS? DIDN'T YOU SAY YOU WAS GONNA CATCH TH' NEXT TRAIN TO TOWN?

WELL, WELL, WELL, PROFESSOR JONES, IMAGINE MEETING YOU HERE AFTER ALL THESE YEARS! AW, ER- PARDON ME I DON'T BELIEVE I HAVE MET THIS BEAUTIFUL YOUNG LADY YET.

OH YES- YES- MY DAUGHTER, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM.

MULLINS IS MY NAME, BABY- JUST CALL ME MOONSHINE.

FATHER, WHY DON'T YOU BRING YOUR FRIENDS OUT TO DINNER TO-NIGHT AND TALK OVER OLD TIMES

OH YES, YES- WON'T YOU, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM?

SURE!

THAT IS JUST DANDY. GOOD-BYE I WILL SEE YOU ALL AT SIX O'CLOCK.

COME GO TO LUNCH WITH US PROF.

CHARMED I'M SURE.

WELL, LET ME SEE, MR. MULLINS- WHEN I MET YOU, WAS I WALKING UP OR DOWN THE STREET?

YOU WAS WALKIN' DOWN THAT WAY, PROF

HMM- THEN I MUST HAVE HAD MY LUNCHEON-

TH' MAYOR CALLED UP, MOON, AND SAID HE'S EXPECTIN' YOU TO GO TO A BIG DINNER WITH HIM.

I CAN'T BE BOTHERED, KAYO - I GOT A DATE TO EAT WITH A SWELL JANE AND HER OLD MAN - AND I GOTTA HURRY ON ACCOUNT OF THEM LIVIN' IN TH' SUBURBS.

AH - THERE YOU ARE, LORD PLUSHBOTTOM- WHERE IS MR-AH-ER-

MULLINS-OH IT LOOKS AS IF HE HAS MISSED THE TRAIN, FORTUNATELY. LET'S GO-

ALL 'BOARD!

WELL, WELL- THERE IS MR. MULLINS GETTING ON HERE AT 43RD STREET.

HEY!

I THOUGHT HE WAS GOING TO GET ON DOWN TOWN WITH US.

PUFF PUFF PUFF

MY WORD- MR. MULLINS. HOW YOU ARE PUFFING.

POO-POOH! WHEN I WAS YOUR AGE I NEVER GOT WINDED LIKE THAT AFTER A LITTLE RUN.

IS ZAT SO? WELL, I'D LIKE TO TAKE A SQUINT AT YOU AFTER YOU'D MISSED THIS TRAIN AT THE DOWN TOWN STATION LIKE I DID.

SO THIS IS YOUR TOWN, EH PROF?

LET'S TAKE A TAXI.

OH IT'S ONLY A COUPLE OF MILES TO MY PLACE!

BY GEORGE, GENTLEMEN! I OWE YOU AN APOLOGY.

FORGET 'EM, PROF. AND LET'S EAT. I'M HUNGRY.

YES, REALLY I MUST APOLOGIZE. I JUST REMEMBER THAT I MOVED INTO THE CITY LAST WEEK.

Yourz Truly Dooley

EXCUSE ME, I DROPPED MY CHALK!

AWYEAH? YOU MADE THEM PROMISES AT ME BEFORE. THIS TIME YOU GOTTA CROSS YOUR HEART AND HOPE TO CHOKE.

THERE! CROSS MY HEART AND HOPE TO CHOKE. YOU SOCK TEDDY IN THE BEEZER AND I'LL GET YOU A HUNK OF BREAD AND BUTTER AND SUGAR FROM MY "MAW"

THIS IS THE SOFTEST BREAD AND BUTTER AND SUGAR I EVER EARNED. TEDDY MADE A PROMISE TO MARY THAT HE WOULDN'T FIGHT NO MORE SO ALL I GOT TO DO IS SOCK HIM AND I WON'T EVEN HAVE TO RUN, NO DOUBT.

WHEN SHE COMES BY, I'LL JUMP OUT AND HOP ALL AROUND AND WHEN SHE QUITS LAFFIN' I'LL TELL HER I WAS BEIN' A RABBIT.

GUESS I'LL GIVE HIM A EXTRA SOCK FOR MYSELF WHILE I'M AT IT!

HEY!- WHAT'S THE BIG IDEA?

THE RABBIT FEELS VERY SHEEPISH,- VERY

I GOT A GOOD MIND TO GIVE YOU A COUPLE OF SOCKS IN THE BEEZER

WHAT FOR? — GEE WHIZZ, I AINT DOIN' NOTHIN' TO YOU!

MARY!— WHAT'S THE MATTER?

OOH, WHAT A NERVE YOU HAVE TO SPEAK TO ME!— I'M COMPLETELY ASTONISHED AT YOU!

GEE WHIZZ! WHAT DID I DO?

ALL RIGHT, YOU DON'T TELL ME WHAT'S THE MATTER AND THAT PROMISE IS OFF. I'M GONNA START GETTIN' TERRIBUL AGAIN. I'M GONNA FIGHT AND EVERY-THIN' YOU'LL SEE!

DARN THAT DAME!— SHE'S ALWAYS GETTIN' HIM OUTA TROUBLE AND STICKIN' ME INTO IT!

MARY!

SOMETHIN'S FUNNY ABOUT ALL THIS, WHY SHOULD SHE BE MAD WHEN I SENDED HER A NICE "WALENTIME" ALL HAND DONE CONTAININ' POETRY AND EVERYTHIN'?

WONDER IF?-

I WONDER?

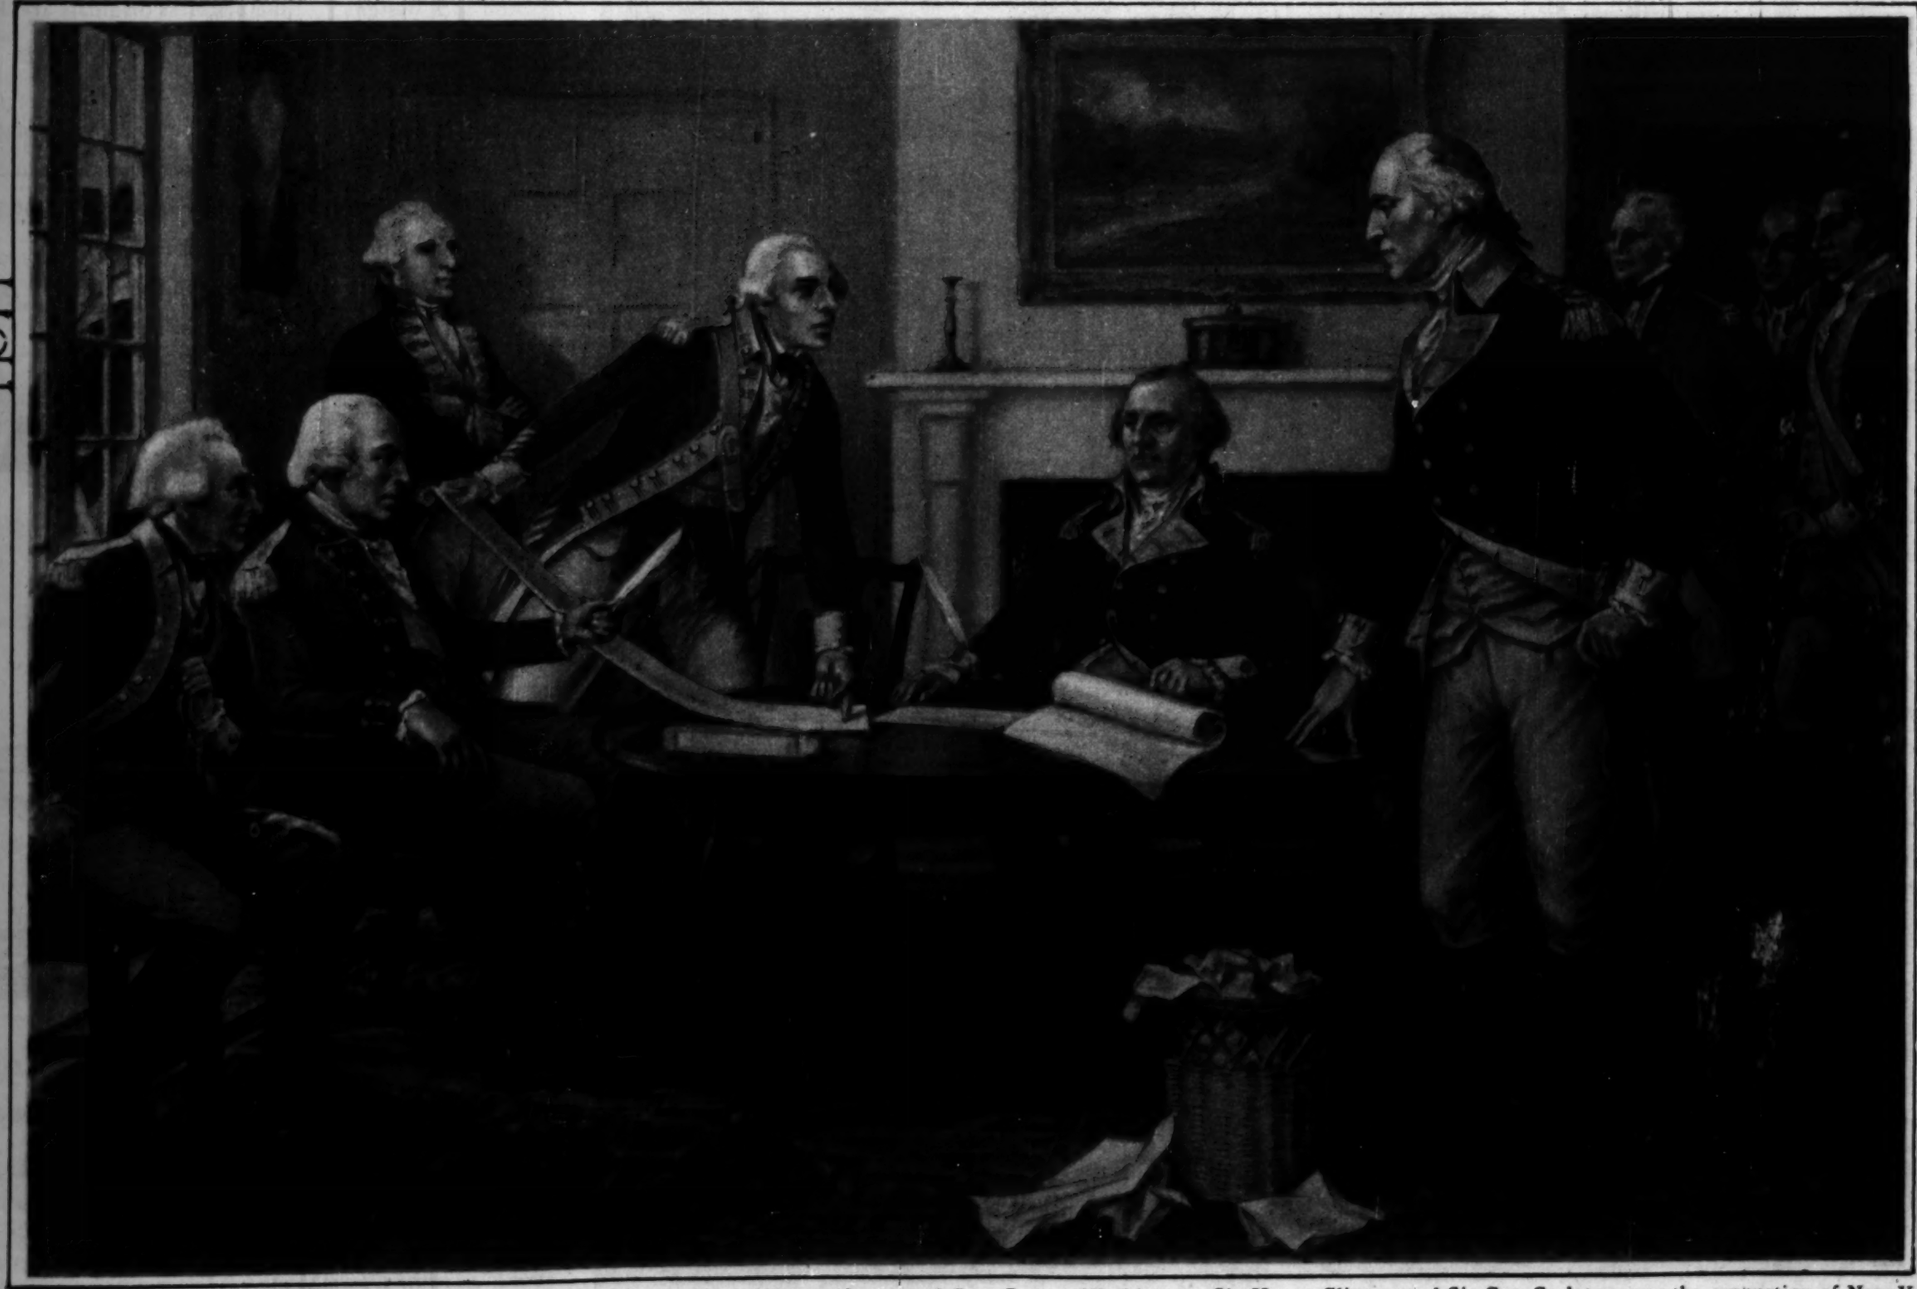
WASHINGTON AT VALLEY FORGE—H. T. Cariss' painting depicts the commander of the Colonials delivering the oath of allegiance to fellow officers at his headquarters near Philadelphia. In the winter of 1777-78 Benedict Arnold was dissatisfied, Generals Horatio Gates, Charles Lee, and others were critical of the conduct of the war, Washington's little army of 10,000 men was starving and freezing, and the great leader was sorely pressed. Hence he called his high officers together and had them swear to undivided loyalty. The historic grounds, including the headquarters, are preserved in a park, and will be of especial interest next Saturday, the 198th anniversary of Washington's birth. (Copyright by Ketterlinus Litho. Mfg. Co.)



WASHINGTON IN VICTORY—John Ward Dunsmore's conception of the conference of Gen. George Washington, Sir Henry Clinton, and Sir Guy Carleton over the evacuation of New York City. The treaty bringing to a close the American war of independence was signed Sept. 3, 1783, but it was not until Nov. 25 that the British quit New York. The original painting hangs in Fraunces' tavern in New York City. It is reproduced by permission. (Color-photo by Godfrey Lundberg.)

see this revolutionary rug luxury..!

A revolution in all fine rug values has taken place!

Amazing luxury is possible now for your home!

Go to your favorite department or furniture store. You will see gorgeous Oriental Rug designs displayed in all their shimmering beauty.

But these are Gulistan Rugs, the famous American rug selling for $150 for the 9 x 12 foot size!

Then why do they look so truly Oriental?

Because Gulistans are a true product of the glorious Oriental tradition, much truer and better wearing than moderate-priced Orientals.

Gulistan is made by Karagheusian, the largest maker of Oriental Rugs.

It has the same shimmering sheen, the same jewel-like colors as the most expensive Karagheusian Oriental Rugs.

Even more! It is made of the same selected Oriental wools . . . the same finishing processes are used . . . the finest dyes!

And such designs! . . . the priceless originals are the possessions of millionaires or the great European and American museums.

Don't forget, Gulistan can only be made by Karagheusian.

Experts know from many years past what that name means.

The silken label depicted below is your guarantee that you are getting the product of this great House.

Look for it on the back of every Gulistan Rug. It is your protection against numerous imitations.

BEAUTY SECRETS OF ENGLISH SOCIETY WOMEN

as revealed by Lady Louis Mountbatten, the Countess Howe and Lady Buchanan-Jardine

LADY BUCHANAN-JARDINE, brilliant, bewitching, leads the gay whirl of smart young English society. At fashionable balls and dances at exclusive night clubs, famous race meetings, hunting and house parties, everywhere her blonde charm reigns triumphant. She is of the fairest type of English beauty with eyes of delphinium blue and hair of gleaming gold. The rose-petal delicacy of her matchless complexion is famous despite her crowded life of ceaseless social activity, for Lady Buchanan-Jardine gives it the utmost care. She says, "Like many others, I follow Pond's Method of home treatment of the skin, for simple care is always best. It is easy, satisfactory, complete."

Pond's four famous preparations are favorites with distinguished and lovely women everywhere. Let them have a place on your dressing table. Pond's Cold Cream for pore-deep cleansing is exquisitely light, fine and pure . . . Pond's Cleansing Tissues to remove cold cream are silken-soft, safe for sensitive skin . . . Pond's Skin Freshener, a fragrant tonic and mild astringent, banishes oiliness, tones and firms . . . Pond's Vanishing Cream for powder base and protection bestows a lovely youthful smoothness and makes your powder cling for hours.

BEAUTIES of the British aristocracy . . . matchless for distinction and charm! Thoroughbred as the blooded hunters they ride, they are always impeccably turned out, impeccably groomed. What a sight to see them in full evening dress at Covent Garden Opera, or Buckingham Palace Courts . . . the radiance of their exquisite complexions, the dazzling perfection of their lovely necks and arms outrivaling the splendor of their jewels!

Lady Louis Mountbatten, beautiful member of the British royal family, guards well the secret of her apple-blossom skin. It is the same as that revealed by the bewitching Lady Buchanan-Jardine, brilliant young leader of the smart racing set, by the enchanting Countess Howe, one of the six most beautiful women in all England.

"A woman's complexion is the index of her chic," says Lady Buchanan-Jardine. Her own exquisite skin is much admired for its rose-petal delicacy of texture and coloring. Amazingly its radiant young freshness remains undimmed through the gay whirl of ceaseless social activity, for Lady Buchanan-Jardine gives it the utmost care.

"Smart women," she says, "follow a daily régime to keep their skin marvelously healthy, fine, firm, fresh and clear. Simple care is always best so I, like many others, follow Pond's Method of home treatment . . . it is easy, satisfactory, complete."

Pond's famous Method

These are the four swift, sure, simple steps:

During the day—First, for thorough cleansing, amply apply Pond's Cold Cream several times and always after exposure. Pat in with upward, outward strokes, waiting to let the fine oils sink into the pores.

Second—remove all cream and dirt with Pond's Cleansing Tissues, soft yet firm, amazingly absorbent, and so economical!

Third—briskly dab face and neck with Pond's Skin Freshener to banish lingering oiliness, close and reduce pores, keep your skin looking young.

At bedtime, never fail to cleanse thoroughly with Cold Cream and wipe away with Tissues.

Little ways that Pond's can make you lovely

Keep a jar of Vanishing Cream in your bathroom and one on your kitchen shelf, and smooth a little on your hands after every washing. It keeps them soft and velvet-white!

To apply make-up artfully, smooth on a film of Vanishing Cream on cheek bones, tip of chin and lobes of the ear. It gives rouge a soft, even glow that is delightfully natural.

To keep your nails groomed, the half-moons showing evenly, massage with Cold Cream every night.

"Rusty" elbows, unlovely with sleeveless gowns, will vanish if a little Cold Cream is rubbed in every night.

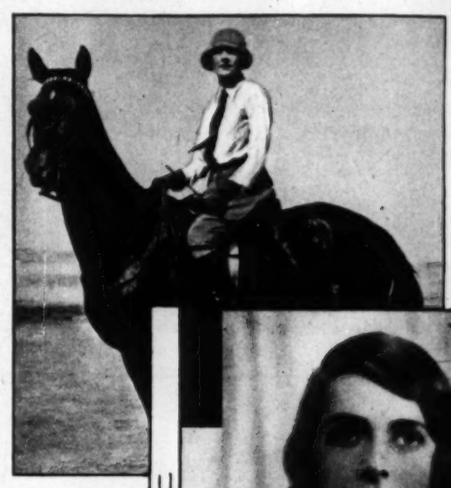
Pond's Cold Cream is soothing and healing to a wind-burned skin. Use it after skating, tobogganing and other winter sports.

If your skin is inclined to be dry, smooth in Cold Cream liberally before you retire, and leave it on overnight.

For an oily skin, use the Freshener more frequently. And for double chin and slackened throat muscles, pat briskly with cotton soaked in Freshener.

For removing cold cream, Pond's Cleansing Tissues, gossamer-light and super-absorbent, are indispensable. Avoid harsh towels, unhygienic cold cream "rags," often the cause of blackheads, etc.

Tuck a bottle of Skin Freshener in your bag when motoring or traveling. It is invaluable for a quick freshening of one's appearance.



LADY LOUIS MOUNTBATTEN, an ardent sportswoman and famous blonde beauty, is the wife of a great-grandson of Queen Victoria who is cousin of His Majesty, the King of England. She possesses a charm of manner, an unusual sweetness of personality and a marvelous apple-blossom complexion. She is a devoted user of Pond's famous preparations.

BEAUTIFUL COUNTESS HOWE, though mother of a debutante daughter, has the flower-like skin of a young girl. How does she do it? "My way is simple," she says. "Isn't most wisdom simple? I just use Pond's straightforward way of keeping fit. One can do it all oneself, at home or in the country, or wherever one may be. So naturally, I'm enthusiastic about it!"

The Joys of BEER
ARE NOT FORBIDDEN

They are at their best in this new-day brew

No beer of old was ever better than Atlas Special Brew. It is brewed by masters whose beer was always the leader in Chicago. It has the same age, same flavor, same quality and purity.

We go to extremes to give you something even better than the old. We cool the brew gradually, then filter it through white wool pulp. We treat the water, to give you the same mellow flavor as the famous beers of Europe. The brew is aged for months, then pasteurized after bottling.

Atlas Special Brew, in all you loved best, will bring the old days back.

What About Alcohol?

Of course, we evaporate most of the alcohol, but you would not know it if someone told you this was old reserve.

Alcohol was always a small factor in beer. What you liked was the tang and sparkle, the flavor and zest. You liked it as a help to digestion and an aid to sleep. All those helps and delights are at their best in Atlas Special Brew.

Cease Your Regrets

No need to miss a malt-and-hop brew that you loved. No need to turn to unripe "near-beers" or to rank home brews. They only spoil the memories of good beer.

If you will only insist on Atlas Special Brew, you will find it equal to the best of old—as a joy drink, a tonic and an aid to sleep. It is supplied by over 15,000 grocers, delicatessen stores and drug stores in Chicago and surrounding states. It costs only 15c a bottle, much less by the case of 24 bottles, so order some now at your store. If you should have any trouble getting it, write or telephone us for the name of your nearest dealer. What health, what vigor, what Sparkle and Zest it brings to Luncheon!

And at famous winter resorts "Canada Dry" brings charm and subtlety

THIS fine old ginger ale adds zest and keenness to luncheon. Its marvelous flavor brings added pleasure to a meal. Its hospitality has graciousness and charm.

But the reason it is the preferred beverage in countless homes is because countless people recognize in it the sportsmen's beverage . . . because countless lean, lithe, active Americans find that "Canada Dry" suits the outdoor life they lead. "Canada Dry" makes them more fit; it has the exhilaration of the game well-played; it has the stimulation which comes from vigorous, bodily activity.

This quality comes from basic excellence. Its very foundation is "Liquid Ginger"—which we make from selected Jamaica ginger root by a special process. This process is exclusively controlled by us and, unlike any other method, retains for "Canada Dry" all of the original aroma, flavor and natural essence of the ginger root. Rigid laboratory control assures uniformity, purity and highest quality. A special process of carbonation enables "Canada Dry" to retain its life and sparkle long after the bottle has been opened.

Its distinction, its prestige, its matchless excellence has brought "Canada Dry" popularity in London . . . Paris . . . New York . . . in countless homes throughout this country and Canada. Let its wonderful flavor, its zest, its subtle aroma, add distinction and pleasure to your home. In the Hostess Package of 12 bottles "Canada Dry" will always be conveniently on hand.

YOUR guests have said good-bye. Lingering in their memory are the impressions which they carried home with them.

For people know that, even in old homes, bathrooms need not look shabby or antiquated. That very often the only touch of modernity needed is a new toilet seat—a small item, yet a permanent improvement, when you choose it from the Church assortment.

Church Sani-White or Church Colored Seats with Bathroom Chairs or Stools to match, can be bought at the plumbing store and quickly attached to any make of bowl. With colored rugs, curtains, towels—little touches of color which you may already have in your bathroom—a Church Seat, chosen from the complete range of nine beautiful pastel shades and lovely sea pearl tints, will make your decorative scheme complete.

Whether your choice is the Church Sani-White or Church Colored Toilet Seat, you can rest assured that it will always look tidy and neat. The Church Seat will not chip, crack, or lose its original handsome finish. In ten minutes you can transform your old bathroom into one of modern color and attractiveness.

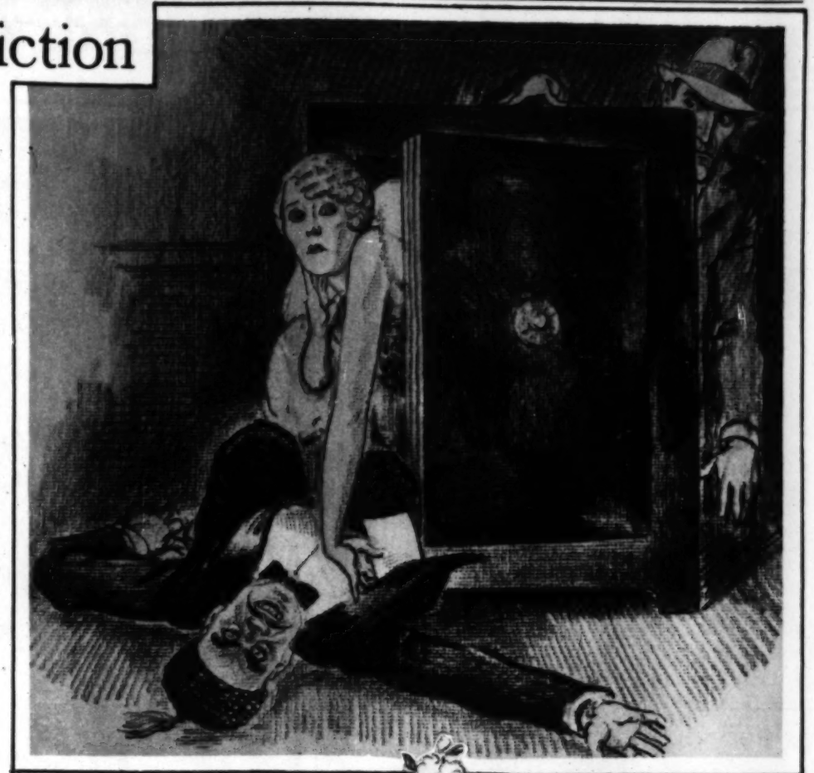
The Heroines of Fiction

By W. E. Hill

[Copyright, 1930, By The Chicago Tribune.]

The heroine of the small town story. Thisbe Perkins lives with her ma and pa in a small Iowa community where everybody is very rude and unrefined. Night after night, with no one to love her but her parents, who are napping in their chairs, Thisbe sits in the parlor longing for life and love and beauty. When she can stand it no longer, she walks out to the Lutheran cemetery and buries her face in the rich upturned loam and wonders why she was born, and if it would be all right to pass the time of day with the big, hairy garage helper at the Elite gas station on Main street, seeing that they have never been introduced. Very tragic.

The censored heroine. "Tides of the Soul" is one of those delightful English novels which, on account of the censor, are barred from the U. S. A., and are consequently in great demand from New York to San Francisco. Rhoda, the heroine, is one of twenty-eight daughters of an English curate, with a great many very up-to-the-minute views. Rhoda finally leaves the home ties and sets up housekeeping in London with a girl friend whose views are even more advanced. Pages and pages of introspection.



The mystery story. Things certainly did look black for Lady Diana Dalrymple-Croop when she was discovered by Jimmy Rockbottom, the cleverest man in Scotland Yard, rifling the pockets and safe of the murdered ambassador of Akbar. Inspector Rockbottom knew that Lady Diana must be innocent, even though there was the reek of exploded cordite in her curls, and he set out to prove it. It all comes out right, and the bogus prime minister of Tunasia confesses to the murder.

The biography. "A Queen of Deception" is really a true story, because, the jacket blurb says, it is based on the tragic loves of Louida, deposed empress of Schlitzen-Schlotzen, and mistress of the reigning king of Sodaberg from 1521 to 1688. The book is full of choice anecdotes that have to do with the historically great. Once, on a bear-baiting party in the woods of Nussel, Louida met Alfred the Fingerless, incognito. "Wouldst be afraid to ride with me, kiddie?" said Alfred. "Nein," said Louida, "I've never walked home yet!" It was Louida who is said to have remarked on her death bed, "Love is certainly the bunk!"

Scandinavian prize novel. Ingebord, the beautiful Finn, works in a barnyard and meets Olaf among the pigs, heifers, fertilizer, and such. Of course, it is love in the end, but at first Ingebord pretends to love no one but the pig, Helma, and Olaf is mad with jealous rage. Very literary. Not so hot for those who like their girl heroines a la Hollywood.

The juvenile tale. Little Roberta Bear, heroine of "How Granny Bear Saved Wee Wee the Otter from a Bad Scolding," is out with her granny. They are going to call on Uncle Roy Bear.

The Confessions Magazine. "After baby came I decided to look for a job, and as I had always sung in our choir in Garske, N. D., I thought I could get work with the Metropolitan Opera company in New York City. I was alone and friendless, and when I met Rolf on the train, I told him all my hopes and plans. When we got to the city, Rolf told me he was none other than Gatti Cazazza, the impresario, and I, in my simplicity, believed him. He was so big and strong, and he told me he would take me right up to the opera house, where they were rehearsing 'The Giddy French Flirts,' and that probably I could have Jeritza's part, as they were giving her the air that week. O, if I had only had a mother to guide me! Again I had been cruelly deceived!"

The newsprint column heroine. "Dear Embarrassing Moments Editor: Not long ago my boy friend took me to a symphony concert, and our seats were in the front row of the gallery. Resisting his advances during a largo, I unfortunately pushed him over the rail and he fell into the orchestra. Of course, I had told all my girl friends we were to sit in a box, and when they found I was sitting in gallery seats I was very embarrassed. I never had such an embarrassing moment. Vida Prang (Mrs.)."

Where the west begins. The boys who do pictures for the western stories love dearly to show the heroine looking out over the canyons and the arroyas, while the wind does the prettiest things to her curls. Just for a change, here's a heroine with her curls blowing all the wrong way. Wild west girls are usually named Vaughn, or Shirley, or Dawn, and they usually marry strong, grim, determined men who are tender as the dove underneath hard exteriors.

The serial heroine. "With a catch in his throat, Larry gazed astoundedly at the vision of Diana Bellingham slowly descending the onyx stairway. 'Valesquez must have painted her,' he murmured at length." Larry Van Foule and Diana Bellingham are the high lights in "Diamond Clasps," one of those serials of the expensive higher society type. Everybody is very beautiful and fearfully rich, and there are Palm Beach bathing parties, yachts, cocktails, bridge, dukes, and Park avenue pent houses. The swell heroine, becoming bored with the rich wasters, marries a poor man with only ten million, and they live happily in a forty room bungalow at Piping Rock.

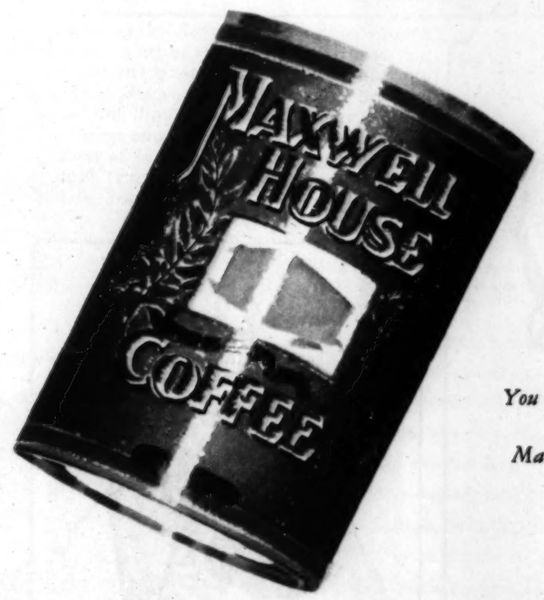
HIS FRIENDS left the sunny Southland to adventure in distant gold fields. But this young Southerner of the Old School chose to remain where the grass is blue, and to seek his fortune in a quest for coffee more delicious than any then known.

The exquisitely flavored blend which finally he discovered — has become known, praised and demanded around the world. Enclosed in a friendly blue tin, it stands upon your grocer's shelf. It is worth trying—Maxwell House Coffee—and worth trying today.

Its appetite-coaxing aroma, its rich and mellow flavor, its fragrant goodness will send you from the table not only conscious of having dined well, but with memories of a coffee which three Presidents thought deserving of their praise. Try it without risk of disappointment—your grocer will unhesitatingly return your money if you are not fully satisfied.



You will be delighted, also, with Maxwell House Tea

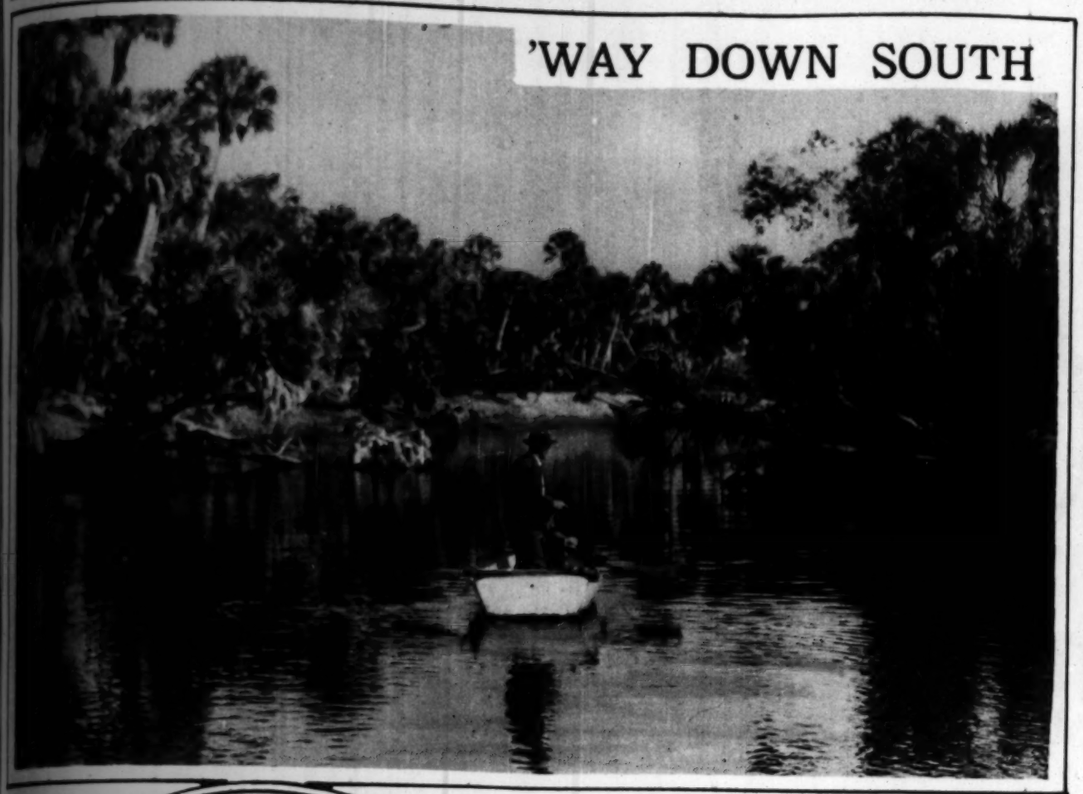
'WAY DOWN SOUTH



WHERE BIG BLACK BASS bite all winter. The scene is the Myakka river near Punta Gorda, Florida.

A FIGHTER, even though he comes from Peace river. The 15-pound rovallo takes to the air in an effort to get rid of the hook. It's a scene in Ponce de Leon land.

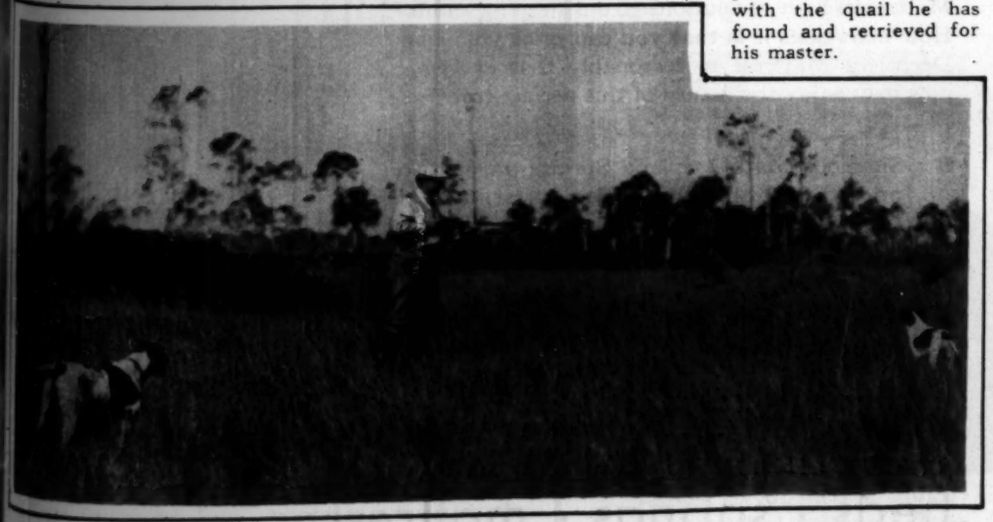
MEET MR. SNOOK, popular performer for anglers from the north. Variously called snook and rovallo, this salt water fish is much sought after in Florida and along the gulf coast.

ALL QUIET ON THE SOUTHERN FRONT, for the rovallo's scrapping is over and he is about to be hauled in for a peacetime celebration.

SALAD WHILE YOU WAIT—The heart of the Florida cabbage palm makes a delectable dish, and it is obtained by a simple operation with an ax.

"COME AND GET IT!"—The "it" in this instance is broiled quail and candied sweet potatoes. The guide is about to drop a bird into the skillet while preparing lunch for a hunting party in the southland.

A DOGGONE GOOD DOG is Rex, Florida pointer, who here poses with the quail he has found and retrieved for his master.



PITY THE BOB WHITES when Peter Schutt, Florida trap shot and hunter, opens up on them. The covey was flushed by two pointers near Punta Gorda.

"THE LAKE OF THE WEEPING TREES," otherwise Istokpoga, where Spanish moss on gray cypress trees lines the shore. In these Florida waters the bass await the coming of the fishermen.

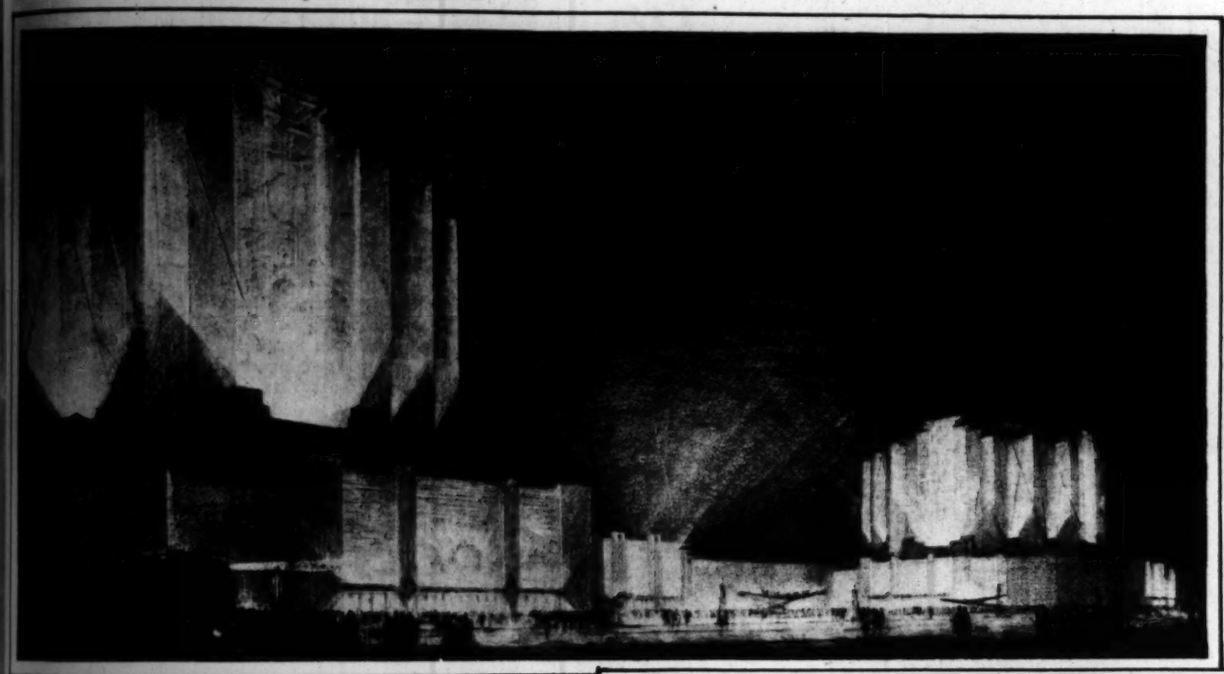
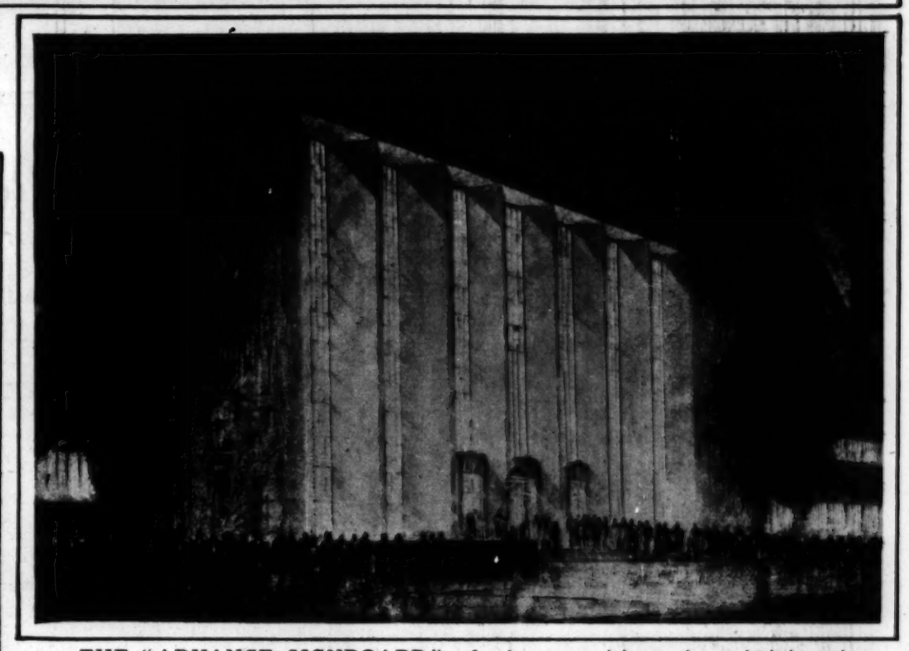
FIRST SKETCHES OF BUILDINGS FOR CHICAGO'S 1933 WORLD FAIR—A general view of the main facade of the Administration building, on which work is expected to be started in April. It will stand on the east side of the outer drive, between the Field museum and Soldiers' field. Because of its proximity to the museum and the stadium, the building has been given conservative modern treatment, based on classical principles. This and the building below were designed by the three Chicago members of the fair's architectural commission: Edward H. Bennett, Hubert Burnham, and John A. Holabird.



METAL, AND WITHOUT A WINDOW, the Travel and Transport building will be unique. Two great domes will be suspended by "sky hooks," which is to say by the catenary, or suspension bridge, system—again a unique triumph, for never before have "sky hooks" been used to support a dome. A great floor area free from obstructions will thus be provided. The metal sheath will make possible dramatic illumination, and by omission of windows interior lighting can be kept under constant control. The building is to extend from Thirty-first to Thirty-fourth streets.



THE "ADVANCE SIGNBOARD" of the exposition, the administration building will be kept open day and night as soon as it is completed; and models, architects' drawings and plans of progress, with other things anticipatory of the wonders of the fair, will be shown to the public. This is an architect's conception of a night view of the main entrance hall. The drawings here reproduced are by Hugh Ferris, famous New York architectural renderer.

VISUALIZING INTERESTING LETTERS—Today's winner in The Tribune contest for letters from remote places was addressed to a Chicago firm from Sourabaya, Java. A facsimile of the envelope is to be found in the news section. Modern sprinkling devices are infrequent in the far-off island; this is how the job is accomplished.

HONORING A CHICAGO SCHOLAR—A gift from Mrs. Joseph Bond, this portrait of Dr. Edgar J. Goodspeed, head of the New Testament department of the University of Chicago and translator of the New Testament in an American version, was presented last Thursday to the trustees of the university. The painter, Paul Trebilcock, stands beside it.

OPEN COVENANTS OPENLY ARRIVED AT? A candid camera, uninvited guest to a dinner for American delegates to the London naval conference, found two Britons in highly confidential tete-a-tete. They are Sir John Foster Fraser and R. L. Craigie of the foreign office.

OLD MAN RIVER GOES MODERN—Ice in the Chicago, on a gray winter day, presents a fantasy bizarre as a futurist's dream. The view is eastward from an upper floor of the Wrigley building.

SNOW TINTS ON THE HIGH OZARKS make an alluring scene near Eureka Springs, Ark. At the summit of this peak is the Crescent college for girls, where this year's students have been unusually active in winter sports.

"Fresh Yeast keeps the system 'regular'"

SAYS NOTED HOSPITAL DIRECTOR

GRAND UFFICIALE PROFESSORE DOTTORE PIO PEDICONI of Rome . . . director and chief physician of the important San Gallicano Hospital . . . special lecturer to graduate doctors in the University of Rome . . . distinguished exponent of Europe's most conservative medical tradition! Dr. Pediconi says:

"In combating constipation, yeast can be used with success. It purifies the intestinal tract and keeps the system 'regular.' It improves the gastric and intestinal condition and stimulates appetite.

"For many years yeast has been used by dermatologists to prevent and cure certain common skin eruptions.

"Yeast is especially rich in vitamin B. When exposed to ultra-violet rays, the ergosterol it contains becomes vitamin D, the 'sunshine' vitamin, which acts on the system the same as the sun itself, strengthening resistance to disease."

How simple it is—this advice from one of the world's great physicians! Just yeast—Fleischmann's Yeast—a remarkable stimulating food which you eat 3 times a day. And your reward . . . rich new energy, new ambition, new alertness! Try it—today! You can get it at grocers, restaurants, soda fountains. Every cake is rich in two indispensable vitamins—B and D. Directions on label.

Read what other Leading Hospital Heads say—

Founder of Europe's most exclusive private clinic, Geheimrat DR. CARL VON NOORDEN, declares, "Yeast is used constantly in my clinic. Its results are astonishing. It has an extraordinary tonic effect. Regularly used, it can in a short time bring about normal functioning of the bowels."

PROFESSOR DR. PAOLO ALESSANDRINI is head of the hospitals of Rome. He says, "Yeast has long been famous for its ability to keep the intestinal tract clean and active and to correct indigestion."

DR. B. PONTOPPIDAN, noted skin specialist and physician-in-charge of the Municipal Hospital of Copenhagen, says, "In my practice I have had excellent results with the use of fresh yeast."

Their doctors' simple advice brought thrilling new health!

"I am a school teacher," writes MISS KATHERINE E. COLLIGAN of Rochester, N. Y. "I had suffered for years with constipation. It was a doctor who suggested Fleischmann's Yeast. Thanks to it I am free from my former trouble. Life is worth while once more."

"For two years Robert consumed quantities of medicine," writes MR. HARRY F. STRONG of East Milton, Mass. "Our doctor then decided to give him yeast to strengthen his intestines, where the trouble lay. Today Bob is every bit as healthy as his picture shows."

Ends Coughs!

"Each cough made me more anxious . . . more frightened!"

"It was eleven o'clock on a bitter winter night — my little daughter Jane woke up—coughing. My husband ran to the drug store and got a bottle of Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. With the very first swallow of the syrup her cough began to calm down. We gave her a little bit every hour and finally, around two o'clock in the morning, she fell asleep again. How relieved I was! In the morning Jane felt much better—and in two days she was all well again."

MRS. J. K. VILA, New York City

Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup ends coughs so quickly because it has Triple Action: (1) it soothes, (2) is mildly laxative, (3) clears air passages.

Unguarded Women

Soap and water was once all there was to the bath. But now Boyer has developed a measure of protection without which many women and men would not venture forth.

For here is a new habit . . . a luxurious, satisfying habit that perfects the bath . . . a dainty habit that effectively guards against any suggestion of unpleasant body odor, which even soap and water cleanliness does not always remove.

Boyer's After-the-Bath Talc neutralizes body odors and will keep the skin sweet for several hours. Always use it after bathing. This precaution is well worth while, as many women and men know. It insures a personal daintiness that effectively relieves the fastidious from worry.

Soap and water is necessary. Then Boyer's After-the-Bath Talc—Always! A purring shower of its cool softness applied with the luxurious big puff that is in every box. The protection lasts long after the effects of the bath have worn away. Truly a most satisfying perfection . . . no wonder it is so popular.

Perfumed with a subdued fragrance that accentuates the refreshing odor of soap and water cleanliness, Boyer's After-the-Bath Talc leaves the body with a rose petal freshness, characteristic of aristocratic living. Sold by all Drug Stores. Boyer, the Society Parfumeur, 15 Rue Royale, Paris, and 2700 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Illinois.

Children Cry for it

Children, as a rule, hate to take medicine but every child loves the taste of Castoria. This pure vegetable product is just as good as it tastes; just as bland and as harmless as the recipe reads. (The wrapper around the bottle tells just what Castoria contains.)

When Baby's cry warns of colic, a few drops of Castoria has him soothed, asleep again in a jiffy. Nothing is of more value in diarrhea. When coated tongue or bad breath tell of constipation, invoke its gentle help to cleanse and regulate bowels. In colds or children's diseases, use it freely to keep the system from clogging. Your doctor will tell you Castoria deserves a place in the family medicine cabinet until your child is grown. He knows it is safe for the tiniest baby; effective for a boy in his teens. With this special children's remedy handy, you need never risk giving a boy or girl medicine meant for grown-ups.

Is there a bottle of Castoria in your medicine cabinet now? There should be, if you have children! It's the one thing a mother may turn to in such emergencies. A pure vegetable preparation that can never do any harm, and may spare the young one a lot of suffering. Its almost instant relief will have your infant back to sleep before you could begin to summon a neighbor's aid. And the wisest mother could give no sounder advice than to comfort your children with Castoria. It may be the stomach, or it may be the little bowels; or a fretful, feverish condition from some unknown cause. Castoria is always a safe and sensible thing to give. There are so many of those minor ailments of children that this gentle remedy will always relieve — and relieve promptly.

Every druggist has Fletcher's Castoria, and with every bottle comes a valuable baby book, or write Castoria, 80 Varick St., New York, for free copy by mail. Be sure to mention this publication.

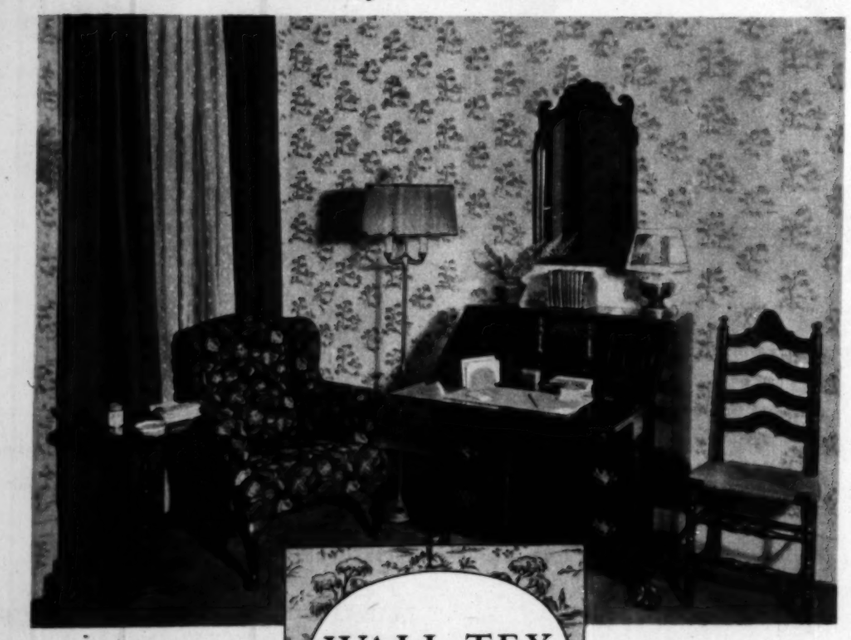
Wall-Tex beauty is within YOUR reach



WALL-TEX
Durable Wall Covering

How often are the things we long for far beyond our reach! Here's an opportunity to have real beauty in your home; to have a really artistic dwelling place — without prohibitive cost!

Follow the advice of interior decorators and make walls and ceilings things of true charm. Place Wall-Tex on your walls. See how beautiful the whole interior becomes! That is why the Wall-Tex scenic pattern shown here was selected as an ideal background for this lovely living-room group.

Wall-Tex offers a splendid array of designs and colors appropriate for any scheme of decoration. Wall-Tex is a sturdy fabric, permeated with quality oils. It laughs at dust and dirt! A little sponging and spots vanish. Cracks and blemishes in the plaster are permanently hidden and new ones prevented by its strength and elasticity. Should you tire of the decoration, you can easily redecorate Wall-Tex with plaster, paint or lacquer treatments.

Write your name and address on the margin of this page and send for booklet, "The Modern Trend in Wall Coverings."

50 YEARS OF CREATING BEAUTY PRODUCTS

Every day your mirror shows you the lovely difference!

. . . for these new Du Barry Beauty Preparations and the new Du Barry Hand Principle bring the Beauty Salon to your own home!

Try it yourself . . . the day by day use of these new Du Barry Beauty Preparations by the new Du Barry Hand Principle . . . and you'll find yourself looking often in the mirror just to see the lovely difference in your skin.

For it is just this day by day use that counts in caring for your beauty. That's why Richard Hudnut devised these Du Barry Beauty Treatments for use in the home . . . so that every day — not just once in a while — you can give yourself the same sort of beauty treatments you receive at the Beauty Salon.

A special Du Barry treatment has been devised to correct the marks that age leaves on the skin . . . treatments so simple, so pleasant, so quick to show results.

There's a velvety cream that liquefies the moment it touches your skin, floating the dust and grime right out of the pores. A sparkling lotion that dissolves excess cream and closes the pores. Creams, too, to nourish the skin and invigorate it. A fragrant oil that works wonders in smoothing out the tiny furrows in the skin and coaxing back sagging contours to firmness. And lotions to refine the skin's texture and stimulate circulation.

These preparations embody the results of the most modern research into cosmetics by the Hudnut laboratory . . . making use in many cases of new ingredients never before used in beauty preparations. Pure, safe and scientifically tested for use in the home. The new scientific Du Barry Hand Principle makes it all so easy . . . And to show you how easy each treatment really is—just see:

The preparations, inexpensive (as you can see) are so economical to use, too!

Du Barry Special Cleansing Cream. Frees skin of dust and impurities. —— $1.50, $2.50, $4.50

Du Barry Skin Tonic and Freshener. A mild astringent which dissolves all traces of cleansing cream. $1.00, $1.75

Du Barry Tissue Cream. For normal or oily skins. Has special softening qualities. $1.50, $2.50

Du Barry Special Skin Food. Lubricates dry skins. —— $1.50, $2.50

Du Barry Special Astringent. Subdues oiliness of the skin. —— $1.50, $2.50

Du Barry Muscle Oil. Slightly astringent. Stimulates the tissues. —— $1.50

Du Barry Eye Lotion. Refreshes and soothes the eyes. —— $1.00

Du Barry Pore Cream. Refines enlarged pores. —— $1.00

Du Barry Beauty Lotion. An effective astringent lotion, also an excellent powder base. —— $1.00

Du Barry Hand Beauty Cream. A softening, whitening cream. —— $1.00

Du Barry Face Powder. A fine-textured powder in skin tones. —— $2.00

Du Barry Foundation Cream. A finishing, protective powder base. —— $1.00

MADAME! WILL YOU TRY THESE "TWO ESSENTIALS OF BEAUTY," 10 DAYS' AT OUR EXPENSE? We'd like to send you our "Two Essentials of Beauty"—a liberal trial jar of Du Barry Cleansing Cream and a generous bottle of the sparkling Du Barry Skin Tonic—so you can prove to yourself just how efficient . . . and delightful . . . the Du Barry Cleansing Treatment is. The handbook thoroughly describing this treatment . . . and every other treatment in the series . . . and containing a chart for the analysis of your own skin problems will accompany them. Just mail this coupon to:

RICHARD HUDNUT
DEPT. 006 · 113 WEST 18TH STREET · NEW YORK
I accept your offer of a 10 days' supply of Du Barry "Two Essentials of Beauty." Enclosed is 10¢ to cover the cost of mailing.
NAME ADDRESS

TONIC CLEANLINESS IS THE BASIS OF EVERY DU BARRY TREATMENT · With the cushion tips of the fingers, smooth on Du Barry Cleansing Cream generously. Begin at the base of the neck and stroke the cream up and up . . . It liquefies instantly—the combined heat of the hands and of the skin of the face is just enough to release the pure oils of its composition . . . The cream is then wiped off with soft Du Barry Cleansing Tissues and Du Barry Skin Tonic and Freshener Lotion applied to cool and close the pores.

THIS IS THE DU BARRY WAY TO SMOOTH OUT FROWN LINES First . . . a thorough cleansing with Du Barry Cleansing Cream and Du Barry Skin Tonic. Then smooth on Du Barry Tissue Cream or, if the skin is overdry, Du Barry Skin Food . . . all over the face. Now with the cushion tips of the middle fingers, smooth the Muscle Oil up from the bridge of the nose over the frown lines with a brisk, firm motion. Alternate the fingers till the skin feels warm and tingly. This natural tissue stimulation is part of the special Du Barry Principle.

We Say . . . "Try This Method Before You Enroll!"

For 50 years we have been telling men and women to be fair to themselves . . . to keep their money in their pocketbooks until they have tried the famous Berlitz Conversational Method of Language Instruction . . . to withhold their enrollment until they have taken a free demonstration lesson, and convinced themselves that this Method is all that we claim for it. Now we ask you to do the same thing.
Results proved a success over a half century has convinced us that this is the quickest, the most direct, the simplest way to a command of any language ever known. Conversational instruction . . . talking and listening—with never a word of English spoken. Book work minimized—complicated rules of grammar discarded—thrilling, fast moving lessons that fascinate and grip your interest. If you plan to learn another language, we think this is the Method for you. Nearly it's the Method 150,000 students pick. Just decide for yourself . . . come up for a free demonstration lesson in French, Spanish, German, Italian, or English. It costs you nothing . . . and there is positively no obligation. Won't you write, call, or telephone Harrison 0392 for an appointment?

Will be a period of unprecedented activity in the Real Estate Field.

Krenn & Dato's policies and real estate development projects will be measured by the connections he establishes.

The opportunities for salesmen to make money in 1930 and the years thereafter with KRENN & DATO are unequaled by anything offered in the middle west.

We train you in our selling methods and furnish you leads.

A MAGNET THAT ATTRACTS SALESMEN

I.

MONEY

More money than you ever earned before, if you are capable of recognizing an outstanding opportunity; if you have intelligence to decide on a basis of true, understandable, clear definite facts; if you are not guided or influenced by impressions, hunches, or prejudice; if you can stand up straight on your two feet; if you have grit to tell a true story, eye to eye.

II.

ENTHUSIASM

You can show people the one outstanding money making opportunity in America. It will make them more money quicker and surer than any other proposition ever did. It is the opportunity of a lifetime. This knowledge will inspire you, thrill you, and arouse intense enthusiasm in you. It will make it easy and pleasant for you to accomplish.

III.

CO-OPERATION

What help will I get? You will tie up with successful money makers who will help you accomplish bigger things than you could possibly do alone. You know that when a man has the good fortune to be guided and counseled by a recognized winner he can walk, run, swim, skate, or do anything better, faster, and easier than when he tries to go it alone. Money makers will help you make more money.

IV.

GENUINE VALUE

If some one passed a counterfeit ten dollar bill on your prospect, would he forever afterwards refuse to accept genuine ten dollar bills? In the same way Cryer's genuine real estate development cannot be compared with any other development.

THERE IS NOTHING ELSE LIKE THIS IN AMERICA

1. 417 of the world's largest factories are located within 1½ to 4¼ miles.
2. A pay roll of $6,500,000 a week—$1,500,000 a week greater than the entire city of Detroit. The world's greatest industrial concentration.
3. Within 1¼ miles of the Lakes to Gulf Waterway, which, according to President Hoover, will be completed by 1931.
4. Within 2½ miles where the world's largest steel mill will be constructed at an expense of $75,000,000, that will employ from 20,000 to 25,000 people.
5. Ready to build on, within 8 blocks of 14 busy chain stores.

JOIN BIG MEN

Men who think big, act big, and are big, urge you to join them in the world's biggest proposition. Now is the time to tie up with successful money makers who will guide you to greater accomplishment and more money. Stop answering ads. Recognize this is your great opportunity that will put you on and keep you on the right track. It will solve your financial problems and quickly put you on "Easy Street."

A Man of Exceptional Mentality

A manufacturer, rated AAA1, operating nationally, has an opening for a man of successful selling experience. Prefer one who has met and sold chief executives, although in the final analysis personality will be the determining factor.

As this division of our business is expanding rapidly, there are openings for men of executive ability, but only after a period of actual selling in the field.

This is not stocks, bonds, real estate, insurance or books—nor is it posters.

Do not investigate unless you feel confident that your services are worth $8,000 per year or more.

We can use a man immediately in each of the following territories:

Milwaukee, Minneapolis, Detroit and one for Chicago.

We will grant you a personal interview if you are able to interest us over the telephone. Phone Mr. C. C. BELOW on Monday for appointment, Randolph 4746, or, if you prefer, Address G G 274, Tribune.

THE NARRAGANSETT
1640 E. 50TH-ST.
AT THE LAKE

On the 2d of this month we advertised through the papers that "the Narragansett was ready for occupancy and that 3 model apts. had been furnished and decorated by Mr. Bodelson; and now only 12 days from that time approximately 1-3 of the 63 apts. have been taken.

The remarks of our guests are expressive of the unusual attractiveness of our bldg. We hear on every hand, "I never saw such a wonderful floor plan." "This is the first time I ever saw 8 closets in a 5 room apt." "No wonder they are going so fast, I must bring my husband over tonight." "I have never seen such a wonderful view as the one from the roof garden, it is inspiring."

All the latest ideas in fine modern apts. have been taken into consideration, parquet floors, colored tile baths, new style radiators, thermostatic controlled stoves, beautiful electric ice boxes, latest design fast noiseless elevators, roof garden, hand ball court, and various other unusual features.

Our transportation facilities are unexcelled. 10 minutes by fast express to the loop from the 51st-st. L. C. station, buses on Hyde Park blvd. take you to the heart of the loop, or your own car on the outer drive in 12 minutes by driving entirely through a park along the water front and without a stop light.

REAL ESTATE LOANS.

Junior Mortgage.

WE MAKE SECOND MORTGAGES

Dullness in the real estate market has not affected our ability to make second mortgage loans to home owners at the same low cost; the low rates and convenient terms which we have applied have stood every test during the last five years—and they stand the test today.

We have not raised our rates; we make appraisals promptly; we close loans with dispatch; we charge 7% accruing interest and commissions which work out as follows:

$35.00 per $1,000 for 1 year
$65.00 per $1,000 for 2 years
$90.00 per $1,000 for 3 years

COR. MADISON & CLARK.
Franklin 5700. ROOM 407.

2ND MORTGAGE LOANS.

$500 TO $25,000.

Repayable in easy monthly installments. On desirable loans on homes occupied by owner our commission charges are:

	1 yr.	2 yrs.	3 yrs.	4 yrs.
On $1,000	$ 35	$ 60	$ 90	$120
On 2,000	70	120	180	240
On 3,000	105	180	270	360
On 4,000	140	240	360	480
On 5,000	175	300	450	600

On other classes of property rates are slightly higher.
No charge for appraisal, papers, etc.
Bring deed or last tax receipt.

AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

THIS IS A STUDEBAKER YEAR.

THAT'S WHY YOU CAN GET A GOOD USED CAR AT A BIG SAVING

If You Buy from the Studebaker Sales Co.

Studebaker holds more American stock car records than all other makes combined—and Studebaker is the world's largest builder of Eights.

Our business has been exceptionally good because of these facts, and as a result we have taken in a great number of "trade-ins." We need the room and MUST TURN OVER this stock immediately. In order to do this we have marked our cars at exceptionally LOW PRICES.

DURANT TOURING. It's exceptionally clean throughout and has thousands of miles of unused transportation. Many extras. $85.

BUICK ROADSTER. An attractive car, painted maroon. Has wire wheels, snubbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Runs fine. $145.

WILLYS-KNIGHT COACH. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, trunk, bumpers, spare tire, etc. It's in good mechanical condition and the tires have little mileage. $195.

NASH SEDAN, Adv. 6. The finish, upholstery, and tires are in splendid condition, and the motor is smooth and powerful. 4 whl. brakes, bumpers, snubbers, spare tire, etc. $275.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT, 1927 seven pass. that looks and runs better than many cars selling for $800. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, heater, etc. We obtained this car at a remarkably low price, so we'll pass on the saving to you. For immediate sale, $295.

REO SEDAN, 5 pass. Looks and runs better than many new cars selling for $600. General coach work and interior are excellent. $165.

CHEVROLET ROADSTER. Here is a snorty car that really has very attractive appearance, and that is in unusually good mechanical condition. Has a number of valuable extras. $95.

CHRYSLER SEDAN, 1928, with very spirited performance. Has attractive tan finish and hundreds of dollars' worth of extra equipment. $345.

DODGE SEDAN. A late "Fast 4" with driving light, snubbers, spare tire, and other extras. It's unusually clean throughout and the motor is A1. Priced at $295, but actually worth twice this figure.

MOON CABRIOLET, 1928, that's one of the snappiest looking sport cars ever offered. Has an attractive two-tone paint job, rumble seat, wire wheels, side mounts, and many valuable extras. It's excellent mechanically and will be sold at once at our price of $685.

FORD COACH, 1929 model "A" that's in exceptionally good all around condition today, as have former owners of this car faithful driver. He traded in the Ford only because he needed a larger car. It is very fully equipped and will give new car satisfaction. $395.

MARMON SEDAN. This Str. 8 is finished a beautiful canary yellow and black. The appearance is unusually smart and will satisfy the most exacting buyer. Has very spirited performance and the equipment includes 4 whl. brakes and many valuable extras. This Marmon was actually driven only 13 mos., and it was in storage for the balance of the time. $650.

ESSEX SEDAN, 1929 De Luxe 2 dr. model that we recommend as one of our very best buys. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, bumpers, shutter front, spare tire, etc. The motor is A1 and every detail of the car is in new condition. $450.

STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT SEDAN, 1929 Str. 8, lacquered in handsome maroon. Actually driven only a few thousand mi. The motor is in such good condition that it carries a 30 day free service guarantee. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, snubbers, bumpers, spare tire, driving light, etc. The upholstery has not a worn spot and the tires appear untired. Special for $1,050.

HUPMOBILE SEDAN. We sincerely believe this Str. 8 Hupp cannot be duplicated any place else at anywhere near our price. Has hundreds of dollars' worth of extra equipment and it's in splendid running condition. The finish, upholstery and tires are in dandy shape. Special for $350.

PONTIAC COUPE, 1928, with 4 whl. brakes, shock absorbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. Will give new car satisfaction today. $450.

JORDAN SEDAN, Str. 8. Has very low mileage. We obtained this car at a very favorable figure. Other man's loss is your gain, so you can obtain this beautiful sedan at only $385.

AUBURN SEDAN, 1929, that's the last word for sparkling performance and attractive appearance. Shock absorbers, trunk, bumpers, spare tire, etc. $750.

CADILLAC

Why Does the Wise Buyer Make His Used Car Purchase Now?

The man who buys NOW gets into the market ahead of the season. At this time the prices are lower and the assortment larger.

But, above all, he buys his used car under the Cadillac Code, which means the same sort of fair dealing that protects the purchaser of a new Cadillac or La Salle.

The following are a few typical examples of our many Good Used Car values—there are many others priced from $100 up. Your present car taken as part payment and you can pay from income—the economical G. M. A. C. way.

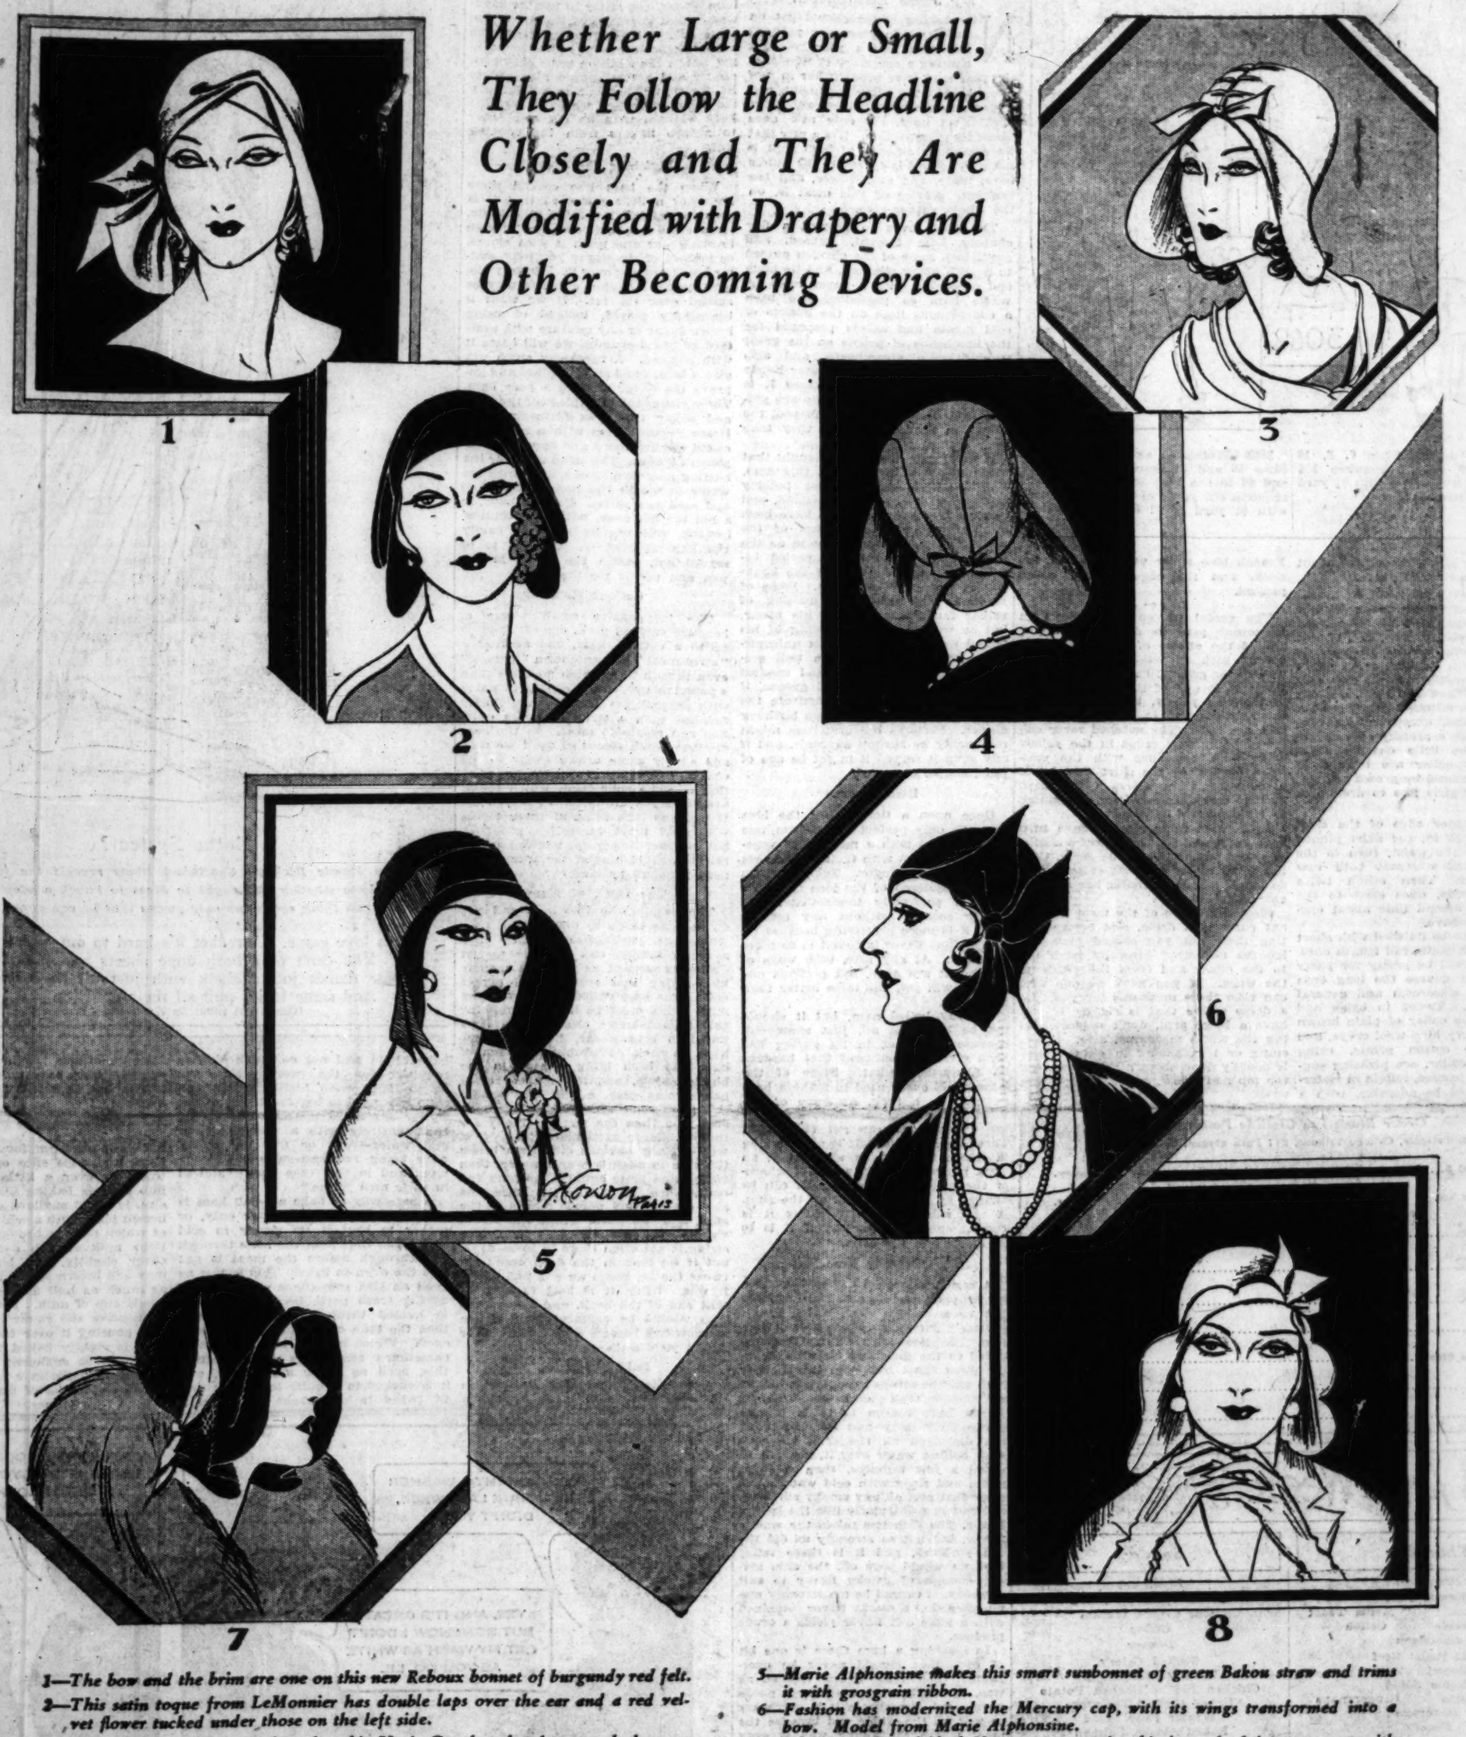
Spring Hats Are Beauty-Endowment Fashions

Whether Large or Small, They Follow the Headline Closely and They Are Modified with Drapery and Other Becoming Devices.



1—The bow and the brim are one on this new Reboux bonnet of burgundy red felt.
2—This satin toque from LeMonnier has double laps over the ear and a red velvet flower tucked under those on the left side.
3—Pink lacquered straw cloth makes this Maria Guy hat that has a tucked crown and cutaway brim.
4—One important sign of chic in the spring hat is the curved back brim of this Maria Guy green felt hat.
5—Marie Alphonsine makes this smart sunbonnet of green Bakou straw and trims it with grosgrain ribbon.
6—Fashion has modernized the Mercury cap, with its wings transformed into a bow. Model from Marie Alphonsine.
7—This Patou hat of black Neora straw gets its chic from the brim treatment, with smocking at the sides and folds at front and back.
8—Scalloped brims are fashion's favorites, and this Florence Walton hat is one of the smartest examples of the style.

By Bettina Bedwell
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS.—(Special Correspondence.)—Our faces, yes, and our heads entire, are being framed by Paris spring millinery fashions. Only the totally style-blind will be able to wear their last season's hats this spring. Millinery nakedness has passed with the passing of the nude slip that masqueraded as a dress, last year. Your spring bonnet must be a beauty-endowing frame for face and head lines in order to be fashionable. The little milliner around the corner is going to have a tough time of it because the smart spring hats require the cleverest fingers to drape and mould them to the head.

Not a line of the head, with its beautiful contours, must be lost, and if these lines aren't there, then it is up to the chic hat to supply them. Faces, of course, are the stars that the fashionable millinery of Paris plays up to, but the back and sides of your head must also look beautiful if your hat is a gen-u-ine Paris bred style.

Smart hats for the new season are grown. Most of them are large, but even the biggest couldn't be called capelines—the French name for the wide-brimmed hats of other days, because pliable straw, felt or other material is used, and the brims are cut up, tortured and twisted here and yon to frame the face with real beauty, without sacrificing comfort. Stiff hats aren't smart, although there are a few of them sitting rigidly on top of those high hat poles in the great Paris millinery salons.

Just as the big hats run to size with discretion, so the little caps and bonnets that are part of spring fashions modify their small dimensions with drapery and other becomingness devices. The smallest toques and caps are made of feathers, by Agnes, which frame them soft aureoles about the head and makes them smart for a springtime mode that is a thing of beauty. The long-backed hat is passing out of fashion's grade. When a hat has a back brim it is usually cut up to reveal the nape of the neck, or turned up so that there is no particular length behind.

Materials are exceedingly important. Paris is grabbing at straws and straw-cloth as among the smartest of hat materials. Straw that looks like lacquered straw is much favored. Neora straw that is a shiny fabric-like straw material is most chic. Straw hats make some of the most distinguished spring hats, and straw or net is used for others. There are heaps of felt, much thinner than that of former seasons, and reversible felt is good, too.

Bonnets and berets of straw to match your spring suit of tweed are going to keep right on being fashionable. Straw crochet hats, starched to crispness, are also good, and old-time horsehair braid makes the prettiest of dinner and afternoon hats.

Trimmings are in fashion, but since the shape of the head is all-important, they are put on with discretion so that the lines of hat and head are never deformed by them. Many a smart woman this spring will be seen wearing a "bonnet, with a ribbon, or a feather, or a bit of lace upon it," and multitudes of the best hats will be adorned with bows.

Reboux, the great milliner of Paris, has a new way to treat bows. She makes them right out of the brims of hats, slashing these brims and tying them up on the side in the most fetching fashion. Other things that are being done to brims to make them beauty lenders are scalloping, smocking and ruffling. Lots of the new Paris hats have brims with scalloped edges. Many others have brims that are smocked or ruffled at the sides to give a frilly, flattering aspect.

Most hat brims are lifted off the face in some fashion to show the forehead, the revealing of which continues to be a sign of chic.

The first French spring hat sketched is from Reboux and shows how she lifts and drapes the brims of her hats and how she ties the same brim in a bow on the right side. This hat is made of the new chiffon felt and is burgundy colored. The brim is hitched up in a point over the left eye, and knotted in a flaring bow over the right ear. It has no back and the crown is in the best manner, being quite shallow in front and deep in back.

The second hat is from LeMonnier and is made of black wedding ring satin, draped down into two laps over the ears. It curves up in a half-moon across the forehead and has a great big red velvet flower tucked under the laps on the left side. Lots of toques and bonnets this spring are going to have flower trimming arranged in this way.

The fourth hat is from Maria Guy and shows the way in which the Paris milliners are treating back brims. This hat is made of green reversible felt, dull and shiny, and its brim is folded back against the crown at the sides and held there by diamond arrows. The crown is in three sections, the two side sections dull and the top shiny, while the brim is shiny underneath and dull on top.

The Maria Guy hat in the upper right hand corner is made of pink fabric straw with a brilliant surface, and both color and material are extremely smart. The shallow crown of this hat is seamed across the top and tucked on both sides of the seam. The floppy brim is wide at the sides and narrows into a knot at the center front, while at the back it is cut in the outline you see at the top of a heart.

One of the new straw sunbonnet shapes that are dear to the heart of Paris fashions is shown in the fifth sketch. This comes from Marie Alphonsine and is made of bottle green bakou straw and trimmed with green grosgrain ribbon, which passes under the crown in front and back, emerging in a bow at the right side. The brim is folded back across the front. This hat, like all smart millinery, is worn so as to show the forehead.

The sixth hat is the new Mercury bonnet, also made by Marie Alphonsine. This blue felt bonnet had a brim of which Marie Alphonsine left only a dipping point on the right side. She tied the rest of it into the winged bow on the left side—tied it back so far that a great lock of the hair and part of the ear shows in front of the hat. That's part of its chic.

Jean Patou's newest spring bonnet is shown in our seventh sketch. It is one of the supremely smart hats of the new season. Made of black Neora straw, the crown is shallow and the brim folded back on itself both in front and back. At the sides it is smocked or near the crown and this makes the edges flow in engaging ripples below the ears. This hat is an ideal of the beauty-endowing qualities of spring millinery, and its trimming of bright orange velvet ribbon is significant, showing the trend toward brighter heads in fashion.

The eighth hat is made of bright red felt, and Florence Walton has scalloped the brim all around. The shape of this brim is a style feature. It mounts to a high point over the left eyebrow, where a felt bow is planted, and in back it is cut right up to the crown at the center.

PARIS SNAPSHOTS

At southern resorts smart women are wearing extra-wide brimmed hats of printed linen and horsehair braid.

Paris is weaving tweed out of straw threads to make the smart spring sports hats. It is woven to match your suit.

Green in bright billiard or pale pastel is a favorite French millinery color.

You can wear a feather in your hat if you like this spring, but you must place it somewhere near the top of the crown.

Some smart women are wearing diamond bowknots in pairs, one on the transparent evening bonnet and another on the shoulder of the evening gown.

2944—Woman's and misses' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting and 4¼ yards of binding.

3062—Girl's dress. Sizes 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. Size 8 requires 1⅝ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

2608—Woman's and miss' dress. Sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 40 inch material with ¾ yard of 32 inch contrasting.

HOW TO USE THE PATTERNS

THE new design, shown in pattern No. 2944, has several smart details that will be sure to be interesting to the woman who makes her own dresses.

The swathed movement through the hips created by the hip yoke, is tacked in plaits at the left side front, and the all around flaring circular skirt, as you can easily see, shows a different length from last year's dresses. The deep V neck line that is so generally becoming shows a bow at the end of the neck in the front, and also one at the left hip. The design is thoroughly feminine and bound to be becoming.

A printed tweed silk with a plain silk in a harmonizing tone will make a chic all day frock of crêpe satin in black or brown, and using both surfaces. Another wise choice is Canton crêpe in maroon red or navy blue.

The dress is quite easily made and won't take long either. The bodice is cut in two parts and finished at the neck with an outside facing of the contrasting color or material. Then, the onepiece sleeves are made close fitting by means of a dart up the outside, from wrist to just below the elbow and these are plain at the wrists and can either be faced or finished with a narrow bias binding.

Be careful in handling the skirt, and when you are pinning the pieces on the material be sure the latter doesn't pull away under the pattern pieces. A dining table is fine for cutting. Lay the skirt parts down on something so they won't pull, and after the seaming is finished and the skirt attached to the yoke, let it hang for several days before evening the skirt at the bottom. Finish the bottom with a narorw, bias binding and put it on by hand.

After the binding is seamed to the skirt, trim the seam off to about one-quarter inch in width. Then take care about turning in the opposite edge to hem down over the seam, frequently looking at the right side to see that the binding doesn't twist.

The bows are cut on the straight of the material, and finished with rolled hems or picoted edges. The skirt at the bottom for size 36 measures about two and seven-eighths yards.

A pretty and quaint frock with a bertha cape collar is shown in pattern No. 3062, for young girls, and one of the printed wool challis in bois de rose tones with the collar of plain rose organdy would surely please any small miss. Waist and skirt are cut separately and stitched together at a normal waistline, except at the center front, where a prettily curved line is taken. The little circular skirt and the cape collar are both style points that are used by grown women, and all young girls like to dress like older women.

After the upper edge of the skirt has been turned in, the skirt pinned and basted to the waist, turn to the wrong side and overcast both raw edges together. Then stitch twice from the outside, once close to the edge and the second time about one-quarter inch above.

The dress can be finished with short sleeves, or with plain, full length ones. Short sleeves will be pretty for party wear, while of course the long ones are right for classroom and general daytime wear. Tweed in beige and brown with the collar of plain brown wool crêpe; navy blue wool crêpe, and the tweedlike cotton prints, using pique for the collar, are pleasing suggestions. For parties, taffeta in watermelon pink will be adorable, with a French blue sheer velvet bow at the neck, and the edge of the collar picoted.

The useful woolen frock plays an important part in daytime fashions and is the choice of the school and college girl, as well as for smart women for general daytime wear, particularly in one of the sheer woolens in the new yellow, brown and white combinations, as is pictured in pattern No. 2608. The notched rever collar of plain wool crêpe in the yellow beige tone, combines with the scalloped closing of the skirt that takes a diagonal slant above the plaited inset to carry out a chic one sidedness to lengthen the silhouette.

Long, dart fitted sleeves have turn back cuffs, and the belt shows a slightly raised waistline. Crêpe satin, Canton faille crêpe, dull flat crêpe, crêpe de chine, and wool challis are all suitable materials.

Sleeves are one of the most important parts of a dress, and before cutting them out you should have the lengths measured carefully from top to the elbow and from the elbow to the wrist. If you have no one who can take these measures for you, use a dress sleeve that is right. If you have a large arm, don't neglect taking the width measures, also. Shortening or lengthening in either place is usually done about midway between the top and elbow, and the elbow and wrist.

THE TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

Savory Ham May Be Presented in a Variety of Appetizing Ways

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

By Jane Eddington.

NO cooking editor should get on for a whole year, nor perhaps for even half a year, without making a summary of whatever the year may have brought her in new ideas about ham cookery, though perhaps there are no new ideas about the cooking of ham, but only new ones about its presentation. 'Tis a pity that an enormous amount of ham that is not well cooked is served to the public here, there, and everywhere, and the exquisite service of this meat is, on the whole, rather rare.

The chef loves to present a fine shapely ham frosted, figured, and garnished, some of the garnish pinned to it with silver skewers, and its bony end decorated with a paper rose. A whole ham so presented has been a conspicuous item on the buffets of cold meats and salads prepared for the luncheons of people on the great trans-Atlantic steamboats, and also common in some of the greater hotels of the world. In many cases it is intended that the people who are getting their luncheon should inspect the collection of meats before they take their seat at table.

It was really a national thought that made me consider ham at this date, because it is an excellent holiday meat when beautifully presented, and because our Virginia hams have been among the epicurean meats of the world. We focus our attention on the state of Virginia at this period because of the celebration of the birthday of George Washington. Some of us have attempted the making of rather fantastic menus in his honor, but as we dig into the eating of his period we really find it a bit uninspiring. Probably a fine ham well presented with fried apples and candied sweet potatoes and collard greens, if procurable, might well constitute the central part of a Washington birthday dinner. Perhaps the first item might reasonably be shrimp supreme, and if any soup is served it might be one of peas, simple or grand.

Boiled Ham.

Once upon a time I had the idea that the only perfect boiled ham was one seasoned with a mixture of vegetables, and even with fruits and spices like candied ginger. Today I am rather possessed of the idea that if a ham is perfectly immaculate, and gently cooked, without any seasonings, it is more gratifying because its own unique flavor is bound to be more manifest. At any rate, both ways of cooking it are good, but perhaps one method will suit the taste better than the other.

We say boiled ham, but it should not be boiled at all, just simmered, because the meat in its curing has been given a treatment that hardens its fibers somewhat. Some of the famous old cures used to make a ham as hard as a rock, as some of the Virginia hams seem today, and only the expert cook can get them soft. Three hours and a half is not too long in which to cook, by simmering, an eight pound ham, but a test of whether the ham is cooked enough can be applied by trying to peel off the skin. If the skin comes off readily it is cooked enough, especially if it is to be finished in the oven.

Cleaning Ham.

A ham which comes to us beautifully wrapped and inclosed in a cloth bag or a knitted cloth which fits it perfectly naturally requires less attention than does one that has been exposed to the dust and dirty hands in the meat shop. But even this cleaner ham may be scraped first, as the other one must be, then washed and brushed. If we have reason to think it was particularly dirty and that we have not dislodged all the dirt, we may pour boiling water over it, allow it to stand a few minutes, then wash it again and rinse with cold water. And after that peel off any smoky surfaces, unless you particularly like the smoky flavor. The skin has taken the smoky flavor, but not so strongly as did the cut surfaces, and it is these latter that we would pare off, the skin giving enough of smoky flavor to suit anybody. It cannot be too strongly emphasized that a smoky flavor combined with a stale dirt flavor yields a crude product.

In cleaning a ham there is one bit of care that should never be overlooked: The hole where the string was, if a string has been used, needs paring out. Sometimes it is necessary to saw off the whole end because the meat where the string was is gray and even rancid.

This is using up a good many words to describe something that is usually put into about ten, but to our mind it is exceedingly important that this work be correctly done.

Putting the Ham to Cook.

After all this careful work has been done, put the ham into cold water to cover and allow an hour or more for that water to come to a boiling point.

Some hams of rather low grade will not be good unless they are cooked in a seasoned water, and by doing so a poor ham may be so savory that every bit of it can be used. The last bits are good for sandwich fillings and ham butter, the latter to use for sandwiches and garnishings. Some onion, some celery, herbs, and parsley with a sour apple can be put into the cooking water. In addition some preserved ginger and a few prunes also add to its flavor. This fruit is particularly recommended when we have just the hock of ham with its cut end ready to absorb flavors from the cooking water.

Finishing the Ham.

When the ham has cooked three hours or a little more, so that it is easy to pull off the skin, take it up, remove the skin and cover the fat with brown sugar and prick it with cloves, or instead of the sugar you may scatter bread crumbs over it. For very elegant service chopped almonds may be spread over the fat. If we want it beautifully glazed, instead of using brown sugar or any mixture with mustard or bread crumbs, we will baste it with a sirup. A raspberry sirup will give a bright and shining glaze and improve the flavor of even a poor ham. These sirups take the place of the wine and sugar that was formerly used. Hams finished thus with a sirup are called candied hams and appear on expensive menus. The sirup used for the basting may be diluted a little with the water in which the ham was cooked and used as a sauce. Half an hour, in a not too hot oven, with ten minutes' basting, will usually glaze or candy the ham sufficiently. If it is to be served hot, strain the liquid in the pan and use it for the sauce.

Cottage Ham.

The inexpensive small pieces of boneless smoked pork, one of which is called a cottage ham, and another a "sweetmeat" and another a "square," even though they weigh no more than a pound or two, can be cooked in water with seasoning vegetables and finally finished with a sirup to make quite fine and palatable meat. In the case of these small pieces of meat we may add simply some brown sugar to the cooking water with perhaps the addition of some sour fruit, which might even be a few cranberries chopped up. If one has luck some of these pieces will yield most attractive products, but in general they are handled rather roughly, great bins of them, and they need particularly nice care.

The Hock of Ham.

The people who like ham and yet do not like to go to the expense of a whole one, particularly if they have a small family, can manage to get dishes as elegant as the ham mousse by cooking that smaller and poorer end of the ham called the hock. Even more pains must be taken in making this immaculately clean before it is put into cold water, like the large ham, to cook. Probably the hock of ham has been lying around in the butcher shop, and if its cut surface has become gray, a thin slice should be cut off after the cleaning has been done and then the piece is ready for the pot. More particularly let us first wipe off any obvious dirt, then brush the skin in slightly warm water, then scrape and rinse again, then pare the cut surface or cut off a thin slice, and also cut out any purple marks in the skin, and the place where the string was should not be forgotten. The string is not often there in these days, but if we look in the deep crack between the leg bones we will find where it was. Often it is best to saw off that end of the hock, and always the bone should be examined, for if the marrow has become a dark gray color it will yield a disagreeable flavor.

Baking a Ham.

A so-called boiled ham finished in the oven can be quite as fine as a baked ham and not so much skill is required for the work. Formerly baked hams were highly spiced and wine was used in basting them, or the rather expensive method of covering them entirely with a paste of flour and water—four or five pounds of flour being required—was once common, and in this case they "stewed in their own juices."

A safe way to bake a small ham is to boil it first for one hour only, or rather to heat it up slowly in cold water and thus heat the bone through and through before the meat is put into the oven to bake. This is just as good an idea sometimes when we are baking fresh pork, because the bone is heated through adequately, and then the time of baking can be shortened. When ham is baked in paste sometimes seasonings are put into this, such as sugar and spices, and it is cooked in a quite low oven; that is, baked in one about 250 degrees. Because of this low heat it is easy to see why there is an advantage in having it hot before it is put into the oven.

Baked Slices of Ham.

This is excellent for a small family. Trim and wipe slice of ham an inch thick, or even a little more. Put it into a glass baking dish of about pie size, low and shallow, or into a heavy brown plate with a white lining, either of which may be brought to the table. Pour milk enough over the ham to cover slightly, but before that you may add brown sugar, a little, or even as much as half a cup of sugar to a whole cup of milk. Perhaps it is best to dissolve the sugar in the milk before pouring it over the ham. If the ham is rightly baked this amount of milk will be sufficient, but more can be added. Bake in a rather hot oven for three-fourths of an hour, basting two or three times.

Gotta System?

Miss Mamie Hickey's Shorthand Diary reveals the fact that she never knows whether she ought to dress to knock a man's eye out or to make him think she wears only gowns that he can afford.

This love game. A racket it's hard to outguess!

Women the World Over

Mlle. Genevieve Le Derff, 19 year old French golf professional, started as a caddy in her childhood. She is the first woman ever to compete in the French professional championship.

After an enforcement of more than 1,100 years, which prohibited the presence of women on Mount Omine, in Japan, the ban is to be partially lifted in 1930 for feminine worshipers.

Having made the ornate decorations of gold lace, black braid and broad cloth on uniforms worn by commissioned and non-commissioned officers of the cadet corps at West Point Military academy during the last fifty years is the task accomplished by Mrs. Louise Regan of Highland Falls, N. Y. Chevrons made by her were worn by many officers of the army who now wear general's stars.

Lovely COMPLEXION that nothing will remove

WOULD you like a lovely skin? A complexion that won't come off—a radiant color all your own? If constipation is the cause of your troubles give your system the little calcium that it needs—and note the immediate improvement.

Five days will very often transform a muddy, blotchy, sallow complexion resulting from this condition. From the very first day, you should see and feel the difference.

Tiny, gentle, Stuart's Calcium Wafers help Nature to quickly rid the system of impurities and poisonous wastes that cause pimples, blotches, acne and other skin blemishes. A week-end's use will frequently work a wondrous change.

A FEW DAYS' TEST WILL TELL

Bright, sparkling eyes! Clear, satin-smooth skin free from faults! Nails and hair alive and glossy with sound growth! And a warm flush of natural color radiating from within—refreshingly lovely color that no rouge can imitate, and nothing can remove. Try this week-end test.

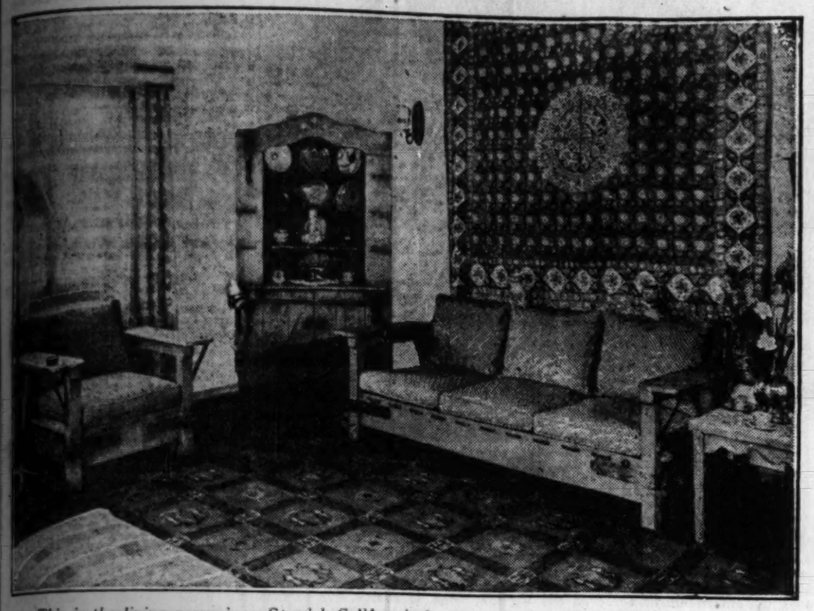
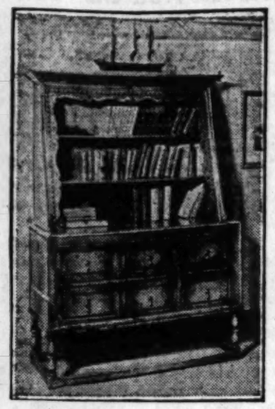
HOME FURNISHING AND DECORATING

Furniture for Special Localities

By Edith Weigle

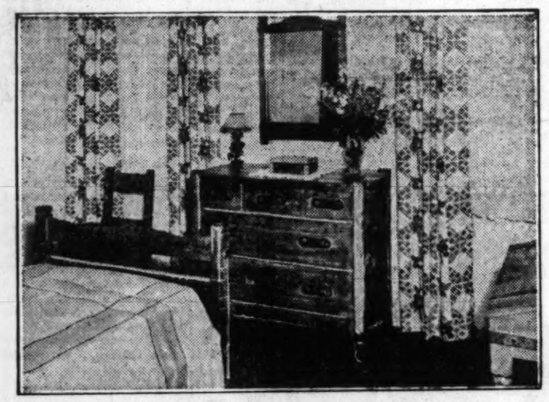


This is the living room in a Spanish-California house, and what a lot of feeling its extremely simple furniture creates! It's a good deal like Mission with the curse removed. The corner cupboard is particularly attractive. A gayly patterned print makes a stunning wall hanging and is echoed in the printed window curtains. A small tile-top table at one end of the sofa holds flowers and tea things.



This picturesque ship's cupboard of maple, although not of the same design as the rest of the furniture pictured, is nevertheless an appropriate accompaniment, for its sturdy, well proportioned lines adapt it to any simple, unpretentious scheme of decoration.

The furniture pictured today, with the single exception of the separate cupboard, was designed for use in southern California, but is equally attractive in the Spanish stucco house one sees so often in the suburbs of middle western or eastern cities, or in the balmy atmosphere of the western coast states. Its rugged lines and aged appearance make it ideal for the rustic Spanish type of dwelling. Here you see an open cupboard for dishes and books, a drop leaf table and a rude chair with a strip of leather for a seat.

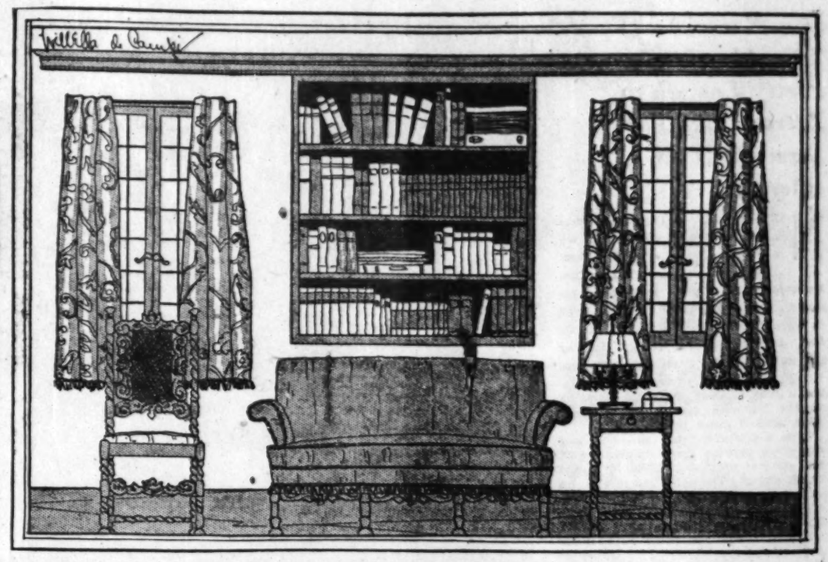


This interesting bedroom again strikes the Spanish note. There is perfect harmony between the large patterned fabric used for window draperies and the crude but artistic furniture. The chest of drawers has heavy metal drawer handles that simulate the antique and there are braces of the same metal on the sides. The mirror above it has strips of metal for decoration. At the right is a quaint writing desk, the slanting top of which pulls open by a heavy iron handle. Note the simple bed and the attractive bed cover.

The Carolean Period

By WillElla de Campi

Stately Chairs and Tables Are the Most Notable Products of This Era in English Decoration



Furnishings in this library are typical of the restoration.

WillElla de Campi will be glad to assist the homemaker in any problems pertaining to home furnishings. Address your letter to WillElla de Campi, The Tribune, Chicago. Inclose stamped, addressed envelope for personal reply.

WITH the restoration of Charles II., the "Merrie Monarch," to the throne of England in 1660, there was a general revolt against the spirit of repression and bald severity which had been enforced under Cromwellian rule. Popular tastes turned naturally to a fondness for comfort, luxury, and elaboration. The king and large numbers of his adherents who had shared his exile for many years, brought back with them strong foreign influences—Flemish, Dutch, Portuguese, Spanish, and French. All of these, modified by native British tastes, were incorporated in the furniture made during the late Jacobean or Carolean period.

Oak continued to be used to some extent, but was gradually superseded by walnut, a wood which was much less liable to chip and which lent itself more readily to delicate carving and turning. The plainness of the Cromwellian era was followed in the Carolean period by elaborate scroll work, and pierced carving and marquetry or inlay were exceedingly popular.

In addition to oak and walnut, other woods used during this period included elm and beech for simpler pieces; pine, pear, and lime, for carving on which gilding or paint were to be applied, and a little chestnut and cherry late in the period. For marquetry there was a great diversity of materials, the most noteworthy being mahogany, holly, bog oak, imported precious woods, ebony, ivory and mother of pearl.

In the matter of carving, many of the motifs employed during the early Jacobean days continued to be used, though most of the carving on Carolean pieces exhibited more elaborate scroll work, high relief and pierced work. It was during the latter part of the Carolean period that Grinling Gibbon was "discovered" as a master wood carver. His work, which is admirably fine in detail and decorative arrangement, was noteworthy not only during the Carolean period, but during the later William and Mary, Queen Anne, and George I. reigns, as well. Perfect examples of his workmanship, in frames for mirrors and portraits, in overmantel decorations and other pieces have been preserved to the present day.

Most notable among the products of the Carolean period were stately chairs and tables. The chairs were sometimes of oak or maple, but more frequently of walnut or beech and they had high narrow backs with carved cresting, sides and underbraces. Slender twisted columns and rich scrolls carved in high relief were features. Backs usually had a narrow panel of cane or upholstery set in elaborately carved frames, the seats were caned or upholstered. Carved and scrolled stretchers between the front legs took the place of the plain, heavy underbracings which had been used in early Jacobean days. Many of the stretchers and uprights, as well as legs, were spirally turned.

Caning used in the first part of the Carolean period showed large coarse meshes, but in succeeding years the mesh decreased in size to form a much finer cane work. Upholstery used for chairs and sofas was of expensive tapestry, embroidered fabrics, gorgeous velvet, brocade of continental or English manufacture, and elaborate needlework. Settees about the length of a sofa were made much like chairs of the period, with upholstered backs, seats, and arms. Love seats which came into use at this time, were chairs of sufficient breadth to seat two occupants side by side.

Long oak dining tables with lighter legs and struts than those in the early Jacobean period, continued to be used in Carolean days, and they were usually made with carved aprons. These gradually gave place, however, to tables with drop leaves and gate-legs. Tables of this type gained favor rapidly and were one of the most interesting features of the period. They were generally made of oak or walnut, and as a rule were round or oval, though there are a few rectangular examples. Underbracings and legs were turned and two or four legs could be opened like gates, to support the drop leaves. Owing to the habit of tea and coffee drinking which came into vogue during the restoration, various shaped small tables were made in increasing numbers. Other small tables were especially designed for games, and tables with drawers made their appearance. Many of these had ringed baluster or columnar legs.

Beds continued to be much like those of the early Jacobean type with heavy, carved posts and elaborate testers and head boards. Towards the end of the Carolean period daybeds or cane sofas, progenitors of our modern chaise longues and couches became more and more popular. These were long enough to permit a person to recline at full length. Ornamental details closely followed those of chairs. Boxed cushions were often added for comfort. Head pieces were usually adjustable to any desired angle by means of chains or straps and pins.

Footstools and bedsteps were widely used at this time. They were made of oak or walnut and sometimes had caned tops. The legs were turned and scrolled and carved stretchers like those between the front legs of chairs were sometimes added. These stools often served the purpose of small tables, as well.

Chests, of course, continued to be important. Those of the Carolean period added more drawers, finally developing with chests built up entirely of drawers, instead of chests with one or two drawers set in below. Some of the high chests had drawers in the lower part while the upper part opened with doors, like cupboards. Carving, geometrical paneling and marquetry were lavishly used for ornamentation.

Paint was more widely used during the Carolean period than it had been during the early Jacobean days. Gilding became one of the stock resources of embellishment for furniture in the homes of the wealthy. Lacquered pieces, which had been imported during previous periods, were made by English craftsmen at this time, in imitation of the oriental process.

Modern reproductions of Carolean furniture find a ready market as the style is admirably suited to the English type of house so popular in many cities today. The accompanying illustration shows a pleasant and restful library furnished with Carolean pieces. The settee is upholstered in antiqued crimson velvet. Curtains at the windows are of dull green linen, embroidered in worsted. The typical restoration chair with its cane panel back is fitted with a boxed seat cushion. On the small Carolean table at the other end of the settee there is a brass candlestick lamp with a parchment shade. Plaster walls are tinted ecru and the oak woodwork and floors are stained dark.

Simple Way to Get Rid of Blackheads

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads, that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of Calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear. Blackheads are a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions that form in the pores of the skin. The Calonite powder and the water dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition.

The Young Child Needs Special Care and Attention from Both Parents and Teacher, Those Difficult Hours Away from Home

A book on the care of babies by Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom can be had at The Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 50 cents, or by mail for 61 cents. Two booklets by Mrs. Bevans, on "Prayers and Graces for Children" and "Books to Be Read to Children or by Them," will be sent free on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

WITH the new term, many very little boys and girls are going to school for the first time in their lives, and many mothers are feeling the pang that, for them, goes with the experience. Any one who has ever had teaching experience knows it is infinitely easier to teach a graduating class in grammar school than it is to teach the class just above the kindergarten.

Also, any one who has ever had teaching experience knows it is easier to make the younger children love school—to love it so much that they will sometimes cry because they have to stay home. With a real interest in children, a great patience, a real knowledge of how to educate them, an understanding of how they blossom under approval and a play feeling and cheerfulness, a teacher can make school a happy place for them. It can be done—by the right teacher under the right conditions.

But I have also seen it done by the right teacher under the wrong conditions. I have seen teachers who, because of a hidebound system had to conduct a class of little children in a formal, old fashioned way still create an atmosphere which made the children love to come to school.

It is possible also for the wrong teacher even under the right conditions to make children dislike school. The degree to which the personality of the teacher enters in is hard to estimate, but it is a tremendous factor.

A Sharp Transition.

There are thousands of teachers of little children who are making the many school hours in every day the important in their pupils' lives. They are not paid for what they do, to be sure, but they are giving themselves somehow of that end. And lucky are those little children for, after all, the change from home to school is a sharp transition.

Except in the progressive schools, it means an almost complete loss of physical freedom; it means enforced association with the same personalities every day; it means doing a required thing for a required time; it means loss of sunshine and outdoors, and it involves many other conditions not compatible with the growth and interests of a very young creature. So those children are fortunate who draw, in the lottery of school life, a teacher who can give color, life, and joyousness to the school day.

Also, woe betide the very little boy or girl whose teacher is the cause of his dreading each school morning. Almost anything is better for him than the experience of hating school and still having to go. If the teacher is the cause of the trouble, either the teacher or the child should be removed from the class. This is not always feasible—and how a parent would meet such a problem would have to be an individual solution.

But often a child's reluctance to go to school is not due to the teacher's special unfitness for her task. Sometimes it may be because she is cross, or glum, or uninspired, or strict, or hits the children [as some still do]—but often it is not that, at all.

Ferret Out the Cause.

When a little child who is starting school seems unhappy over it, it behooves a mother to try to ferret out the cause. One of the first things for her to do is to talk it over with the little girl or boy, and see if she can locate the trouble that way.

Another is to go to see the teacher and have a talk with her. Call on the principal and see what he or she can suggest. Still another is to visit the class.

Many times causes can be removed and so the difficulty can be cleared up. That is the intelligent course to follow.

Don't get the idea that your young child must all of a sudden fight things out—stand on his own feet in this new and strange environment if the odds are against him. He can't necessarily do that at once—nor if he could is it necessarily good for him to do it.

For instance, suppose some one told him that the janitor of the building put bad little boys and girls in the furnace [an actual case]. Suppose he is seated near a boy or girl who torments him and takes his pencils and gets him in trouble. Suppose, being used to help and attention, he has trouble getting used to certain new things like going to the school toilet, and consequently doesn't go. Suppose his teacher at the beginning doesn't understand your child—she has a good many and her hands are full.

Suppose, he's a little slow and feels ashamed of it and needs to be let alone or if noticed at all, to be encouraged. These and many other difficulties can be corrected if individual attention is focussed upon them.

Don't Expect Too Much.

You may hesitate and feel your child should adjust himself without this. There's no reason why he should conquer so much at once—and no reason why he shouldn't have individual attention. It can be tactfully given and, after all, he is an individual.

If you think about it a little you will realize that it is not necessarily right that your child should adjust himself to every aspect of his school environment. Perhaps the environment may be wrong and should be partially adjusted to the child. If there is something wrong in the school setting, let that be changed as far as is reasonable in order to make a place more favorable to other growing young things in general, or to yours in particular.

I know these things are not easy to do—and some parents shrink from what seems like interference or asking for special consideration. But such feelings should be put aside for the good of your children. Schools and parents should be able to meet amicably, and work out their difficulties together.

Last fall a number of letters came in which were enough to make one's heart ache, of children who were either reluctant each day to go to school, or else who really dreaded it and wept and begged not to go. It was too late then to write a general article on the subject.

This article is to urge you not to force your children to go to school when they are unhappy over it, but to do something, to go into action about it. Each day of his life should be an event for a child to look forward to with happy anticipation, whether in school or out. Do your part to make it so.

Quizzed Stranger.

Morning after morning I have sat beside my brother as the train bore us to the loop. Recently I sleepily boarded the train after my brother and unaware of the fact that several people had come between us, I edged in a seat beside a stranger, assuming this was my brother.

I chanced to glance down at the stranger's tan shoes and recalling that I had never seen tan shoes in our family's closet, I said, "Where in the world did you get those shoes?"

The stranger looked at me puzzled while I awkwardly apologized and backed toward the exit. G. E. P.

In a Courtroom.

At one time I was employed as stenographer in a lawyer's office in a small town, and for the convenience of the attorneys in settling county court matters, court convened there once a month.

One day when court was in session, one of the attorneys telephoned me to bring down some missing documents, as I [illegible] them away. As I stepped into the courtroom, the serious old gray haired judge was seated at his desk, all the attorneys were around their table, and a few clients were scattered about the room. The only thing to be heard was the judge's voice attending to his solemn duties.

My attorney motioned for me to be seated for a minute, but I leaned against one of the long seats at the rear. Imagine my surprise when I found it was not fastened to the floor and the seat, papers and I went back in a heap. Needless to say the courtroom was somewhat noisier for a few moments. I. O. T.

Opportunely Placed.

I am taking a course in essay writing and am in the habit of working on it at the office every spare moment. The other day while jotting down the central thought of an essay entitled, "Asking for a Raise," I went to answer the telephone, leaving the pad on my desk. Imagine my embarrassment when I returned to find my boss reading: "Asking for a raise is like having a tooth pulled." C. B.

Not Interested.

While I was working on my lodges, one of the boys in the office came over and asked me if I were too busy to meet his girl. Thinking he was only joking I said: "Sorry, wouldn't care to." I looked up, and there was his [illegible], [illegible], R. G.

Mothers, Mix This At Home for a Bad Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, loosens the germ-laden phlegm, and soothes away the inflammation. Part of the medicine is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

The Lure and Charm of Hands

by Antoinette Donnelly

Like Faces, They May Be Pretty Enough to Attract, but Too Dumb to Hold Interest.

NEW YORK, — [Special Correspondence.]—I wonder if we are not on the eve of a New Thought movement about hands. Heretofore little girls have been instructed to make their hands behave in nice, constrained, ladylike imitation, if not the real thing. Rather primmish, they've been ordered to be. No fussing. No superfluous gesturing. Just a sweet, ladylike relaxing of the muscles and hands reposed with studied grace in the lap.

This lap-landishness somehow does not seem exactly commensurate with the general useful activities of hands these days. There is too much up and doingness about those twentieth century digits to expect Polly Prim conduct, even off duty. Then, too, we have on the whole achieved unusual perfection in hand care. So the question evolves: Now that I have beautiful hands or nice hands, where do they go from here?"

Hands Express Youth.

Should they be kept docilely quiet, or have we arrived at a good time now for schools of expression with hands doing considerable of the talking?

The thought occurred in a recent chat with Miss Margaret Shotwell, the young pianist, whose tale of a lost fortune on the stock market may have reached your ears; its denial, likewise. However, that is neither here nor there. The young woman did provoke a few interesting side lights on hands. Naturally, involved in an art of which hand flexibility is at least one-half the battle of conquering an audience, she has been unusually observant of hands in and out of her profession.

We all talk about old hands as they are seen out dining or bridge playing in company with much younger faces. But we make our deductions rather from the oldish texture of the skin than from hand gesturing.

Miss Shotwell recalled a certain individual known to us both whose hand gestures, not the skin texture, are stiff, unyielding, old—belying her otherwise youngish appearance. And that, I think, has the germ of an excellent form of study for each individual one of us. In the drama world, for instance, there are, beside tricks of hand makeup, rigid hand and arm movements to complete the illusion of age. Tightened muscular movement seems to be the keynote of age, whether it is shown in the body, the walk, or the hand.

Miss Margaret Shotwell, pianist, possesses hands which, while they differ from the generally accepted idea of the long, slender fingered, artistic type, yet embody an exceptionally attractive appeal in the charm of their "speaking" quality.

Vivacity, the acknowledged national characteristic of certain foreign women like the French and the Italian, is an impression gleaned largely from their hand gestures, Miss Shotwell called to mind. True, too!

Professionals Study Hand Lure.

It will take some time for our women to become as facile of hand movements as these women who have been practising without self-consciousness for ages. But it does occur to me that a "talking" hand, if a pretty one, adds appreciably to the esthetic scenery. And, as already hinted, now that we have pretty well perfected an implement of grace, physically speaking, why not make a study of hand expression?

Naming several acquaintances who are widely known professionals, Miss Shotwell drew attention to the fact that the way they use their hands is no small part of their lure. One musical comedy star in particular has just as much charm in her hands as in her dancing toes, just as much youth in her flexible wrists as in her flexible ankles.

Esthetic dancing, whether or not you want your child to be one of the "Chase the Birdies" exhibitionists, Miss Shotwell humorously though sincerely believes to be the perfect school for fascinating hand work. In fact, any female progeny that happens to bear the name of the attractive young pianist and the ultimate choice of her heart is already doomed to a barefooted, scarf wearing, spring song rhythmical pursuit for no other motive than to learn how to use the hands gracefully. Unless one comes by it naturally the dancing school, she thinks, is the place to learn.

We even got into a discussion of the sex appeal of hands, an idea suggested by the young pianist, whose hands are a slight contradiction in form to the long, slender fingered "artistic" prescription. If there is any so-called "artistic" lack of form to her hands, however, there is an exceptionally charming grace in their speaking quality. But this is a point in itself. One does not have to have perfect hands to make them talk well. In fact, if they come through the school of hand expression with flying colors the hands, though they lack the physical qualities of shape and form, may still be in the running for hand laurels. Such is the power of expression, lent by youthful flexibility and gesture.

It is just as true of hands as it is of faces—they can be pretty and too dumb to attract. Or, they can be less pretty, but with expression can attract and hold interest indefinitely.

Awareness of Beauty in Hands.

We weren't any more successful determining the IT of hands than women usually are on the subject, resigning the topic shortly because of a deferential obeisance to the unalterable fact that man alone can decide which is the hand to hold and which the one to slight. Nor did we get any further in suggestions in concrete form for better and more alluring hand gesture than relaxed, unconscious movements, which necessarily must begin with an untightened wrist and untightened emotions. But neither could any one give you a formula to change your facial expression other than by telling you to loosen up that tense, hard line around the mouth. The rest is up to you. And it is a question really of becoming aware of the beauty that lies in graceful little turns and bends of hand and arm and fingers.

One physical aid in the direction of less awkward hand consciousness Miss Shotwell offers in olive oil baths with lemon rubs to inflate the value of the softening oil with a whitening lotion, which lemon juice is. Necessarily, hands that are soft and white reasonably will respond to grace suggestions more readily.

An artful little trick—perhaps in the interest of s. a.—is to rub a bit of perfume on the hands and so make the gesture just a bit more redolent. Miss Shotwell suggests the salve form of perfume, since you can carry one of the tiny containers conveniently in your bag for emergency vamping moments, might we say?

One Young Wife Reveals How the Realization of Herself as Homemaker Made Her Happier

"I MAY be a little late with my New Year's suggestion," "A Wife" writes, "but then every day can start a new year in behavior, can't it?"

"I hope I am not going to appear like one of those smug sisters who has just lighted upon a cure for her own troubles and insists on handing out large doses to every one else. Maybe my system won't prove the great blessing in my little domestic scene I plan it to be, but already the air is clearing. And, what is most important to me, I have discovered a number of times this year that it wasn't the other one who precipitated our last year's misunderstandings.

"It was this idiot herself. She was a pretty unreasonable person, last year, she was! The Nice Dear's [meaning my husband's] patience gets a counting in this year's summary of her blessings. Last year she was more than partially blind to it. The wonder is to me now that I have half seen the light; that Bob didn't take me over his knee and give me what I needed."

What "A Wife" reveals in her frank and charming confession is that things were taking on the light in her small ménage of an early break, threatening the life happiness of three persons, herself, her husband, and their small young son.

What pressure was brought to bear toward a different line of thinking on the part of "A Wife" does not matter. She says it was a combination of three things happening at once: an article she read in a magazine, a sharp reprimand from her Dad whom she adored, and a particularly biting exchange of words between herself and husband after which the small son's attitude was plainly one of sympathy with his father.

New State in Life.

Anyway, out of the mental revolutions of a couple of days and nights what "A Wife" arrived at was that she was no longer a single woman nor entitled to the privileges, the freedom, the entertainment nor even the consideration that one enjoys before marriage.

"I think," "A Wife" tells, "that a lot of us wives are alike in thinking that marriage is not a different lot from that which we had been enjoying before marriage. We think it is [or should be] a continuation of the old pre-marriage days to which should be added all the blessings of marriage, too. Or, to cite my own case, I thought and kept on thinking it for nearly five years that I should still be treated as the carefree girl I used to be and on top of all, the fact that I was a wife and a mother should earn just that much more attention, fussing, and loving demonstration."

Accept New Conventions.

Now "A Wife" is willing to go on record as having finally discovered that a married woman's lot is a thing apart from a single girl's place in the sun. That she cannot think in the same terms of entertainment, wants, excitement, clothes and such things.

"Marriage," she suggests, "is like taking up residence in a foreign country. If you want to get along with your new neighbors you cannot try to force your homeland convictions on them. You have to adopt new ways in order to live congenially. That's what I mean by bringing all your single girl sentiments and persuasions into marriage. They don't belong. There's an entirely new set waiting in this new land we enter voluntarily.

"I don't know but what those countries which provide certain type dress and hairdress to distinguish married women from single might not be emulated to advantage here—just to get married women into the character of wedded persons. We American girls get into it so slowly. Yet, if we want to make marriage go, we have to act as married women. Which means that the old days are over. That there are two, then three or maybe more to be considered instead of one.

"Honestly, I do think that this is the crux of a great deal of our marriage troubles today. I know it was with me. It is with other wives of my age. And, of course, our particular era subscribes broadly to the idea of not letting marriage interfere with personal plans, which would be a good idea if it worked. But it does not. There is no such thing as personal plans in any partnership that is going to endure. You've got to consider the other partner—and the little partnerettes that invariably precipitate themselves upon the scene. I'm not preaching, please understand. I'm only confessing my own discovery.

Ready for an Adult Rôle.

"I remember with what a shock I was spoken of on a certain occasion as a 'young matron.' A 'matron.' The idea—and me only a girl, thinking like one, acting like one, and a silly one, at that. Even after the baby came, when I was spoken of as a woman I resented the idea of not being still considered a girl. Silly, of course. But, as I say, it is this refusal to recognize a change in position that causes a lot of silly mistakes. It's like trying to do the Peter Pan won't grow up act when we are really cast for an adult rôle calling for adult behavior, adult consideration of others."

The gist of the rest of our "Wife's" story is that after she worked herself into the character of her rôle she saw in it opportunities undreamed of before. Instead of playing at keeping house, she began to keep house, even to introducing a budget system. From the latter she learned that one cannot be on the go all of the time. She is already hard at work on a better feeding plan for all three. She is learning the pleasure of work well planned and executed and its reaction on the tempers of all involved.

"Wasn't it silly," she concludes, "for me to go on as I did, thinking of myself in terms of the 'star boarder' in the house instead of the integral part of the machinery a wife should be?

"Pray for me, anyway, so my courage won't fail. It isn't faltering—yet—and I'm getting so much more kick out of my 'job' now that I have fallen into line. You can call me 'matron' now, leaving off the young if you want to. I don't mind it a bit when the grocer says, 'Yes, madam!' I'm not, 'Yes, miss!' any more—and I kindalike this new importance I seem to have acquired all of a sudden."

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it may mean you have been eating foods which create acids, says a well-known authority. An excess of such acids overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels, removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sours, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the system, so they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Practical and Fancy Needle Work

These Pastel Colored Lingerie Pillows Make Charming Prizes

CHARMING gifts for a bridge game are several small pillows tied together with double faced satin ribbon. These will naturally be made of some one or more delicate shades of pink, blue, lavender or green—matching the color of the chaise lounge or bed on which they are to be used. Quilting the upper side of the pillow in simple diamonds or squares, or having the material stamped in some conventional design makes all the decoration needed. Use silk thread the same color as the material for the quilting, and take the running stitches as evenly as possible. Of course, the stitches must be very short.

Seam the pillow tops on the wrong side, leaving one end open to slip the pillow into. But before turning the cover right side out baste each edge of the open end back in an evenly turned edge—matching the width of the seam—then overhand the edges together after slipping the pillow in. Sometimes a small silk cord or piping of a contrasting color is used as a finish to these pillows, but nothing is necessary if the work is well done.

These small pillows are cut oblong, square or round; and I saw one cut in the shape of a shamrock. These were most attractive looking, and were perfectly plain.

Lingerie pillows are always acceptable, and nothing is lovelier than those made of the sheerest linen, organdie or net, with exquisite lace medallions and insertion set in. Of course these pillows are finished with ruffles of the pillow material, edged with lace. Sometimes footing is used with excellent effect. Every stitch of a pillow cover of this kind must be done by hand.

One way of setting lace in material is to baste the medallion or insertion in place, first having the material smooth. Then, after hemming the lace in fine stitches to the material, remove the bastings and cut the material away carefully underneath, leaving about one-eighth inch margin. Turn this raw edge back so that the edge of the lace on the right side is in the edge of the fold; then overhand in small, closely taken stitches, directly over and through the insertion edge and through the material as well. In this overhanding the raw edge will be caught in and roll of itself, and when straightened out the lace will look as if it were woven into the material.

If this is well done the material will hold beautifully.

$5 Apiece for Bright Sayings

The Tribune will pay $5 for every childish saying printed. The story told must never have been printed in any magazine or paper. It is not possible to acknowledge or return unavailable contributions. Write on one side of the paper. Address bright sayings to Aunty Bee, The Tribune.

I bought a large smoked ham and have cooked it in many ways. I was slicing some and Billy, aged 4, was watching me and he said, "Gee, mom, you sure got a lot of wear out of that ham." L. J. D.

My husband is a policeman and today while on his beat he came upon a little boy sobbing as if his heart would break.

"Lost your way, sonny?"

"N-n-no, but I-I've found a street I don't know." J. C. F.

Sherwin had been to school—kindergarten—for the third morning and for the third time was told to lay his head on the table and rest.

Each time he looked up at the teacher in amazement and finally said, "Why, I don't come here to sleep. I come to learn to read and write." MRS. H. S.

Automobiles.

By Eleanor Jewett.

Automobiles are like cats, for they
Have eyes that can see in the dark;
They're pretty deceiving, too, for they shrink
To a kitten's eyes when they park.

You know, those teeniest, tiny lights—
But then when the engines hum
Their eyes blaze out and they rumble and roar,
That's horns, and there they come.

Charge down the street like tigers fierce
And it's time for people to jump,
For a very bad thing on a slippery night
Is to stand where a car might bump.

O, I'd like to go hunting automobiles
In alley and street and park!
I'd make a lasso of the stop-and-go signs
And capture them in the dark.

Prepare them NOW for vigorous hair at THIRTY

REMEMBER the old adage about "an ounce of prevention," and teach your boy or girl proper care of the hair, NOW. The easiest way to care for a child's hair properly, is with Danderine. Put a little on the brush each time the hair is arranged. Then as you draw it through the strands, it supplies the natural oils removed from hair and scalp by washing with soap and water.

"Train" a child's hair with Danderine. See how this keeps it orderly, lustrous, clean. The natural curl is accentuated. Waves "set" with it, last longer; look more natural. And Danderine isn't sticky or oily; doesn't show.

When the use of Danderine becomes a daily habit in your home, longer, thicker, more abundant hair is sure to follow—for every member.

Danderine helps stop falling hair; dissolves every particle of dandruff crust; keeps the hair and scalp clean and healthy; changes dull, brittle, lifeless hair into hair that is sparkling, vigorous, easy to manage. Five million bottles used a year proves Danderine's effectiveness.

Clue: This picture represents one of the Want Ad classifications in today's Want Ad section. Decide which classification you think the artist had in mind and then run through the ads under that heading in the Want Ad section to find Wanda's first hidden Want Ad. The first hidden Want Ad will tell you where to look for the next one, and so on. Read the simple directions and start now!

What Want Ad Classification Does This Picture Represent?

CAN you follow a trail? Do you like games and puzzles that make you use your wits? Here's the game you've been waiting for! Here's a golden chance to beat Sherlock Holmes at his own game! Want-Ad Wanda challenges you to follow her through the Want Ad columns of today's Tribune. If you haven't played the game before, get in on the fun today! And if you played it last Sunday, be on your guard today! Watch out for entirely different kinds of clues and hints today.

Just Follow These Simple Directions

In today's Want Ad columns of the Tribune there has been inserted a number of mysterious Want Ads. These Want Ads look exactly like regular Want Ads except, of course, the wording is different. All together there are between 10 and 15 hidden want Ads. You are invited to hunt for these hidden Want Ads and try for the $100.00 in cash prizes which the Tribune will pay.

The game starts with the picture on this page. This picture represents one of the main classifications of Tribune Want Ads. Decide which classification you think the artist had in mind and then turn to that classification in today's Want Ad section. Look through the Want Ads under that heading until you find Wanda's first hidden Want Ad. You can't possibly miss it.

All Clues Are in Sequence

After you have found this first hidden Want Ad, read it over carefully. EACH HIDDEN WANT AD GIVES A HINT OR CLUE TO THE HIDING PLACE OF THE NEXT ONE. It's just like a treasure hunt. You don't have to search through the entire Want Ad section to find all the hidden Want Ads if you keep your wits about you. The hidden Want Ads are all related in a certain definite sequence. The first one (the one which the picture helps you locate) helps you find the second one. The second one helps you find the third, and so on. Remember, there are no less than 10 hidden Want Ads and no more than 15. It's up to you to decide when you have found them all.

Awards will be made to the persons who send in the most nearly complete sets of hidden Want Ads arranged in the most nearly correct order in accordance with these rules. You may indicate what you believe to be their proper order or sequence by numbering them 1, 2, 3, 4, etc. You may clip the hidden Want Ads from the paper, using the handy blank at the right, or you may copy them down on a separate sheet. Neatness and ingenuity of presenting them will count. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be given.

This Offer Is Open to All

This offer is open to all—men and women, boys and girls—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and their families. You pay nothing. Just prove your skill.

Entries should be mailed to "HIDDEN WANT ADS 'C,'" the Chicago Tribune, Postoffice box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. All entries to today's game must be received in the office of the Tribune not later than 6:00 P. M. on Thursday, February 20, 1930.

You need not purchase the Tribune to compete. Copies of the Tribune may be examined at the Tribune office or at public libraries free of charge.

No entries will be returned. The Tribune cannot engage in correspondence on this subject. The prize winners of today's game will be announced two weeks from today.

RETRIEVED

By Edwin Dial Torgerson

The Lively Story of Young Ted Shawhan Who Was Torn Between His Affection for His Girl and His Dog.

CLEOPATRA GO BANG was a dog of sorts—several sorts. Like her distinguished Nilotic namesake she was a gay canine, yet her waggish demeanor was not unmixed with usefulness. She was quite the best bird dog in the whole general vicinity, including the city, its environs and four adjoining counties. Unlike the sweet mommer of the Caesars however, she was not to be envied in matters of form and contour. She was roly-poly, clumsy and deficient in tact.

Ted had named her Cleopatra because from an early age she had answered to the epithet of Pat. He had added Go Bang because in a dog gazette he had seen the picture of a champion pointer named Cornell Go Bang, and it seemed reasonable that Pat might be a distant cousin of the Go Bang family, whether you could prove it or not.

Cleopatra's main fault was that she followed Ted, whenever and wherever she could arrange to do so. She achieved her escape from durance by gnawing off her heavy collar in a mystifying Houdinian manner, eating half the door of her kennel, jumping from a second story window, or, if all other methods failed, by howling plaintively until the cook released her out of sheer indignation.

It wouldn't have been so embarrassing to Ted but for the fact that Sylvia Wilkes hated dogs. Ted forgave this in Sylvia because he felt women really did not know what they liked, anyway, and a man just had to take them as they came, a necessary but delightful evil.

Ted spent all the money on Sylvia that he could earn, borrow, or wheedle out of his parents—and he earned very little because he was supposed to spend most of his time outside of prep school hours studying and being tutored against a forthcoming college entrance examination. A further economic aggravation lay in the fact that Sylvia not infrequently met you at the door with her hat on, when you had a date with her; this by way of a naive natural presumption that you would take her somewhere. It was simply too old fashioned for words for a girl to stay home in the drawing room (formerly parlor) and talk to a man. Sylvia was at her best when you hired a taxicab and took her to a dance or the theater, and especially when she wore a corsage bouquet of violets and lilies of the valley.

But no matter whether Ted escorted her afoot to a picture show or splurged her to the Casino theater or Friars' ball in a saffron cab, there was almost invariably the ample specter of Cleopatra Go Bang, wagging respectfully half a block in the rear distance, refusing to be chased back, and waiting patiently afterwards for Ted to reappear so she could follow him home.

SYLVIA thought this as the tackiest thing imaginable.

"It just makes me exasperated, that's all," she told Ted. "It just looks too country for words."

"I don't know what to do with that hound," said Ted, not without a dash of defensive resentment. "No matter where I lock her up or chain her, she gets out."

"I don't like dogs, anyway. They're a nuisance, jumping on you with their dirty paws."

"Pat don't do that. She always asks permission first."

"Pity you can't train her to ask permission before she tags along everywhere you go!"

"Aw, she's not doing any harm."

Sylvia bit her lip impatiently. "Of course, if you want to choose between me and a dog——"

"Aw, Sylvia, that's not any way to talk. You know I'd cut off my right arm for you."

It was just another of many such conversations, which always wound up with Sylvia changing the subject.

"Well, hush talking about your dog and pay me some mind," she chided. "Are you going down to the lake for the Bordens' house party Saturday?"

"I don't just know." Ted just knew as well as he knew tomorrow was Wednesday that he couldn't take in the house party, but he had to cast about for a pleasant fictitious excuse.

"You could take me, you know," hinted Sylvia, none too narrowly. "I've got bids from two other boys, but I thought——"

"I'm afraid I'll have to take mother somewhere this week-end."

"O." Sylvia could say volumes with an "O," and this one bespoke several chapters.

"I don't believe you want to take me," was her bit of parting torture as he told her good night.

"Aw, don't talk that way, Sylvia. I'd do anything for you."

"Just so it wouldn't interfere with your hunting trips, and your lovely Cleopatra."

The lovely Cleopatra was at that moment balanced pleasantly on her haunches at the edge of the Wilkes' lawn. It wouldn't be long, now, before her master got through with this girl foolishness.

"I hadn't even thought of going hunting," protested Ted. "I'll talk to mother and see if I can get away."

"Make it light on yourself," bade the heartless Sylvia. "I couldn't go with you anyway. Good night!"

Was there anything more unreasonable than a woman?

Ted kicked a cubic foot of sod off the edge of the Wilkes' lawn, he was so mad, and Cleopatra retrieved it delightedly and brought it to her master, grinning in spite of her copious mouthful.

Ted was invited to Juliet Borden's house party, all right, but a week-end trip to Lake Lure meant something Ted didn't have—money. It meant a hired motor certainly, if one took a girl, for the lake resort and the Bordens' country place occupied an exclusively bit of terrain unvulgarized by the proximity of a railroad. Either one went in a motor or one didn't. George Cunningham would take Sylvia. Darn his hide. Pretty soft for some stiffs—if Ted's father only had a car like that . . .

CLEOPATRA GO BANG, lolling along beside Ted, bumped against his shin just to be neighborly.

"You awkward heifer," snorted Ted. "Don't you know my girl's gonna gimme the gate if you don't stay home when I got a date?"

"Why-hoof!" said Pat, midway between a sneeze and an apology.

"I've got to get me a job—or make papa come through with more of the green filthy," mused Ted. "What I mean to say, I got to get me a job."

Jobs were scarce, particularly the part-time kind that a young student with well defined social proclivities could fill with dignity. Five dollars a week was the reinforced concrete limit of Ted's allowance from the paternal exchequer, and when he sought next morning at breakfast to lure out an extra sawbuck—so named from the appearance of the X in all four corners—his father eyed him suspiciously.

"Ten dollars? What do you think you are—a Vanderbilt?"

"What do you want it for, Sonny?" inquired his mother.

"I was just thinking I ought to take a little trip somewhere," said Ted, in what was intended to be a convincing manner.

"Been working too hard and forced to take a rest, huh?" This with not unkindly sarcasm from Mr. Shawhan.

"Well, all the other fellows are going, and why can't I?"

"Going where?"

"Down to Lake Lure Saturday after next."

"Why Lake Lure?" asked Mrs. Shawhan.

"Juliet Borden's house party." Ted blurted out the truth.

"Ted," said Mr. Shawhan soberly, "I don't know what's given you the idea you can run around with millionaires. I can't!"

"They're not millionaires—Juliet's the only rich one."

"Well, Ernest, we can't discourage him if he wants to go with the very nicest girls," began Mrs. Shawhan.

Mr. Shawhan raised his hand in a stop-traffic gesture. "Too many young embezzlers have gone to jail because of that very thing."

"Why, Ernest!"

"I'll get me a job," vowed Ted bitterly, "delivering milk bottles in the morning."

"That wouldn't do you any harm," retorted Mr. Shawhan, "even if you delivered them at night."

"Guess you don't care how I disgrace you," replied Ted, with sulky dignity. "Mother, if anybody calls up and asks for you Saturday or Sunday, will you let Lily tell them you've gone off for the week-end?"

"Why, the idea! Why should I tell a story like that?"

"Well, just because I told somebody you might, and——"

"Your mother will do nothing of the sort," decreed Mr. Shawman.

"All right, never will help a fellow!" Ted left the table in disgust. "If I could only get a little coöperation around here!"

TED trailed want ads looking for a job. He had to have a bigger income if he proposed to maintain his social obligations. But jobs were not in the habit of dashing up with their tails wagging in this man's town. The best he could get was a very partial sinecure in the Vanity Fair department store. He could work Saturday afternoons in the shoe department and perhaps earn three dollars a week. It would help.

Ted walked around the block several times before accepting these terms. Even then he would have declined had he not wrung a concession from the head of the shoe department. It was agreed that he should work in infants' and children's, not adults', shoes.

Hence the beginning of that bright week-end glorified by Juliet Borden's house party at Lake Lure found Mr. Theodore Shawhan industriously fitting E-lasts and D-sharps on the feet of squirming and imperious infants and children. It was nerve racking work, but it gave him a certain fatigued sense of independence. At any rate, he could take Sylvia to see George Black's "Disgraces of 1927" next week.

Such themes were humming through Ted's mind as he forced a pair of undersized slippers on a little girl who kicked him impishly.

Downstairs—for the shoe department was on the third floor—a progressive commotion was under course which was yet to come to his ears. A large and portly dog, white, with tan spots and muddy feet, was racing from corsets to radios, and paused with a silly grin amid Chinese art goods as she overturned and smashed with a loud and glassy "plop" an antique porcelain vase from New Jersey.

BUT when she scented infants' and children's shoe leather, and her unerring nose pointed straight at Ted. With a glad yelp she leaped through a forest of tottering lamp stands and fetched up with her muddy paws on Ted's breast—but not until she had soiled the frock of the impish little girl and that of the little girl's mother.

"Pat!" shouted her master. "Down, you bonehead!"

Pat cowered ingratiatingly, proud of herself in spite of the rebuke. She had dug out of the cellar by dint of four hours' work.

But she witnessed a scene of shame and excoriation for her master. It seemed that all the floorwalkers in the dry goods business, abetted by a battalion of department heads and store detectives, had closed in on the luckless infants' and children's shoe entrepreneur. Ted's explanatory words were sunk in a swirl of maledictions.

"You're fired!"

"I've already quit."

"No, he's not fired. That dog broke a hundred dollar vase!"

"His father will have to pay for it."

"Either that or he works it out."

"You're nuts if you think my dad will pay for it. I'll work it out. You don't have to pinch my arm like that!"

The general manager of the store, who had arrived by this time, heard scraps of evidence in the case and persuaded the mob to disperse. Sentence would be pronounced later, he advised Ted. The first thing necessary was for Ted to remove the corpulent corpus delicti, for Pat was growling threateningly at an insolent store detective.

Ted took her home. "Some of these days, Pat," he said viciously, "you'll go too far with me!"

Pat didn't consider his tone of voice vicious at all. But she did deem it a bit unfair for Ted to secure her in her kennel with an iron collar, a chain with a heavy padlock directly under her esophagus. She lay in her kennel all the rest of that fateful Saturday, moaning, howling, baying, and whimpering by turn. Even a roast bone twice the size of her oral aperture failed to stop her sorrow.

At the Vanity Fair department store Ted learned the full pecuniary horror of Pat's behavior. It was a hundred dollar vase which Pat had overturned, but the management would allow Ted a discount and call it $89.98. The mother of the impish little girl had agreed to adjust her indemnity for soiled apparel to the mere cost of dry cleaning, perhaps ten dollars. And, in order that he might satisfy his creditors more quickly, Ted might work Saturday afternoons and evenings as well, but the only opening of this kind was in the adults' department.

When sorrows come they come not in single spies, but in battalions. Also, it never rains but it overdoes it.

Ted was so overwhelmed that he did not mention his misfortune at home. It would have been futile, from a monetary standpoint.

He did not take Sylvia to see George Black's "Disgraces of 1927." He had been seized with a sudden and obscure abdominal condition, and he bribed the cook 50 cents to tell Sylvia over the phone that it looked like it was starting out like acute appendicitis.

Ted recovered too quickly, however, to make his affliction plausible. When he asked Sylvia for a date the next week he was pained, not abdominally but in a dull cardiac way, to learn there was nothing doing. Sylvia was sorry, but all dated up—except for Saturday.

"Then gimme a date next week," urged Ted.

"Couldn't you come to see me—Saturday?"

"No. I'm sorry. I've got a—a date."

"Is your mother going off for the week-end?"—very sweetly.

"No. I've just got a—a date. When can I come, next week?"

"I know you'll think I'm just too popular for words," bubbled Sylvia. "But I haven't a thing next week, either, except Saturday."

"Gosh! Maybe you could put me down two weeks from Thursday."

"O, I can't make dates that far ahead. Come Saturday week."

"I'm afraid I'll be away on—on business."

"O, are you in business now?"

"Just a little contract—option business for dad. Call you up a little later, Sweetie."

"Yes, do," urged Sylvia, in a tone that might have meant much.

TED'S prospect was a gloomy one. No date with his girl except on Saturday—and he was sentenced to hard labor every Saturday. The end of his servitude was far in the unfeeling future.

He went hunting with Cleopatra Go Bang in order to collect his thoughts and a few birds. He invited no one to go with him, but at the little river bottom town near the ferry he encountered Mr. Will Carson, who owned several thousand acres of land, several automobiles, and several bird dogs. Mr. Carson had left his acres and his motors at home, but he had brought two of his bird dogs. He hailed Ted in friendly fashion and proposed that they join forces.

It helped Ted forget his troubles. There was one absorbing subject besides shotguns and birds that he and Mr. Carson had in common, and that was dogflesh.

Ted's dog was no howling imported champion for looks, but when it came to the serious business of bird hunting Pat acknowledged no peer. She was a good bird dog because Ted had "raised her from a pup," and the most impressionable period of her youth had been devoted to intensive field training. She was not graceful, but she was thorough. She was not impatient or theatrical, like Mr. Carson's thoroughbreds, but she weaved across a field methodically, and when she pointed then was something worth pointing at. When she flushed a covey she did not press on nervously in search of other game in big numbers. She hunted out the scattered birds one by one, and Ted bagged them all.

But Mr. Carson's dogs, with all the advantages of a college education—they went off to training school regularly and were prize winners of many field trials—were not above flushing rabbits. They were full of false alarms. They posed statuesquely as though they were pointing for a portrait by Landseer. They were beautiful to look upon, but they did not get results as Pat did.

It was dusk before Mr. Carson and Ted parted ways, Ted with his bulging bag and the elder huntsman with half as much to show.

"Ted," said Mr. Carson, "I've enjoyed being with you. Don't want to sell your dog, do you?"

"Don't want to sell my right eye, either," answered Ted.

"Give you fifty dollars." Mr. Carson's eyes twinkled.

"Nuh-uh."

"Well, she may be worth a shade more. How about seventy-five?"

CLEOPATRA GO BANG was licking Ted's hand trustingly. The taste of oil and gunpowder was sweeter than milk and honey.

"Mr. Carson," protested Ted, "if you was to ask me to sell you my clothes and walk home in a barrel, that would be different."

"A hundred dollars, and I won't even look at her mouth." Mr. Carson had quit smiling and had his hand in his pocket.

"I need money mighty bad, Mr. Carson, but I'd sooner sell you my dad and throw in the shotgun. Much obliged for liking Pat so much."

If the afterglow of sunset across the river had been a little brighter Mr. Carson might have noticed a certain fluid highlight in Ted's eyes. He shook the boy's hand warmly.

"If you ever do want to sell her, Ted, call me up."

It was balm of a sort to have people respect his dog. Ted wanted to brag about it, and the first person he wanted to tell of Pat's distinction was his girl. But Sylvia wouldn't give him a date, and Ted wouldn't tell her over the phone. She made the same offer of Saturday.

"How about a date Wednesday night?"

"Sorry, but I've got one, Ted."

"Can't you break it?"

"You wouldn't want me to break one with you, would you?"

"Don't seem like you'll ever have a chance; won't give me one."

"Well, what was it you were going to tell me?"

"Wouldn't be right to tell it over the phone" Ted evaded. "It's about a—a lady."

"Well, I think it's perfectly horrid of you not to tell me," pouted Sylvia. "If you really wanted to, you could break that date you have Saturday, and come to see me then."

"Some day, Sylvia," said Ted ruefully, "you'll understand. But I can't explain now. For the last time, can I have a date Wednesday?"

"Call me up later," compromised Sylvia. "I don't know whether Geo—this boy—would like for me to break that date with him. I suppose he's particular, like that girl you're going to see Saturday."

"It's not a girl," remonstrated Ted. "No, I suppose it's either your mother or father or the cook."

"I quit," said Ted. "No use arguing with a woman."

"Don't you dare call me a 'woman.' You're perfectly insulting."

"I didn't mean it that way," pleaded Ted, but she hung up.

It was not an encouraging prelude to what happened Saturday.

Sylvia Wilkes, whose father was not town's reigning heiress in the intimate and convivial rôle of co-shopper.

Juliet, it came to pass, admired certain footwear in window No. 3 of the Vanity Fair store, and it was to Ted's department that she led Sylvia, as unerringly, or, in fact, a little more unerringly, than Cleopatra Go Bang had found the same commercial nook some days earlier.

Ted was applying the foot meter to a corpulent lady with an asthmatic wheeze and pince nez spectacles when he beheld the newcomers. He rose blushingly, and, seeing they had not as yet noticed him, made a dashing attack on the shoe shelves farthest removed. He climbed a ladder and rummaged feverishly among old gentlemen's vici kids and house slippers, while his indignant customer fumed at the delay.

ILLUSTRATIONS BY GARRETT PRICE.

"No, he's not fired. That dog broke a hundred dollar vase."

Cleopatra.

Sylvia and Juliet could find no one to wait on them at once. And, in casting her eyes idly around, Sylvia perceived the elevated figure of her Sir Launcelot, perched on the questing ladder.

Surprise, shock, shame, indignation, smote her in series.

"Let's go, Juliet," she proposed quickly. "It looks like we can't get waited on."

"I'm having too good a time," demurred Juliet. "I just love looking at people, don't you?"

"I certainly do," lied Sylvia.

And then a disengaged clerk approached them. Sylvia applied lightning rumination. There was no escape; she would not make the best of the situation, but the worst. Ted Shawhan should pay for this.

"Thank you," said Sylvia sweetly, "but I want that gentleman to wait on me"—indicating Ted—"he always waits on me."

JULIET BORDEN recognized him then, and hailed Ted with a squeal.

"Come down off that limb, Big Boy; here's company!" Juliet had a way of being slangy in the most tragic of circumstances.

The heiress to the Borden bolt millions had so much money that she didn't care whether you drove a milk wagon or cleaned the streets—as long as she liked you. But Sylvia Wilkes was through. Juliet might laugh it off, but Sylvia knew it would be "all over town."

So she punished Ted by making him fit shoe after shoe on her when she didn't want any, and treating him like any menial; while Juliet took the first pair of pumps she tried on.

Juliet sought to chat with him gaily and naturally, but Ted was too abashed to find the right answer in the right place. The replying bits of repartee occurred to him just one jump too late, and fell as duds. His confusion was appalling.

Sylvia mercilessly demanded more and more shoes, until the field of battle was strewn with them. Under other circumstances it would have been a delight to clothe her beautifully modeled foot, but today Ted couldn't tell a foot from a hand.

At last the ordeal was over. Ted was conscious of the department manager scowling at him fiercely as the girls departed. Other customers were fretting to be waited on while he reported a vast accumulation of footwear. He was mixed up and flustered all the rest of the day.

Idiotic to feel that way about it, he argued with himself as he went home. He was doing it every bit for Sylvia anyway. Or was he? There was that miserable vase standing over him like a slave driver. Sylvia gave him a date for Wednesday night. She did not greet him with a mocking tone when he telephoned. He wished she had. Instead she gave an impression of icy politeness.

HE was prepared for the worst Wednesday night, and he got it.

"Either you'll give up that shoe job or you'll give me up!" That was the sum total of Sylvia's ultimatum, delivered with variations.

"But suppose I've got to keep the job?" protested Ted. "Suppose I've got to have the money?"

"If you think more of money than you do of me," flared Sylvia, "just make it light on yourself."

It was an unhappy date—one of the few he had ever had at home with Sylvia—followed by much sleeplessness when Ted went home.

He sat on the back steps in the starlight, with Cleopatra Go Bang's sleek head on his knee. Pat pricked up her ears at a slight rustle in the next door neighbor's yard, as though to remind Ted there were other more important things in the world than the things that worried him.

"A hundred dollars," sighed Ted. "Pat, it's you or Sylvia."

Pat nestled heavily against her master's shins.

"We'd never go hunting any more." He scratched her head pensively. "Do you s'pose Mr. Carson would lend you to me sometimes?"

Pat indicated it was bound to be all right if it was his idea. Ted dragged his feet mournfully to bed. But the vision of a hundred separate dollars danced before his eyes and would not let him sleep. It would buy him out of slavery. He could give up the job—and keep Sylvia.

He changed his mind twice before breakfast and once afterward. But presently he nerved himself for the awful step, and went to the telephone. Mr. Carson was in.

"You bet—the offer still stands," boomed Mr. Carson. "I'll be driving over your way this afternoon, and I'll pick her up."

Ted did not go to classes that morning. He spent the day at home and he felt he was attending the wake of Cleopatra Go Bang. He ate no lunch, as Mrs. Shawhan was afraid he had been working too hard.

"Mother," said Ted suddenly, "I'm selling Pat."

"You're what!"

"Selling Pat—to Mr. Will Carson for a hundred dollars."

"A hundred dollars—the very idea. The dog didn't cost you a penny—you picked her up when she was a puppy. What on earth!"

"If she had a pedigree she'd be worth a thousand, Mother."

"But what on earth are you going to do with all that money?"

Ted told her. He had never meant to, but it all rushed out.

"It's a shame," said Mrs. Shawhan, "but you're doing right. You're finding a good home for Pat anyway, aren't you?"

Ted said nothing. He couldn't have spoken without a break in his voice. And a fellow didn't show his emotions if he had—insides.

MR. CARSON came an hour sooner than Ted had expected him.

Putting the hundred dollars in his pocket was the easiest part of the ordeal for Ted. The hardest part was getting Pat into the seat of Mr. Carson's roadster. Ted had to do that by guile and trickery. He got in the car himself, with Pat's leash, whereupon Pat trustingly leaped up beside him and was securely anchored. Not until Ted had got out and Mr. Carson had started the motor did Cleopatra Go Bang scent deception. She looked hurt. Her anguished baying dwindled to a mournful distant yelp as Mr. Carson's car disappeared down the street.

The trade was complete. Ted fingered the money in his pocket and walked slowly around the back yard, pausing at Pat's vacant kennel. He felt like Benedict Arnold. A half gnawed bone lay beside the pan of water. A cat would get it now—that was the way with everything in life.

Ted went to the Vanity Fair department store and paid off his reckoning. He hoped they would enjoy their blood money, but he didn't say so. He paid it stonily, like a big business man going into bankruptcy.

Then he went home and called up Sylvia and asked her for a date. To make doubly sure that he would get it, he invited her to go with him to see Geo Fliegfield's "Whimsies of 1927," an extraordinary show at $4.40. But first he told her he had sold Pat and given up his job—for her.

"That's romantic, isn't it?" giggled Sylvia. As though it amounted to less than buying a stick of gum or throwing away a cigaret.

Ted was disappointed. He would have said she was heartless had he not been less loyal to her. But she accepted his invitation to go to the show quite without reservation, and he ordered orchids and valley lilies.

Similarly went the remainder of the funds left over from the selling price of Cleopatra Go Bang. Ted was broke again. His job was gone, his dog was gone. And Sylvia?

Sylvia was being rushed off her feet by George Cunningham, whose father had more money than a clock has wheels. George's father's Kidlik Eight transported her about now. She probably wouldn't have ridden in a taxicab even if Ted had had a chance to invite her.

He did manage to see her at the train when she went off for a week's visit. He did manage to whisper into her ear, "Don't forget you promised to write me, Sylvia." But that was all the privacy he could command, there was such a horde of others who had come to see her off. (Ted's carnations were quite invisible under George Cunningham's roses.) And George rode with her to the next town, sending his father's chauffeur on with the car to drive him back. Who could stand that kind of competition?

EVERY night for seven nights Ted wrote a burning letter to Sylvia. Every night for the second week he wrote an indignant letter, because there had not come a line of answer from her. And the third week he wrote begging letters. What had he done? Whatever it was, wouldn't she forgive him and let bygones be bygones, like they used to be?

No word from Sylvia. Out of sight, out of mind, that was it.

Ted looked for another job, but he couldn't find one. It didn't matter. He would have gone hunting, but there wasn't any Pat. He wondered what he missed the most, Sylvia or Pat? Probably Pat, because Pat hadn't thrown him down. He had done Pat a dirty trick—and for what?

Ted couldn't sleep at night, and looked pale and ringy eyed when he came down to breakfast in the morning. His mother said he needed a change, and his father said he needed a job.

He asked Juliet Borden for a date and got it, he reflected in bitter comparison, much more easily than he had ever got one with Sylvia. They went to a picture show, and Juliet insisted on riding a street car—ostensibly because she was "tired" of motors, but really because Ted didn't have a car. She was that sort of girl.

Juliet was understandingly kind, but Ted fancied her attitude was one of too much sympathy toward a chump who had been "kicked." He didn't like sympathy. It hurt. He wondered if, Juliet had heard from Sylvia, but he was too proud to ask.

At length there came a skimpy message from Sylvia, written on a scented correspondence card. Ted's hand trembled when he opened the envelope, and he saw red—infra-red, if that's any redder—when he perused the contents.

The BACKSTAGE MYSTERY

by OCTAVUS ROY COHEN

The Story in Brief:

TERRY MOONEY, young reporter, "makes the front page" of the Evening Record with the story that Wylie Thornton, matinée idol, is to leave the local stock company and to take a train that night for New York and a Broadway engagement. Terry is engaged to Anice Garet, ingénue of the company. Unknown to the adoring public, Thornton is a drunkard and a wastrel. In one of his most recent escapades, when disgracefully intoxicated, he has knocked down John Norris, real estate operator, on being ordered from the Norris home. He has, however, superficial attractions which have dazzled Doris Manning, an amateur member of the stock company, who is the daughter of Maj. Manning, influential banker. He has persuaded Doris to elope with him, promising to marry her after divorcing his wife. Mrs. Thornton threatens to kill him to prevent the elopement. Norris and Maj. Manning go to the theater separately, the former to exact an apology, the latter with the hope of frightening Thornton off. Visiting the actor's dressing room with her fiancé, Carey Weldon, Doris finds Thornton shot to death and her father standing by. Manning enlists the aid of Jim Hanvey, detective. Chief Marty Gallagher is in charge of the investigation. The Record assigns Ken Johnston and Terry Mooney to cover the case.

INSTALLMENT VI.

Two Stories.

JIM HANVEY joined Gallagher in the corridor. The inspector was flanked by Max Ross and Ken Johnston, two of the reporters, when Terry Mooney joined the group. Gallagher spoke briefly.

"Mrs. Thornton is in one of those dressing rooms yonder Jim. She's all shot by this thing."

"She has every right to be."

"Yeh." Gallagher frowned slightly. "Of course, she hasn't quieted down enough yet for me to get anything out of her, Jim, but there's a good deal I don't like."

"What, for instance?"

"Well, she says that her husband never gave her any money this evening."

"Hmm. If we believe that, then it's a cinch that Thornton was robbed."

"Sure. And the chances are that the man who robbed him also slugged him. And the man who slugged him was probably the bird who killed him."

"Do you think Maj. Manning could have done that?"

"Could—yes. But not likely. I didn't like the way the major kept trying to throw suspicion on John Norris."

"Shuh! Marty, he might have just been telling the truth like he said he was—and that never sounds very good. About this Norris chap: what sort of a bird is he?"

"Rich as hell and a human icicle."

"Big?"

"As a shrimp. He couldn't leave a bruise on a soubret, if that's what you're thinking of. No, sir; there's somebody else mixed up in this; somebody we haven't put our finger on yet—and maybe never will." Gallagher turned to Terry Mooney. "Say, you—Johnston tells me that you're a playwright or something. Is that so?"

Mooney flushed. "I think Ken was kidding you. He knows I'm trying to learn to write plays, but I'm not a playwright at all. Yet."

"If you write plays, I guess you're a playwright. But that ain't the important point. He says that you're engaged to that little blonde cutie who brought Mrs. Thornton down from the hotel. Is that so—or are you just trying to be?"

"Well, it's sort of so. Of course, I'm not in a financial position to get married yet, and——"

"That's fine, too. You hang around the theater a good bit, don't you?"

"Yes. I'm trying to study stage technique from behind the scenes."

"Great. Wish you luck. The important point is: Were you backstage here earlier this evening?"

"Yes. I came to see Miss Garet——"

"That's his sweetie," interrupted Johnston.

GALLAGHER grinned good naturedly.

"I hope you saw her."

"But I didn't. She hadn't come yet."

"Too bad. Too bad." Marty Gallagher was quite amused. Then he grew serious. "What I want to know is this—and Ken tells me you're the gimmick who can give me the dope: When you was here to see Miss Garet, did you notice anything unusual going on?"

"No, sir."

"Did you see Pete McIntosh?"

"No, sir."

"Hmm." Gallagher did some deep thinking. "What sort of a bird is he?"

"Pete's a fine fellow. He's been awfully helpful to me, and——"

"Sure; I know all that. But what I want to know is this: Has he got a temper."

"I can't say."

"What do you think?"

"Well, I've seen him pretty mad, if that's what you mean."

"It is. Did he like Wylie Thornton?"

"I don't think so. In fact, I know he didn't. But then nobody in the company or crew liked Mr. Thornton."

"O, Lord. The more I question, the worse the thing gets." He turned to Hanvey. "I'm going to take you in to talk with Mary Thornton. I want you to handle her—you do it a heap easier than me, and she's pretty much all gone to pieces. But there's one thing I wish you had seen. When she first came into the room she was grieved enough all right, but there was something queer about the way she acted."

"What do you mean, queer?"

"I can't describe it. Not to save my life I can't. It ain't that she wasn't sorry enough, but it was sort of like she was acting, too. Then I tried to question her and she froze up—you know, like a witness will do some time when they see a lawyer getting at something they don't want to tell. That's why I thought you might have more luck with her than I did."

Jim shook his head slowly. "It ain't a job I like, Marty, but I'll try it."

"And us?" questioned Johnston on behalf of the reporters.

"You'll have to stay out," answered Jim. "We'll give you all the dope that's fit to print when it's over."

He followed Marty Gallagher into the little dressing room. Elinor Marshal, the second woman, rose as they entered and left the room without a word. Marty awkwardly introduced Hanvey and the stricken widow lifted haggard eyes to the face of the fat detective.

He was shocked by her appearance. The face was pinched and drawn; the big, black eyes blazed with an almost insane light. Her hair was disheveled, her clothes had not been properly adjusted—yet through it all there showed unmistakable signs of the exotic beauty which had once been hers.

She glared at Jim Hanvey like a cornered animal.

MARTY GALLAGHER withdrew into a corner and watched.

A soft, gentle, friendly smile appeared on the thick lips of Jim Hanvey. His voice was unbelievably sympathetic.

"Believe me, Mrs. Thornton, I am sorry; more sorry than I can say."

She stared at him, softened in spite of herself.

"I didn't want to speak with you, but it is necessary. I want you to promise me that you will not let me hurt you; that you will only talk to me so long as you regard me as your friend." The smile he gave her was wistful and sympathetic, and the lonely heart of the woman went out to him. His ungainly size, his uncouth appearance—both were forgotten. "I am only trying to help you, Mrs. Thornton—to help you find whoever is responsible for this terrible tragedy."

Her eyes filled with quick, hot tears.

"I am all unstrung——"

"Surely you are. Sit down, please."

She seated herself in the chair which he held for her, and Marty noticed that Jim had so placed it that the woman would not be disturbed by seeing him. He smiled at that, even while he marveled at the wonders which Hanvey already had worked.

"Remember that I am your friend, Mrs. Thornton. Remember, too, that I wouldn't hurt you for worlds. But if you wish to be of the greatest help to us, you'll make a real effort tonight. You see, every minute that passes helps whoever did this thing and makes our task just that much harder. Will you try, Mrs. Thornton, for your husband's sake?"

She nodded slowly, as though in physical pain.

"Yes, I will try."

Hanvey hesitated for a moment, framing his first question with scrupulous care.

"When was the first you knew of this—this tragedy, Mrs. Thornton?"

"I learned of it from Anice Garet. She came to the hotel to tell me. She was very kind."

"Surely she was. And she told you what had happened? She was the first one?"

"Yes."

"Of course it came as a great surprise?"

She raised her large eyes to Hanvey's kindly face.

"I was shocked," she answered.

"But not surprised? Is that it, Mrs. Thornton?"

"I was not surprised," she admitted.

"Why not?"

"Because I had telephoned to the home of Major Manning earlier in the evening to tell him that my husband was eloping tonight with his daughter."

"Dd you speak with him personally?"

"No. I spoke to Mrs. Ellis, or some name like that. She said she was the major's housekeeper."

"I see. Did you give the message to her?"

"Yes. I told her to tell the major."

"Why did you do that, Mrs. Thornton?"

"Because I thought the major would prevent the elopement."

"How?"

"I don't know. O, good God! Mr. Hanvey, can't you see that I didn't care how he stopped it? I had just quarreled bitterly with my husband. We quarreled a good deal, but this had been different. I have stood a great deal from him for a great many years, but tonight, when I learned that he was going to throw me over for an addle pated flapper who had fallen for his wavy hair and big voice . . . well, it seemed as though anything would be better than to have him go with her."

"YOU thought, then, that the major might even have to resort to—to that?" He nodded in the direction of the dressing room where Thornton's body lay.

"Yes, I thought even that."

"You say," he pursued quietly, "that you and your husband quarreled this evening?"

"Yes. My last words to him were—were——" she hesitated.

"Were what?"

"A threat."

"What sort of a threat?"

"I—I told him that if he tried to go through with this thing I would kill him."

"And what happened after he left the hotel?"

"I telephoned Major Manning's home."

"And after that?"

"I lay on the bed—thinking."

"You didn't go out?"

"Not right away."

"You did later?"

"Yes."

"Where did you go?"

"To the theater!"

Hanvey heard a gasp from Marty Gallagher. He himself was impressed, but he retained his casual manner.

"About what time was that?"

"I don't remember exactly. But it was only a few minutes after seven o'clock."

"Was he at the theater when you arrived?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"In his dressing room."

"Did you see anybody else while you were there?"

"No. It was quite early. I don't think anybody had come in then."

"What happened while you were in your husband's dressing room?"

"I tried to be calm. I begged him not to run away with Doris Manning. He was in a very bad temper, and we started our quarrel all over again."

"Do you remember anything that was said?"

"No, not exactly."

"Did he give you any money?"

"No."

"Was anything said about money by either of you?"

"Not a word."

"Did he agree not to elope with this girl?"

"No. He said he was going with her."

"And what did you do after he said that?"

"I told him that I would stop him."

"Did you say how?"

"Yes. For the second time this evening I threatened to kill him."

"But you didn't, did you?"

"Good God! No!"

"What did you do after this second threat?"

"I went back to the hotel."

"And stayed there until Miss Garet came to tell you what had happened?"

"Yes."

Hanvey rose and placed his hand gently on her shoulder.

"You have been awfully kind, Mrs. Thornton. And now, if you'll let me, I'll send you back to the hotel. And I'd advise that you take a strong anodyne and get a good night's rest."

A few minutes later Gallagher grabbed Jim Hanvey's arm. He was quivering with excitement.

"My gosh!" he enthused. "You're a marvel, Jim. Of course I'm having her room watched. But say, can't we tip the reporters off to this?"

"To what?" inquired Hanvey mildly.

"The solution," said Gallagher. "Why, man, it's as plain as the nose on your face that she killed her husband."

"Hmm," murmured Jim. "Maybe so, Marty, but on a face like mine you got to remember that a nose ain't so awful plain."

GALLAGHER'S face fell.

"Do you mean to tell me, Jim Hanvey, that she didn't kill her husband?"

"Gosh, no. I honestly don't know whether she did or not."

"I see." Marty was relieved. "I thought you meant that you were sure she didn't, and that kind of staggered me because I'm certain she did."

"What makes you think so?"

"Don't make me laugh. There's every reason in the world for thinking so. Ain't you ever heard that old saying about hell ain't got no fury like a woman whose husband is gonna elope with another frail? And didn't she threaten to kill him twice—and admit it to us? Maybe you'll ask why she told us that much, but I'm telling you what you must know—that there ain't any surer way of throwing a person off the track than by telling most of the truth. Ain't that so?"

"Yeh—I've found it that way."

"Good. Now the second time she saw her husband tonight was in the dressing room a little after seven o'clock. Pete McIntosh heard them quarreling and he went to the box-office to call Mike Marion. They started backstage and saw Mary Thornton leaving and they were glad enough to let well enough alone. You follow me?"

"Uh-huh, Marty—I sure do."

"Good. Well, Mary had just bumped her husband off with the prop gun which he had loaded with real bullets. The silencer kept it from making any noise. Later all that other mess happened, and finally when Major Manning went into that dressing room Thornton was dead—just like he says."

"I see. . . . And it was Mary Thornton who copped the four hundred berries out of his wallet?"

"Sure."

"Why?"

"One reason: maybe two. Perhaps she just naturally needed money. Or if it wasn't that, she did it so that it would look like robbery."

"Then," asked Hanvey, "why didn't she take the whole six hundred and twelve?"

"How the hell do I know? You never can tell how a woman thinks. They get funny ideas."

Jim was quietly reflective. He produced a long black cigar which he lighted and inhaled with gusto. As the fumes smote Marty Gallagher, he winced.

"She's awful small, ain't she, Marty?"

"Sure she is. But what has that got to do with it?"

"Well, I was just thinking that for such a little woman she sure packs an awful wallop.

"What you mean—wallop?"

"That bruise on Thornton's jaw."

Gallagher was disgusted. "How do you know she didn't sing him with the butt of the gun?"

"I don't. Do you think she did?"

"Sure I do."

"A blow that would leave a bruise like that would most likely knock a man down, wouldn't it, Marty?"

"I guess so."

"Then what did she do—shoot him after he fell, or wait until he got up?"

Gallagher's face was flushed. "Say, what's the big idea of quizzing me like this? Do you reckon I killed him?"

"No," grinned Hanvey, "but I sure ain't ready to believe that Mary Thornton did. There's a whole lot to this case that we haven't unearthed yet, Marty, and I've kind of got the hunch that maybe we'd better get all our dope before we reach any definite decisions or give out any announcements to the newspapers."

"O, all right!" growled Marty. "But believe me, I'm gonna see that Mrs. Mary Thornton is watched."

"That's fine. It sure can't do any harm, anyway."

"I'll say not. And now, Jim—what's your idea of the next thing to do?"

"If I tell you, you'll think I'm a sap."

"I think so, anyway, so it can't do any harm to tell me."

"Well, Marty, if you don't mind, I'd like to go up to the Raleigh hotel and talk to Mary Thornton a little more."

"What? Didn't you get everything out of her you wanted?"

"No. I missed out on purpose."

"Why?"

"Because I'd like to see their rooms. You know, just to sort of get an idea of how they're living."

Gallagher's eyes narrowed.

"And also, I reckon, to see whether she's been packing up for a getaway, huh?"

"Maybe," agreed Jim.

THEY left the theater and walked to the hotel. At Jim's suggestion, they did not telephone upstairs, but merely knocked at the door. Mary Thornton opened it herself. They could see that she had been crying and it was obvious that she had made no move to undress. Jim spoke gently as they entered.

"I just came to check up, Mrs. Thornton," he said in his friendliest manner.

She flashed him a startled glance which Gallagher did not miss.

"On what?"

"Whether you were obeying my orders about the anodyne. Can't you understand that it won't do you a bit of good to lay awake all night? Suppose you let me phone the drug store for you."

She shrugged indifferently, but as he seated himself at the telephone table she eyed him with peculiar interest. He was so little like a sleuth; so thoroughly the big, fat, friendly person that he seemed——

Hanvey surveyed the room while speaking with the drug store. He saw a sitting room and bedroom rather untidily kept, yet giving no indication of preparation for sudden flight. And then, when the anodyne had been ordered, he exacted her promise to take it.

"And there are just one or two more questions I'd like to ask you, Mrs. Thornton. Do you mind?"

"No. I feel as though I could stand anything tonight."

"Had your husband packed any of his things here at the hotel?"

"No. I imagine he was afraid I'd find out if he did. He would have gone with what he had at the theater."

"Do you think . . . and I don't want to be brutal . . . that he was in love with Miss Manning?"

"God, no!"

"Then why did he wish to elope with her?"

"Because he couldn't resist flattery for one thing; or youth, for another. But the real reason was that she is very rich and he wanted her money. He even told me——" The color drained from her cheeks and she checked herself abruptly.

"He told you what?"

AT length Mary Thornton turned. "Wylie told me that he intended to divorce me and marry Doris Manning!"

"Gee. When did he tell you that, Mrs. Thornton—here or in the dressing room?"

"In the dressing room."

"Yes."

Gallagher opened his lips, but closed them again. After all, it was increasingly obvious that Jim Hanvey knew his business. In Marty's humble opinion Jim already had extracted sufficient information from Mary Thornton to convict her twice over—and Marty couldn't see the necessity for further questioning. But evidently Jim was not satisfied.

"Mrs. Thornton," he asked, "did you have a copy of the Evening Record in your room when your husband came in from the matinée?"

"Yes."

"Did he take it with him when he left?"

"No."

"Have you that paper here?"

"I believe so." She walked into the bedroom and Jim followed her as far as the door, unmindful of Gallagher's disgusted stare.

The paper lay on the floor just as she had dropped it. She picked it up and handed it to Hanvey. He glanced at it and flung it indifferently on the lounge in the sitting room.

Then he carefully unwrapped the paper which covered the cigar box into which he had carefully put the minor effects which had been found on the body. Now Marty was really interested. Lot of fool stuff in there, but there was one thing which had caught his eye from the first, and he was delighted when Hanvey lifted this from the box.

It was the little tool leather address book, and the gargantuan detective handed it to Mrs. Thornton.

"This belonged to your husband, didn't it?"

"Yes."

"Would you mind looking over every page and telling me if there is any entry in that book which is not in your husband's handwriting?"

One by one she turned the pages of the book before returning it to Hanvey.

"Every line in there was written by Wylie," she said steadily.

"You are certain?"

"Yes. I know his handwriting."

Gallagher took the book from Hanvey's hand and opened it. It contained a few unimportant notations and a long list of addresses and telephone numbers. Most of these were in pencil and the rest were in ink.

Hanvey carefully returned everything to the cigar box and rewrapped the parcel. Then he bade Mary Thornton good-night and received another promise that she would take the anodyne which had been delivered to the room by a bellhop.

IN the street again, Gallagher turned to his enormous companion.

"Jim Hanvey," he declared "you've got me defeated."

"How so, Marty?"

"One minute I want to mount a chair and cheer to the world that you're the greatest dick that ever asked a question, and a minute later I want to yell twice as loud that you're the dumbest boso that ever spilled gravy on a vest."

"Most likely," chuckled Jim, "you'd be a heap nearer right on the second announcement. But what started all this excitement?"

"It was your damfool questions about that newspaper. I know that you found a paper in Thornton's dressing room and I know you've got it in that cigar box. But suppose he did leave his paper in the hotel room; couldn't he have bought another one on the way to the theater? And ain't it perfectly natural that he would, anyway?"

Jim turned sleepy eyes on his friend.

"Well, by golly! Marty—I never thought of that."

Gallagher looked up quickly.

"If you're trying to kid me, Jim, it's a bust. And there's one thing I will hand you—you did see the importance of that address book."

Jim nodded.

"Yeh. It does look kind of important."

"I'd like to look it over."

"You can have it, Marty. I'm through with it."

Gallagher gasped.

"But, good Lord, man, ain't you going to check over the addresses?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"I'm just lazy, I guess. It'd be an awful lot of trouble. Tell you what, Marty—you check 'em over. It'll give you plenty to do."

"I'll say it will," said Gallagher grimly. "And I'll learn something from it, too. Honest, Jim, I don't get you at all."

That puts us all even," answered Jim. "Because at times I don't even understand myself."

"And now," asked Marty, somewhat disgruntled, "what's next on the program?"

"O! I dunno. What do you say if we run out and have a talk with this Norris bird?"

"That," snapped Marty, "is the second sensible idea you've had tonight."

"Good record," grunted Jim happily, "for me."

MARTY GALLAGHER and Jim Hanvey rode into the fashionable west side of the city in a tattered taxicab. Ten o'clock and already the residential section was quiet. Stately homes were mere shadows bulks behind the line of sentinel trees; shadows jeweled with little squares of yellow light. They stopped in front of a home which was typical of the man they came to see—small, precise, and thoroughly correct. Architecturally it was perfect, yet unpretentious.

Save for a light in the living room downstairs, the house was dark. They dismissed the taxi, moved up the concrete walk, and rang the bell. They waited for a considerable time without receiving an answer.

They moved along the tile veranda and selected two comfortable chairs which sat well back in the shadows. Marty produced a pipe and Hanvey another of his atrocious stogies, and for perhaps ten minutes they devoted themselves to smoking—and thinking.

A car turned in at the driveway, paused, and a woman alighted; a woman about 30 years of age, still of excellent figure and yet giving promise of becoming full blown within the next decade. Then they heard the voice of John Norris.

"You wait on the porch, dear, while I put the car up."

The car disappeared behind the house and Mathilde Norris walked on to the veranda. Two shadows rose and Mathilde gave a startled scream.

"Mrs. Norris?" Jim Hanvey's voice was quiet and reassuring.

"Who are you?" All the terror of earlier in the evening—the fear she had been fighting during the age long two hour drive with her husband surged once again into her breast. "Who are you and what do you want?"

"We just want to talk with you a minute."

She stamped her foot. "Who are you?"

"We're from police headquarters," said Marty Gallagher, and the effect of his words was instantaneous and startling.

In the pale light which seeped on to the porch from inside they saw her face go white and one hand fly to her ample bosom. She stepped into the shadows and turned startled eyes upon them.

"What has happened?" she gasped.

HANVEY nudged Gallagher to silence and addressed Mrs. Norris in a tone indicative of surprise.

"What has happened where, ma'am?"

"I—I don't know. But there is something wrong."

"What makes you think that?"

"O, don't try to deceive me. I can tell. You—you wouldn't be here if there wasn't."

"Why, I don't know, ma'am." Jim waited for a moment and then: "You and Mr. Norris have been riding, ma'am?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"Out in the country."

"How long?"

"O, several hours. We have been to Springdale—and we can prove it."

"That's fine, ma'am. Were you up there about 7:30 or 8 o'clock?"

"Yes. That is, I think so." Suddenly she grew quieter. She stepped close to Hanvey and stared up into his eyes. "Something is wrong, isn't?"

"Yes, ma'am; I'm afraid so."

"What?"

Hanvey had been studying her and now he spoke with the deliberate intention of startling her.

"We have come out to question your husband about Wylie Thornton's murder!"

A low moan escaped her and she would have fallen had not Hanvey's arm steadied her.

"O, God," she cried. "I knew it."

"Yes, ma'am; it was pretty bad, of course——"

"But John had nothing to do with it!" she flashed. "Not a thing. I know he didn't. We just went driving——"

"But, ma'am, we didn't say your husband was mixed up in it. We just want to talk to him."

"You can't fool me. You've heard about last night——"

"Didn't he go to the theater tonight?"

"No!"

"You're sure?"

"Yes, I'm sure. We just went for a drive to Springdale. I've been with him every minute this evening."

The slim, erect figure of John Norris rounded the house and appeared on the veranda. He saw the two strangers and strode forward, his lips set in a firm, straight line and his voice frigid.

"What is this?" he asked coldly.

Mathilde swung from Hanvey and grabbed his arm.

"Don't say anything, dear. These men are from the police station and I have told them that we were not at the theater tonight, and——"

"You shouldn't have done that, Mathilde," he said quietly. He turned to the two visitors. "I visited the Edwin Booth theater tonight at about 8 o'clock," he announced.

"John!" She tried to put her fingers across his lips, but he shook them off.

"Let me handle this, Mathilde." Then, to Hanvey: "You are police men?"

"Well, yes. Sort of."

"And you have come to ask me about the death of Wylie Thornton?"

...ia was having a grand time, and—
...by the way, where is George Cun-
...ingham? Would you mind finding
...ut for me where he has gone and
...iving me his address?"

It didn't the way she took him for
...ant thing, hey? Her rich lover had
...ven her the air, and she wanted him
...o help her get him back.

Ted strode angrily toward the Ar-
...ade Stationery shop, where he remem-
...ered having seen something in the ...indow once. It was still there, a
...omantic postcard with a picture of a
...ountry cur. And under the picture
...Napoleon's immortal words:

"The more I see of some people, the better I like my dog."

He sent it to Sylvia, with the feel-
...g of having used kerosene and a
...atch on a once very lovely bridge.

It struck him as particularly bitter
...hat he didn't have a dog any more.
...e would miss that; it would be
...ke his head.

Jealous eyed anguish kept watch
...roughout the night in Ted's bed-
...om. He was sure he was perishing
...f fever, or dying of chills, or both.
...e threw off the feeling because
...e wasn't any point in getting sick
...ny way when Sylvia wouldn't be in
...wn for the funeral.

Nobody much would care. Pat was
...e only one that might; and Pat was
...any miles away now, belonged to an-
...her master.

He wondered if Pat still thought
...bout him. If only she were in her
...ard, down in the backyard, now, he
...ould go down and sit in the shadows
...nd talk to her. Pat would under-
...and.

Suddenly Ted's back and neck mus-
...les jerked him to an upright position
...n bed. Maybe he had dreamed it,
...ut there seemed to come to his ears
...he distant sound of a familiar yelp.
...After a few seconds another.

Ted dived into his bathrobe. By the ...me he reached the front steps there
...was a veritable chorus of yelps. Ted
...ubbed his smarting eyes. For bound-
...ing the walk there came the joyful
...rio of Cleopatra Go Bang, and
...ang out at intervals after her three
...ild figurettes.

...was the bird dog Pat and three
...w puppies!

"Can you beat that!" chuckled Mr.
...rson when Ted telephoned him
...r breakfast. "She carried her
...hole family forty miles to get back
...re. It's the third time she's tried
...t. We caught her twice before."

"Do you want me to bring her—
...ll her back to you?" faltered Ted.
...Will it be convenient for you to
...ome by and get her?"

Mr. Carson laughed again. "Ted,
...on't worry to talk about her, but that
...pup isn't worth twenty cents to me.
...She won't do anything but mope as
...ong as she's away from you. She's a
...ne dog, and you're the man."

"But I can't exactly—afford to buy
...er back."

"I didn't mean that. Tell you what
...o do, Ted. You keep the dog and
...aise the puppies—if you'll train
...em. Is that fair?"

"Fair! It's the decentest thing I
...ever heard of, Mr. Carson, and I sure
...thank you."

SYLVIA came back, and so did
...George Cunningham. But for
...some inexplicable reason Sylvia
...was not to be observed thereafter
...riding with George the occupancy of
...Pop's father's luxurious motor.
...There must have been a serious dis-
...agreement somewhere.

...Be for some reason equally un-
...thinkable, did Sylvia attend the ...party which Juliet Borden gave in ...honor of the "college set," those who ...were going off to school. "Every...body who was anybody," including
...Cindy Mr. Theodore Shawhan, was
...there. The whispered report gained
...currency that Sylvia had received a bid to Juliet's dance, but it had just happened, as things will, in the complicated business of society, that no particular boy friend of Sylvia's had offered to be her escort. And Sylvia, of course, could not go alone.

But Ted could, and did. He stagged it, and had an awfully good time—no specific girl to look after and get worried about and get "stuck" with because others didn't dance with her. And he had more time, too, to be attentive to his hostess—not that Juliet was suffering for lack of cavaliers, but she just seemed to enjoy sitting out dances with him, and that didn't distress Ted at all. In fact, he felt justified in regarding Juliet as a "buddy" he had never quite appreciated before.

They walked out one of the dances, instead of sitting. They strolled about the grounds of the Borden place, along the landscaped paths that led through the Japanese shrubbery, and he held her slim hand—so that she wouldn't stumble. The talk swung around to birds.

"O, father's going hunting with Mr. Will Carson as soon as the bird season opens," said Juliet, "and—that reminds me. Father wants to borrow your dog. Mr. Carson says he's the best bird dog in the state."

"He's not a—I mean he's a girl dog," floundered Ted. "Pat's a good hound, all right. She used to follow me everywhere I went, and I had an awful time with her, but now she's getting sense, she stays home."

They emerged upon the driveway at the entrance to the Borden place, and suddenly Ted became conscious of a joyful pianissimo whimper. For there in the moonlight sat a dusky statuesque figure and three little statuettes—Cleopatra Go Bang and Family: Waiting.

"Pat!" cried Ted, in anger and embarrassment, and all four sprang scampering into action. They swarmed upon their master, with glad yelps of greeting.

"O, how cute, how adorable!" squealed Juliet Borden.

"Down, Pat, you bonehead!" yelled Ted. Look out, Juliet; they'll ruin your dress." And to himself he groaned, "In Dutch again!"

But Juliet didn't care. She knelt and hugged two puppies close to her, and Pat, appreciative as always, licked her on the cheek.

"O, I just think they're the dearest things on earth," thrilled Juliet.

Ted knelt, too, and stroked four silken ears in a sort of vicarious caress.

"Do you really like—love—my dogs?" he asked incredulously.

"Well, Ted," said Juliet, with mock gravity, as her soft hand passed over his, "I think I could learn to. Don't you?"

A man's home is his castle. But Merrick Ponsonby's castle could scarcely be called his home. He left it, disappeared, and when he came back he no longer was one of those doormat souls on whom every one treads. . . A short story that's different. Lionel Brown wrote it, and it will appear

A Dollar for Your Dreams

Have you ever had a dream which later came true? If you'll send it on account of your prophetic dream we'll pay you $1 for every dream published. Address "Dreams," Chicago Tribune.

Revealed Accident.

Recently I broke the left lens of an expensive pair of glasses. The night before I had the lens replaced I dreamed that I accidentally bumped my glasses and again broke the left lens. In the morning I was quite relieved to find that it was only a dream. Later in the day I was fixing one of the children's Christmas toys and accidentally cut my finger. I jerked my hand back and hit my glasses. They fell to the floor in two pieces, broken exactly as they were in my dream.

Fire at School.

When I was a girl I dreamed of a fire at school. I sat in a room on the first floor next to a ventilator that ran to the roof, with iron gratings at top and bottom on each floor. The dream was so vivid I related it the next morning to the teacher.

About 9 o'clock I heard a noise in the hall, looked around, and saw my room materializing. I quietly told the teacher. Bidding me say nothing, I called for the fire drill. Every one got safely except two rooms of kindergartners, who became panic stricken and in their stampede two were killed.

The building was practically demolished, the fire having originated in the room from a defective flue. In every detail, even to time, the events closely followed my dream as related to my teacher.

Rabbit Hunting.

One of the most peculiar dreams I have had occurred about a year ago. The rabbit hunting season had just begun and I decided to spend a few days hunting at my uncle's in the country.

The first day of hunting I found rabbits very scarce. That night I had a dream in which something seemed to tell me to go to a certain field, where I would find all the rabbits I wanted. I told my dream at the breakfast table. My uncle laughed and said that he had hunted his farm for 30 years and never shot but four rabbits in that field during that time. However, I decided to go through this field and took my dog along to help. No sooner had we gotten into the field than we routed out the first rabbit. Within a half hour I had bagged all the rabbits one was allowed to kill in one day and could have gotten three times as many. Maybe I didn't have the laugh on my uncle when I got back to the house.

Prize Winner

"William suffered from constipation," says Mrs. W. I. McClure, 7732 Cregier Ave., Chicago. "He was sallow and bilious; didn't have any appetite; couldn't digest his food.

"California Fig Syrup has changed all that. It regulated his bowels quickly; improved his appetite and digestion. He has improved right along until friends say he's a regular prize-winner for health."

Mothers by thousands praise California Fig Syrup. Physicians endorse it. Its rich, fruity flavor appeals to children; its pure vegetable goodness is safe for any child. The prompt relief it brings bilious, headachy, constipated children lasts; because it helps tone and strengthen bowels and stomach. Next time bad breath, coated tongue or feverishness warn of constipation, try it with your child and see how it helps!

When buying, look for the name California! That marks the genuine, famous for 50 years.

FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

I want to be the medium through which the friends in need and the friends in deed may be brought together. It may be you have some discarded article which has not outgrown its usefulness that will make some less fortunate one happy and you would gladly give it. Write to me and I shall be happy to be of service to you. Please write on one side of the paper.

When information is wanted by mail a stamped, addressed envelope should accompany the request. Please do not send replies to the Tribune, but write for the address of the applicant and send direct.

Requests for Help Are Easy to Grant and Promise the Giver Much Happiness

THERE are many, I know, who are able to help the young girl who wrote this letter:

"Dear Miss Brown: I am a girl 16 years of age and the eldest in a family of eleven. My father has been ill for a long time and we are having a difficult time getting along. I am in high school, and I wonder if any of your readers could find a job for me after school. I don't want to give up school, but I do want to help my parents. I have searched everywhere for work after school, but have not been successful.—R. M."

Isn't this a challenge to all of us—and one of the easiest chances to help that we could imagine? It is the same story that causes so much misery in the world—illness, too much expense at once, and a breakdown of courage and spirit under the burden. This case is only one of scores we have on record right now, where illness is falling with crushing force on families whose savings have been exhausted by it, misfortune, and unemployment, and whose earnings leave no margin above current living expenses. And when we think of all the clothing outgrown and discarded every day in Chicago, is there any reason why we should allow this hardship to continue bearing upon these families? There's the happiness of giving and a suggestion to you, my friends. The needs do not ask for real sacrifice. Outgrown clothing still good, but which has outlived its usefulness to you means so much and fulfills long felt wants in many cases. Ask yourself whether you can afford to miss the happiness that will come to the recipient and to you from meeting the need. If you do, I'm certain you'll be among those who help.

Magazines Offered.

"I have almost a year's collection of the 'Literary Digest,' and a number of copies of the 'Red Book' and the 'Ladies' Home Journal' which I will gladly pass on to someone interested in them. MRS. H. B."

If your favorite publication included in this group of magazines Mrs. H. offers? If so, perhaps you'd like a few of them. Write me about it; please do not telephone.

Clothing for Children.

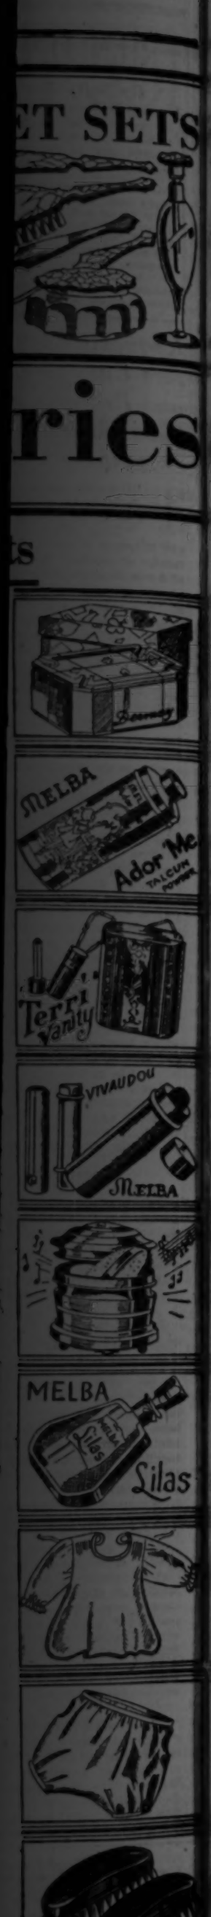
"Mr. Y is the father of 6 children, 4 girls, aged 1, 6 and 8 years, and 3 boys, aged 3, 4, and 7 years. He has been out of work most of the winter and has grown discouraged over his inability to support his family. The children lack clothing and Mrs. Y. finds it difficult to send the older ones to school neatly dressed. The household equipment is meager and she does not even have wash tubs. Anything you can do for this family will be greatly appreciated. E. R."

It is despairing for the father of a family of this size who tramps the streets day after day in a fruitless search for work to return home to an empty larder, a cold house and a hungry brood. The situation to him, of course, is hopeless but we are optimistic in the thought that kind readers will volunteer any possible help.

Pitiful Plea for Help.

"My husband has been out of work for several weeks and with 5 children to think of I am almost desperate. We owe four months' rent, our gas bill is due, and we haven't enough to eat. The children are going around in rags and I have but one housedress. Can you get us clothing? The boys are 12 and 9 years old; the girls 10, 4 and 2. I wear size 42. I shall be so grateful for any help you can give me. "MRS. J. S."

During these months of unemployment this poor mother is suffering the greatest mental and physical anguish. The poor children, too young to understand, cry for food which she cannot give them and the bitterness of winter is felt in their scant clothing. If you have many of you can supply this family with the warm underwear and other garments they need so badly.



NO GRAY HAIR

75c for YOUTH

A $4.25 Saving

Here's a remarkable way to restore your gray, streaked or faded hair to its natural, beautiful coloring . . . and save $4.25!

Instead of paying $5 or more for a fancy name on a fancy bottle, or for a trick treatment . . . you can get the finest color restorer women have ever used . . . for only 75c!

You can mix it at home. Simply boil Sage Tea and Sulphur in the proper proportions. Or better yet . . . your druggist has this successful formula prepared and ready to use. He sells it for 75c. Ask him for Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur.

Easy to use. It has never been known to stain the scalp or hair. And quickly restores the hair to its natural coloring.

Life in Old Seen by O

Britain Is Going Ahe Industrially, He Finds.

By Philip Kinsley.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIVERPOOL, England, Feb. —"The plant is there the steam has gone out said an industrial exp speaking of London.

In Liverpool, at least, one fe at England is going ahead dustrially. It is so busy a breezy and boastful that it see most American—like Seattle s Angeles.

England's own economists a publicists, in taking stock at beginning of the year, find tion in a critical condition, a ask to answer the question as whether the country has lost fo er the trade supremacy whi enjoyed for one hundred yea fore the world war. Or roic measures, it is agreed, c ing this back.

"We will muddle through," thought of the average Br er, who is pessimistic b rageous. It is the same at le he held during the war.

Music Critic Leans Tuneful Ear to Radio

Finds It Offers a Bit of Adventure.

By Edward Moore.

idly altering, so they say, the world of music and the drama. It has, among other things, caused the musicians' union to burst out in a series of paid advertisements of high blood pressure assuring the world that man made music is, will continue to be, must always be more satisfactory to the human ear and the human intelligence than music of the canned variety. In these it is not impossible to detect a desire to sell to the public some man made music and hence some jobs for the men that make it. The success of the campaign is going to depend on how well or how poorly the canned music serves as a substitute, and how the public takes to it.

At that, hunting up entertainment on the radio has a bit of adventure about it, a good deal like hunting on the field. It is a bit difficult to determine what the announcements mean, and when you have translated them you frequently find that some one has changed his mind after they have been sent out. The other day while twirling the indicator up and down with the aid of a printed announcement, I found that an announced band concert had unexpectedly converted itself into a talk on landscape gardening. Feeling that this was the wrong time of year for that sort of entertainment, I moved on, to learn that a "studio ensemble" was a jazz program of rather poor quality, and that a "musical potpourri" was more jazz, piano solo and supposedly comic songs.

Saturday Jazz Night.

Turning on the speaker at different hours produces some highly varied results. One hour produced a set of dance music that was not jazz, two that were jazz and were complicated with static besides, one of organ, one of a trio—violin, cello, and piano—and five talks, these last running the range from a talk to children to a forecast on the baseball season and an effort to make the public conscious of somebody's make of automobile. Entertainment was apportioned in about the same ratio later that day, except that this time the public was being invited to become aware of the merits of somebody's hog food, and baseball had changed to weather forecasts.

If you would have jazz, and plenty of it, tune in on Saturday nights. You will probably come to the conclusion that no music except jazz has ever been written. One hour on a recent Saturday night produced eight stations encroaching more or less on each other's wave lengths, two organs working on the same variety of melody, and one orchestra playing light music that was not jazz.

Classic Sundays.

On the other hand, Sunday afternoons and evenings would seem to be the appointed times for those who prefer their music to be different. It was just a week ago today that 1 o'clock found Roxy's orchestra playing a symphony program from New York, 2 o'clock with Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra in another from this city, 3 o'clock in the evening with the orchestra of the Chicago Civic Opera company playing an operatic program in Boston under the baton of Giorgio Polacco, at 8:15 another orchestra in New York playing under the direction of Eugene Goossens and with Nina Koshetz and George Cehanovsky acting as an admirable pair of vocal soloists.

It is possible that some one with a head for figures and predictions can make something out of radio statistics, can foresee where they are leading. That they are leading somewhere is undeniable. Radio has become far too great an item in modern life to be ignored. Studio directors, such of them as I have chanced to talk with, are proceeding on the wholly unassailable theory that the public is always right and that they are putting on the sort of programs that they believe the public wants. How they go about reaching for their conclusions is their own job. At the same time, an outsider may be permitted to offer a few suggestions.

One is that announcers—some of them, not all—take time enough off to learn the correct pronunciation of some of the names and works of standard composers at such times as a nonjazz musical program is being contemplated. Another is that some way be devised of announcing necessary advertising so that it will not be necessary to fade out music in the middle of a phrase to tell about the merits of somebody's chewing gum or somebody else's shoe polish. And if these highly desirable ends should finally be reached, it would be ever so nice if in some of the lighter programs there should be comedians who do not laugh at their own jokes.

One hears various guesses as to some of the results of it all. It is believed in several quarters that the specialized demands of radio singing and radio speech will develop a specialized race of artists who will be first class while broadcasting and possibly no good elsewhere.

An optimist writing in Top Notes hopes that it will result in the amelioration, if not elimination, of the unpleasant speaking voices that live in the throats of so many Americans. This writer cites the case of a California mother who tells her children when their voices are not "well keyed," and, as they admire both the radio and the talking movies, she gets results.

So far, however, the great effect of radio has been on listeners. I am told of a community in Missouri named Morrisville, which possesses a hall seating about 1,500. Some money was spent on it to make it adequate for radio reception, and the school children and their families roundabout were invited to come there at 2 o'clock on Sunday afternoons, and listen to Mr. Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra in their weekly broadcasts. The gazetteer credits Morrisville with a population of about 300, but the school board reports a regular capacity audience from the country about. So much is definite.

At the Metropolitan.

The modernists are going back to the ancients and the standard organizations are producing modern music. The International Society for Contemporary Music and Congress of the International Society of Musicology, such are their weighty names, plan a convention in Liege next September wherein at least half of the music will be old. One reads of ancient church music by an A Capella choir, a mass by de Monte, a motet by Orlando di Lassus, a comic opera of the eighteenth century, and so on. Not until toward the end of the sessions will they get down to Stravinsky, Prokofieff, and Honegger.

On the other hand, the Philadelphia orchestra, directed by Leopold Stokowski, will play the music of Schoenberg's "Die Glueckliche Hand" and Stravinsky's "Sacre du Printemps" in its stage performance at the Metropolitan Opera house of New York April 22. Robert Edmond Jones and Nicholas Roerich are making the designs for scenery and costumes. Leonide Massine will be in charge of the ballets, Martha Graham will be the solo dancer, Ivan Ivantsoff, baritone, will be soloist in the Schoenberg piece, and there will be three mimes and a chorus of twelve.

Music Notes.

A new soloist will appear with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He is Mischa Mischakoff, violinist, at one time and another concertmaster with several European orchestras of note, later in the same capacity with the Philadelphia orchestra, and apparently by his age and accomplishments by no means at the end of his career. He will play the Tschaikowsky concerto. He registers among those who escaped from Russia at a perilous time.

Mr. Stock announces the revival of Richard Strauss' "Symphonia Domestica." It was put on once about twenty-two years ago and never repeated. Owing to the passage of time, recollections of it are a little vague, but it is believed to be the original version of "Singing in the Bathtub." Sinding's "Rondo Infinito," a better known work, will complete the program.

It is looking a bit in advance, but Giovanni Martinelli, well known tenor, highly popular at the Metropolitan in the winter seasons and even more popular at Ravinia during the summers, is coming to Orchestra hall Monday, March 3, for what is announced as his only Chicago recital. He will appear under the auspices of the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education.

IN THE WEEK'S MUSIC

ANDRES SEGOVIA.

PERCY GRAINGER.

THE one on the right, who looks like the pictures of Franz Schubert, is a genius of the guitar, one who has taken this unobtrusive and rather difficult instrument and raised it to the top among the fine arts. He will be at the Studebaker this afternoon. Mr. Grainger is a pianist, a native of Australia and a citizen of the United States, who always has something interesting to say in both his playing and his compositions. He will give a recital at Orchestra hall tomorrow night.

row evening, is announced as the production of the Dramatic League's experiment is a momentant, but a summing up of this of Chicago's stage history is in order.

The sponsors of the league, a group of professional managers, believe that it is now lished on a permanent basis. Pe that statement is optimistic, for nency is seldom achieved in sta fairs; but at any rate, the idea good for another season at Doubtless there is in the minds league organizers a plan to s a harvest time three years when the Century of Progress make the amusement business Subscribers for the season no proaching its end totaled 8,000 next year they will try to sign 000. In general, the league's su ers have been satisfied with th vestment.

"The Matriarch," which close night, has been the weakest series of productions, at the box It will be given a chance, howe try its luck in New York. "Th In the Air," the first play on th fared well enough here but fa Manhattan. "The First Mrs. Fr the best of the group, is now a ing success on Broadway. "Th nite Shoeblack," which drew a verdict here, is thriving in delphia. Foreword to Stratford Festival Players.

...evening, is announced as the last production of the Dramatic League of Chicago this season. The end of the league's experiment is a month off, but a summing up of this chapter of Chicago's stage history is now in order.

The sponsors of the league, who are a group of professional theatrical managers, believe that it is now established on a permanent basis. Perhaps that statement is optimistic, for permanency is seldom achieved in stage affairs; but at any rate, the idea looks good for another season at least. Doubtless there is in the minds of the league organizers a plan to sow for a harvest time three years hence, when the Century of Progress should make the amusement business hum. Subscribers for the season now approaching its end totaled 8,000. For next year they will try to sign up 15,000. In general, the league's subscribers have been satisfied with their investment.

"The Matriarch," which closed last night, has been the weakest of the series of productions, at the box office. It will be given a chance, however, to try its luck in New York. "Thunder in the Air," the first play on the list, did well enough here but failed in Manhattan. "The First Mrs. Fraser," the best of the group, is now a roaring success on Broadway. "The Infinite Shoeblack," which drew a mixed verdict here, is thriving in Philadelphia. Thus it would seem that a good old slogan of the past has been turned into fact by the work of the Dramatic League—Chicago has been made a "producing center" for plays that were capable of attracting national attention.

3rd Stage Statistics.

Writing in The Quill, organ of the leading theatrical managers and advance agents, Brock Pemberton, producer of "Strictly Dishonorable," presents some interesting statistics bearing on the decline of the "road show." He says that the number of theaters available throughout the country for the use of touring companies has dwindled from 4,000 to less than 600. Stock companies have shrunk from 300 to only a few. He estimates that there are 10,000 actors out of work.

Ina O'Brien Moore and Horace Braham of "Street Scene" will add professional glamour to a bill of one-act plays to be given this afternoon by the Institute Players Guild of the South People's institute. They will appear in the cast of "The Passing of Chow Chow," a piece by Elmer Rice, author of "Street Scene." "The Monkey's Paw," by David Pinsky, and "The Valiant," by W. W. Jacobs, also on the bill.

Philip Barry's "Hotel Universe," which the Theater Guild will present, produces, is said to be revolutionary in technique. . . . David Belasco will be rewriting the play called "Blind Window," which he tried out earlier in the season. He will have it ready to test again in the spring. Jane Merrill will again have the title rôle.

GIRL-FRIEND IN "GAMBLING"

MARY PHILIPS.

New in Chicago

TWO weeks of a repertory of Shakespeare's plays, nine in number, will begin tomorrow night at the Garrick theater under the auspices of the Shakespeare Memorial theater of Stratford-on-Avon. The full company of players from the birthplace of the bard will appear with their complete equipment of scenery and costumes.

"Much Ado About Nothing," the wittiest of the comedies, will serve for Monday night's premiere. It rates as a novelty, for it is not often acted. Its last performance here was by an earlier generation of these same Stratfordians, under the leadership of Frank Benson, more than fifteen years ago. Wilfrid Walter will be the Benedict, and Fabia Drake (new this season) will be the Beatrice.

The repertory for the rest of the week is as follows:

Tuesday night, "Richard II," with George Hayes as the king and Wilfrid Walter as Bolingbroke; Wednesday matinée, "A Midsummer Night's Dream," with Roy Byford as Bottom; Wednesday night, "Romeo and Juliet," with Mr. Hayes as Romeo, Joyce Bland as Juliet, and Mr. Walter as Mercutio; Thursday night, "The Merry Wives of Windsor," with Mr. Byford as Falstaff; Friday evening, "A Midsummer Night's Dream"; Saturday matinée, "Twelfth Night," with Miss Drake as Viola and Mr. Walter as Malvolio; and Saturday night "Hamlet," with Mr. Walter in the title rôle.

"Dear Old England," a comedy by H. F. Maltby, will be staged Monday evening at the Princess theater as the fifth play in the subscription season of the Dramatic League. It comes from England, where it has a year's run at the Savoy, London, to its credit, and is new to American audiences.

Its story deals with a group of British aristocrats who have come down in the world so completely that they are compelled to live in box-cars, while newly-rich tradesmen and peasants occupy their estates. The cast includes Gladys Hanson, a well known American actress of almost stellar rank; Edward Rigby, Mary Vance, Reginald Sheffield, Reginald Carrington, Violet Besson, Kitty Bingham, Jack Soanes, and Tracy Barrows. The engagement is limited to four weeks. After the opening there will be Sunday night performances.

"Holiday," a comedy by Philip Barry, author of "Paris Bound," will be staged at the Goodman theater next Tuesday night by the repertory company. It will be kept in performance for three weeks.

This play, which will mark the Goodman's first venture with comedies of modern American manners, was staged in New York early last season under the management of Arthur Hopkins, and was a marked hit. It ran through the entire season in Manhattan, repeating the success of "Paris Bound." Its characters represent the upper Fifth avenue social group. The production at the Goodman will be made under the stage direction of Hubert Osborne, who was so successful with "The Makropoulos Secret."

Katherine Krug and Hale McKeen will play the pair of young lovers and others in the cast are Harry Mervis, Ellen Root, Neal Caldwell, Carl Kroenke, Roman Bohnen, and Bernard Ostertag.

Dean of Drama on Last Tour; Stage Profiles

WILLIAM GILLETTE, who opens his farewell engagement of three weeks in Chicago at the Erlanger theater on Monday, Feb. 24, is regarded as one of the greatest living American actors; and "Sherlock Holmes," a detective play of his own, done in collaboration with Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, is one of the most popular American plays. In his favorite play and rôle, a noted dramatist, theater manager, actor and gracious gentleman is making his final bow to the public.

In the cast with Mr. Gillette are several actors who have been with him in former productions of "Sherlock Holmes"—notably John Miltern, his favorite Moriarty, and William Postance, his stage manager, playing Sidney Prince, the cracksman. Others are Wallis Clark, Montague Shaw, Brinsley Shaw, Henry Lambert, Harry Joyner, William H. Barwald, Burford Hampden, Peg Entwistle, Roberta Beatty, Kate Byron, Dorothy Peabody Russell, and Rose Kingston.

Wilfrid Walter, a commanding figure in the Stratford-upon-Avon Festival company, is a Yorkshire man of a musical and dramatic family. He began his career as a painter, but soon turned to the stage. During the war, in which he served in the artillery and came out a captain and with a military cross, Mr. Walter organized a company of soldier actors and did a great deal in the way of camp entertainment.

Two days after being demobilized in 1919 he was engaged for small parts at the Old Vic in London, where he also designed and painted scenery. Soon he was entrusted with important rôles and, before he left the Old Vic, he had played Marc Antony, the three Falstaffs, Henry the Eighth, Jacques, and Claudius.

He then joined Basil Dean at Drury Lane, where he was chosen by public vote to play Bottom in "A Midsummer Night's Dream." He next appeared in leading rôles in Shaw, Galsworthy and Ibsen, and acted in a series of Shakespearean plays in Cairo, Egypt.

The broad shoulders of Barry O'Neill, Francine Larrimore's leading man in "Let Us Be Gay," tell the story of his training in the British navy, in which he was twice decorated during the world war for life saving and conspicuous bravery. O'Neill's wanderings on submarines, minesweepers and so-called "mystery ships" engaged in secret undertakings covered most of the seven seas and took him to the Dardenelles and within sight of Norway, Japan, Australia and the United States.

An offer from Hollywood brought O'Neill from England in 1923, but after six months he tired of picture work and joined Ethel Clayton in a vaudeville sketch, "The Joker." His first New York appearance was in "The Dark Angel," produced by Robert Milton. The play had a short run, but O'Neill registered a success and soon found himself in demand. Mae West paid him a large salary as her leading man in "Sex," and he later joined Jeanne Eagels in "Her Cardboard Lover," appearing with her in Chicago and on the brief tour that was to mark her exit from the legitimate stage.

Ilse Narvenga, prima donna in "Naughty Marietta" coming to the Majestic Theater Sunday evening, Feb. 23, was born in Bremen, Germany. At the age of seventeen she embarked upon a professional career at the Stadt-Theater of Bremen, making her debut in "The Magic Flute." She sang in Hamburg, Dresden, Hanover and Berlin in Wagnerian roles.

Turning to light opera she was especially successful in "Blossom Time," in which she sang for over 200 times in Germany and Austria. Then she created a little role in "Caroline," and decided to devote her abilities entirely to operettas.

New in Manhattan

TEN openings are scheduled for this week on the New York stage, which gives the first nighters of Manhattan one of the liveliest whirls of amusement of the season. The list includes five plays, two musical comedies, an ornate revue under new auspices, a revival, and the unclassifiable Mei-Lang-Fang, foremost actor of China. There will be keen interest in "Simple Simon," Ed Wynn's new show, and in "The International Revue," whose incubation has been a long and costly affair.

The catalogue of premières follows:

"The Infinite Shoeblack"—Tomorrow night at Maxine Elliott's theater. An English play, concerning which good reports have already arrived from Chicago and Philadelphia. Helen Menken and Leslie Banks will head the cast, which will likewise contain the play's author, Norman MacOwan.

"Apron Strings"—Tomorrow night at the Bijou theater. A play which sounds like a comedy. Its author is Dorrance Davis, who wrote "The Shelf," several seasons ago. In it will be Roger Pryor and Jefferson De Angelis.

"R. U. R."—Tomorrow night at the Martin Beck theater. A revival by the Theater Guild of Karel Capek's play which attracted all sorts of attention when the Guild first presented it back in 1922. Earle Larimore, Sylvia Field, Henry Travers, and Sydney Greenstreet will be among the players. The engagement is for one week only.

"The Count of Luxembourg"—Tomorrow night at Jolson's theater. Franz Lehar's operetta, first staged in 1912, as the latest of the music show revivals up Central park way. In the company will be Roy Cropper and Florenz Ames.

Mei-Lang-Fang—Tomorrow night at the Forty-ninth Street theater. China's foremost actor, making his first visit to the Occident. He has brought along his own company to present a program that is said to be typical of the Chinese drama. The engagement is announced for two weeks.

"Simple Simon"—Tuesday night at the Ziegfeld theater. Ed Wynn's new show, which is probably all the description it needs. There are, however, such additional particulars as Mother Goose characters, songs by the Rodgers-Hart firm, and a supporting cast that includes Bobbe Arnst, Alan Edwards, Doree Leslie, Hugh Cameron, and Harriet Hoctor.

"Those We Love"—Wednesday night at the John Golden theater. A play by George Abbott and S. K. Lauren, and the chief news in connection with it is that Mr. Abbott, who has not acted in some seasons—not since the piece called "A Holy Terror"—will be in the cast. Others will be Helen Flint, Josephine Hull, Armina Marshall, and Charles Waldron.

"The International Revue"—Thursday night at the Majestic theater. An entertainment—and, from all descriptions, an ornate and costly one—which Lew Leslie has had long in the brewing. The authors are Dorothy Fields, Jimmy McHugh, Nat N. Dorfman, and Mr. Leslie, while the cast enlists such musical show personalities as Gertrude Lawrence, Jack Pearl, Florence Moore, Moss and Fontana, Jans and Whalen, and Argentinita, who is making her American debut, and must not be confused with La Argentina.

"The Plutocrat"—Thursday night at the Vanderbilt theater. Mr. and Mrs. Coburn, returning to town in the Arthur Goodrich dramatization of Booth Tarkington's novel, which has already served them on the Pacific coast. Their associate players will include Suzanne Gaubaye, Fairfax Burgher, and Theodore St. John.

Neighborhood playhouse program—Thursday night at Mecca Temple, three performances, on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, of "A Pagan Poem," by Charles Martin Loeffler; "La Procession Nocturne," by Henri Rabaud, and "New Year's Eve in New York," by Werner Janssen. Irene Lewisohn has directed the performances in which Harold Bauer, pianist, the Cleveland Symphony orchestra under the direction of Nicholas Sokoloff, and an acting and dancing company will participate.

"The Green Pastures"—Saturday night at the Mansfield theater. With this play Marc Connelly will return to the Broadway arena after an absence of a season or two. The play, suggested by Roark Bradford's "Ol' Man Adam and His Chillun," will require the services of an all Negro cast.

Listed among "incidental" and "miscellaneous" for the week in New York are:

Mrs. Patrick Campbell—This afternoon at the Comedy theater. A repetition of the lecture on "Beautiful Speech and the Art of Acting," which Mrs. Campbell recently delivered at the Martin Beck theater.

Broadway Saranac Relief Fund—Tonight at the Music Box theater. A benefit for which many musical comedy and vaudeville entertainers have volunteered their services.

"Bitter Sweet"—Will move tomorrow night from the Ziegfeld theater to the Shubert. "The Street Singer" will be transferred from the Shubert to the Royale. "Nancy's Private Affair" will go from the Vanderbilt to the Hudson and "It Never Rains" will proceed to the Bayes from the Bijou.

"The Soul of a Woman"—Friday night at the Downtown National theater. Marking Bertha Kalich's return to the Yiddish stage.

Chicago in Operetta.

The Viennese operetta called "The Duchess of Chicago," which the Shuberts tested some months ago, will probably be launched again soon. Mentioned for the principal rôles are Oscar Shaw and Dorothy Dickson, Miss Dickson being the girl who used to dance with Carl Hyson years ago and who subsequently became an actress of reputation in London. She is easily remembered in Chicago, which is her old home town. Her first professional dancing was done at Ravinia.

THEY SAID, "LET'S BE GAY"

FRANCINE LARRIMORE and BARRY O'NEILL

THIS is the way the sophisticated comedy about divorce, now at the Studebaker, comes to its end—and the way most plays end, for that matter. Miss Larrimore has cast off her handsome husband, for the usual reason; but after three years of living her own life (quite swiftly) she meets him again, and they decide on a second honeymoon.

THEATER GOSSIP

GEORGE M. COHAN wants to help the Actors' fund, which is heavily burdened this season on account of the depressing theatrical conditions. Mr. Cohan has, therefore, arranged a special matinee of "Gambling" at the Erlanger theater for Friday, Feb. 21. As this performance is for charity, a popular scale of prices will prevail.

Richard Bennett's play will have a Russian choir to supply musical atmosphere. The name of it is "Siberia," and it will first be seen in Newark the week of March 3.

"Recapture," the failure by Preston Sturges, will keep going at the Eltinge, New York, until Tuesday, thus insuring for Manager Woods his portion of the motion picture money. A New York run of three weeks is required before the producer may start dickering with the film magnates.

Jed Harris has taken over the Morosco theater, New York, for the year beginning in September. He is working at present on "Mister Gilhooley," and will probably try it out this spring. In addition to Arthur Sinclair, those mentioned for the cast include Ralph Cullinan and Walter Connolly. However, Mr. Harris' plans are notoriously subject to change.

At present only a single new production is definite for the week beyond this in New York—Shaw's "The Applecart," due a week from tomorrow at the Martin Beck. There is a good chance that "Tread the Green Grass" will open at the Belmont that week, and William Hodge is also a possibility with "The Old Rascal." There are hints, too, of a farce called "What a Question!"

Brock Pemberton has bought a play by Gladys Unger—a piece having something to do with grand opera. (Mr. Pemberton's "Enter Madame" was not unconcerned with grand opera, and who shall say that he has not been swayed by that memory?) At all events, he plans to present it next season with Leyla Georgie in the principal rôle. Miss Georgie was the first Charmain in "What Price Glory."

The play hitherto known as "Miss Gulliver's Travels" is being billed on tour as "Shreds and Patches," doubtless with a bow to "The Mikado." There is still another name in the offing, however, for when it appears in New York it will be "The Curtain Rises." That will be about March 10. Its authors are revealed as George Ford and Ethel Taylor, the former being a play producer and the latter an actress. Mr. Ford also has up his sleeve an operetta on Nell Gwynne, which once got as far as an announcement with Mr. Ziegfeld. This particular libretto, which is the working of Henry Myers, is modern, save for prologue and epilogue. It will open, Mr. Ford hopes, about Easter, and the title rôle will be taken by Helen Ford, who is also Mrs. George Ford.

Alice Brady's impending play, which has had a number of titles, is now called "Love, Honor and Betray"—with a splendid chance that it will be something still different before it is seen in New York. It will arrive at the Eltinge on or about March 10. Frederic and Fanny Hatton adapted it from a French source.

That Personal Message Early in the Morning

The Wonders of Science as Heard Over the Radio

By Robert Benchley

WHAT with being tied down so close to my work and not being able to understand a foreign language when it is spoken rapidly, I seldom get a chance to hear a real king speak. In fact, unless my memory fails me, I don't think that I have ever even seen a real king, much less heard his voice. I once saw an old Austrian archduke, who was insane and was rowing a boat on a lake quite a distance out from where I was sitting. That practically exhausts my memoirs of royal personages. (O, I did meet Prince George of England once, but as I didn't catch the name I didn't know that it was until the next day.)

So when the newspapers announced that no radio fans in America would have a chance to hear the king of England in his opening speech at the naval conference, I was naturally quite excited. Not so excited as to smoke or to tear off a fingernail, but pretty excited for me. I had heard the king singing in Germany over the radio on Christmas day and had got to cry-almost over the very idea of the thing, and it seemed to me that there ought to be a great kick in listening in on the first king ever to make an address to the nations of the world, to say nothing of the first king to talk so that I personally could hear him. So I made my plans to get up that morning and give George V. a hand.

Not Home Harmonious.

"You'll never get up that early," Doris, rather unpleasantly.

"What time will it be?" I asked.

"Well, he goes on at 11 a. m. in London," she read, "which will be 6 a. m. in New York, 5 in Chicago, 4 in Denver, 3——"

"Stop right there," I said. "You are just trying to frighten me. I used to get up at 4 in the morning to go down and watch the circus train unload. I guess the king of England is more important than a circus."

"Not much," she replied. "But let that pass. If you really think you want to try it, we'll set the alarm in the boys' room and let them get you up."

I recalled the comparative ease with which the boys had got me up at 5:30 on Christmas morning by the simple expedient of blowing a horn in my ear from 5 o'clock on, and it seemed to me that the plan ought to work out all right.

"They don't have to be so brutal about it this time," I protested. "Just come in nicely and say, 'Governor, the king of England wants to speak to you,' and I'll get up. Besides, I'll be going to bed earlier that night than I did on Christmas eve."

"Why don't you do as you did on Christmas eve and stay up all night?" asked Doris, a little bitterly, I thought.

"That's an idea," I said, "but I might not feel so much like listening to a king as I would if I had had a good night's sleep. I wouldn't be able to concentrate. I might even answer him back."

"I guess that anything the king of England will say on that occasion won't call for much concentration," said Doris. [She is part Irish.] "I'll bet the baby can understand it. However, a good night's sleep won't do you any harm, whether you hear the king or not."

Preparedness.

So it was decided that we were all to retire at 9 o'clock the night before, with the alarm clock in the boys' room and some hot coffee all ready. Knowing what January mornings are likely to be, I suggested that we go to bed with our clothes on.

"By the way," said Doris, "what does one wear at an audience with a king?"

Here was a poser. Trust a woman to think of it. I had seen pictures of the young ladies who are presented at court each year [in fact, I had seen so many pictures of them that if one more batch had been printed I was going to cancel my subscription to the paper] and I felt that it was out of the question for Doris to get rigged up like that, with a train and everything. And the very suggestion of my wearing silk knickerbockers drew down such a scream of laughter from the boys that, in something of a pet, I decided that we would all wear just what we had on.

"The boys might brush their hair a little better than they do on ordinary days," I said, getting back at them in a quiet way, "and I don't think it would do Junior any harm to wear something other than that green sweater he has been affecting every day for the last year."

"I'm not going to get up for it," announced Junior.

"What! You're not going to get up to hear the king of England speak?" I said, aghast.

"It's too cold," was all that he would say. I don't know what sort of breed of young people we are raising today. I am afraid that they will turn out to be an effete race with no standards.

"When I was a boy," I said severely, "I used to have to break the ice in the pitcher when I got up in the morning."

"When did you ever have to break ice in a pitcher?" asked Junior. "There's running water in grandma's house, isn't there?"

"I had to break ice in a pitcher once when I went on a visit to my grandmother's in the country," I said sharply. This was a lie.

"Will there be any music on the program?" asked Junior, changing the subject with considerable delicacy for him.

I decided that it was time for me to assert what vestiges of parental authority I have had left to me.

The Fatal Night.

"You and your brother will get up when the alarm rings," I said, "and you will come in and wake me up—and not with a horn, either."

But there was something in Junior's eye which made me feel that it would be his brother who did the awakening. His brother is more like me, and will be an Eagle Scout one of these days.

So the night before the opening of the naval conference was not only a momentous one in London and, we hope, throughout the war worn world, but in our house as well. We ate a light supper, read the evening papers, listened to "Love Made a Gypsy Out of Me" on the Feldberger Bone Button hour, and retired at 9.

Not being accustomed to going to bed at 9, I was a little restless and read until 11:30. Then, the light supper having been rather too light, I went down to the icebox and ate several slices of cold veal and made myself a salad out of four or five other things. Doris was a little hungry, too, and she came down and made some chocolate; so it was along about 1 o'clock when we finally got around to getting our beauty sleep for his majesty.

"You don't suppose he would be half an hour late in beginning his speech, do you?" I asked hopefully. "You know, there is an awful lot of ceremony and pomp connected with such things."

"Those radio programs usually begin on time," she replied. "And the conference has so much to do that I imagine they will want to get the king out of the way as soon as possible and begin work. I wouldn't count on it."

I was the first to awake. If I have anything on my mind when I go to sleep I have an uneasy feeling about the time I am supposed to get up. I don't always act on it, but I have an uneasy feeling. I looked at the clock. It was fifteen minutes after the time the speech was scheduled to begin.

More in resentment at the boys than from a desire to hear the speech, I bounded out of bed. It was, as Junior had prophesied, too cold. But, determined not to be cheated out of my thrill simply because I had two lazy children to whom a king meant nothing, I rushed downstairs and turned on the radio. Doris, like a true helpmate, was at my heels with the coffee.

They sounded rather garbled.

The Wonders of Science.

Somebody was making a speech, there was no doubt about that. We had probably missed the first words of his majesty, but, thank heaven, we were not too late. Science, in all its omnipotence, had conquered space, and now, for the first time in the history of the world, we, the inheritors of its mighty force, were listening to the king of one country speak to the countries of the earth. I sank to my seat, overcome with the immensity of it—and with the cold.

"What is he saying?" asked Doris.

It was a little difficult to make out. He was talking, that was sure. And in a most impressive manner, too. But the words were not coming through as distinctly as I had always understood well educated Englishmen are accustomed to speak. They sounded rather garbled.

"Perhaps you haven't got the right station," Doris suggested.

I consulted the paper and found that that end of it was quite correct. Besides, no other station would be sending out a program at that time of the morning. I turned the dials and almost lost it. The words were there, and the suave manner of the diplomat was there, but the meaning still seemed foggy. It was almost as if the king were slightly intoxicated.

"I guess that he was sicker than we knew last year," I said. "It may have been a slight paralysis."

"They wouldn't let him come out if he were as sick as he sounds there," she said. "Perhaps he has had another stroke in the middle of his speech."

* *

The Mystery Explained.

We listened again in silence.

"Lo clung mekla gleeg ho lang mogiengly maklaglung ming gleeg," King George was saying.

"Maybe we're wrong," I said. "Maybe we're not fully awake yet. It's pretty early, you know."

Then Doris had an idea.

"Who else was going to speak," she said. "Look in the paper."

I looked in the paper again. "King George will open the conference at 11 o'clock, London time, followed by short speeches by the delegates from the United States, Japan——"

"Japan!" cried Doris. "It's the Japanese delegate!"

We listened again. It was the Japanese delegate. Science, in all its omnipotence, had conquered space, and now we, the inheritors of its mighty force, were listening, for the first time in the history of the world to a Japanese delegate talking in London to the countries of the earth. It was almost as impressive as what we had looked forward to, except for the fact that we couldn't make out what he was saying.

And I still have never heard a king talk.

A Terrible Climax.

For the time then, on the stage, he is the magnificent Kean. But his eyes wander once too often to the royal box, where sits the stern prince with his —and Kean's—smiling inamorata. The actor falters in his lines and has to be prompted. He goes on—forgets completely. No prompting can help him now. All he sees is the royal box and his mind is churning with hate for the occupants.

He dashes toward it—a madman—and hurls his insults at the prince of Wales and Helene until, fully delivered of his volcanic rage, he falls in a faint—or a fit—on the floor of the stage.

To him later comes the lady, purring, to retrieve a locket she has given him; then the prince, and—but I've told you enough, I guess, to enable any and all of you to understand what is transpiring on the screen at the Orpheum.

"The Royal Box" is nine reels long, but it seemed short to me because I was so much interested. It MUST be well done to thus engross a lady who nicht Deutsch sprechens. Synchronization was fine the day I watched the picture.

Occasionally the great Mossi sings, and effectively; but he is most marvelous in the talking sequences. He is excellently supported and directed. Staging, costumes and "atmosphere" please.

Bits aBOUTem.

IN GERMANY about 120 theaters have been wired for sound. "Land Without Women" is this country's first altalker of its own. The first French talking film is called "The Three Masks." Europe seems hustling along in an effort to compete with Hollywood.

* *

JEANETTE MACDONALD, whom you'll see with Maurice Chevalier in "The Love Parade," is reported engaged to Robert Richee, a New York broker.

GLORIA SWANSON'S next talking and singing picture for United Artists will be "What a Widow." We are told it is a "sophisticated modern comedy drama," the plot of which unfolds in New York, Paris, and aboard ship, back and forth across the Atlantic.

See you tomorrow.

Voice of the Movie Fan

Enjoyed "Sunny Side Up."

Dear Miss Tinée: I have just read your column on "Sunny Side Up," and am most pleased that you gave it three stars.

I saw the picture about two weeks ago and enjoyed it more than any other that I have seen recently.

I did not think that Eric should have gotten the breaks. I believe he loved Molly as a little sister, for in the last scene we saw that funny smile creep over his face when he saw that she was happy.

I like your column and hope you keep it up. Even if some of the readers do not seem to think much of your opinion of some pictures, I hope you will continue giving your own ideas as to what the pictures are worth. One cannot please everyone all the time, unfortunately.

Sincerely, AGNES RUFF.

Editor's note: Thank you for those kind words.

Robert Montgomery's Charm.

Dear Miss Tinée: After seeing three pictures in which Robert Montgomery has appeared in one of the leading rôles of each, I just can't resist the urge to broadcast my opinion of him. To put it mildly—he's a perfect knockout! My only fear is that he will not be cast in enough pictures.

So, Mae, use your influence in Hollywood for my sake—and I know for oodles of other girls smitten by Robert's charm. Thank you.

EVELYNNE DOVE.

Editor's Note: Alas, I have no influence in Hollywood!

after an old friend perjures himself to the extent of saying she had really spent the night with him, and her father insists that it was he who had dosed of the incriminating bottle of strychnine.

But while all the men who have cast by her are glad that Madeleine has escaped hanging, none of them likes the thought of going on with her. Her English lover quits when he learns that she spent the night of the murder in Jose's arms, her father decides to take a long trip abroad, and the friend who perjured himself for her realizes suddenly that he had better return to the wife and kiddies in California. So Madeleine is left deserted and hopeless in the end.

Glamorous is probably the best word to describe Miss Cornell. A fascinating person, she has that gift of greatness that compels attention in the theater. Technically, she is as perfect as need be in the scenes of murder and as perfect as she should be in the scenes of passion. She administers the lethal poison with an air, and she recovers certain letters from the person of the dead man with a skilled and an art that shakes the nerves—or seemed to, though I suspect it was merely the combined feelings of the agitated ladies present. In other words, she makes a pretty theatrical Madeleine seem quite decidedly human, which I insist is a supreme test of histrionism. Her support is competent and includes a Spanish actor, Fortunio Bonanova, who is of great help to her.

A Vehicle for Hope Williams.

Hope Williams' domestic troubles in Donald Stewart's "Rebound," are trivial compared with those of Miss Cornell, and much more humorous. Miss Williams is, as you will readily recall, the social Registerite who leaped to the stage from the swanky Comedy club, played most successfully in Philip Barry's "Paris Bound," had that gay, "Holiday," written for her as a reward, and is now featured in "Rebound."

She still is a sort of super-amateur, for her ability goes, and still a fascinating person. The Stewart play is in style and manner, largely a repeat of her two former rôles. She is still a kidding daughter of wealth who reaches twenty-eight years without a husband, is disappointed when Johnnie Coles doesn't propose, and then catches young Bill Truesdale on the rebound when his own girl, Evie, marries a richer man.

Bill and Hope are in Paris on their honeymoon when along comes Evie and takes Bill for a jolly tour of the cafés. Hope suffers something awful and thinks she wants to quit Bill until Johnnie Coles comes along and rows himself at her feet, crying that now he is sorry he did not ask her to marry him, because he is suffering terribly for love of her.

The sight of Johnnie on his knees, crying for love, convinces Hope of the wrong-mindedness. Love is not anything that can be cheapened by buying. Thereafter her attitude toward Bill changes and he changes with it, regaining a respect for her he stood in danger of losing.

"Rebound" is for the comparatively few, I feel. Its chatter is bright and many of its comedy situations produce fun. But there is a brittleness and an unreality about it, heightened by the fact that Miss Williams, with all her charm, can not quite do justice to her serious scenes, that destroys its chance of popular success.

The Play Has a Purpose.

"The Boundary Line" is by Dana Burnet, who wrote "Four Walls," trying again to get the thought across that all boundaries, physical and spiritual, are crippling to the soul. Man must be free, else his spirit withers.

Like most writing men, he writes of the writing man. I get a bit tired of actors and novelists as the only frustrated heroes. I sometimes wish playwrights could write something besides plays. And grocers. So we might learn something of their inner problems. Writing men are so uncomfortably self-revealing.

Anyway, Mr. Burnet poses the existence of the Allan Fenways, he a playwright who has gone cheap magazine writer to make money; she a practical young person who wants a home with children around it.

It is the fence that is the symbol. Fences don't like fences. Certainly they like this one, which shuts in Fenway from which a neighbor claims a piece of access.

Mrs. Dorothea, his wife, overcomes this. The fence is built; the neighbor sues for an injunction; the Fenways win and the neighbor, ready to shoot it out with a shotgun, suffers a stroke and dies. Thus does tragedy enter in the wake of selfishness and unneighborliness that would lock the doors of kindliness and tolerance out and hate and intolerance in.

It is a sanely reasoned philosophy, consistent and interesting. But the play never carries it, and many of the characters, are stagy and unreal. "The Boundary Line" is a carefully constructed story, but never a living drama.

Glenn Kruger is starred as the unsympathetic Fenway, and justifies his choice as a sane, modest, human performer. In the end he leaves Mrs. Fenway and hearkens to the gypsy urge that calls him to the road with a troupe of young campers. Dorothea returns to the lawyer who won her love for her. Katherine Alexander plays her prettily.

THE ARMCHAIR PLAYGOER

By Fanny Butcher.

MARTIN FLAVIN.

On Tuesday a Chinese scholar, Dr. Chang (a doctor of philosophy from Columbia) gave a talk before the Friends of China on the Chinese theater which was one of the most delightful lectures I, for one, have ever heard. He told how the Chinese drama and its correlated arts, the musical accompaniment, make-up, and costume, evolved. Chinese drama of the present day, he said, was interpretative of an idea; not, as had been said by some inaccurate writers, symbolical. A man with a whip in his hand is not symbolical of a man riding on a horse at all, as a Chinese actor interprets his part or a Chinese audience receives it. He is interested in presenting to the audience, and the audience in receiving, an impression of the mental state of the man on horseback.

Because the entire drama is concerned rather with ideas than with facts, all of the accessories of Chinese drama are formalized. Makeup is so formalized as to present a design of a face—of a character—rather than to make at all realistic that face. Costumes have evolved from the realistic to a formal expression of a state of costuming. Colors have exact meanings, both in makeup and costuming and movements, as he illustrated with an outstretched arm, through which movement flowed from his shoulder through his elbow and into his fingertips, communicated to the formal design of the picture. Chinese audiences are thrilled and uplifted by the way in which everything "mellows" (to quote his most expressive word).

On Tuesday afternoon the Drama League of Chicago will meet to hear Louis Untermeyer lecture on "The Critic's Half Holiday, or the Poet in Attendance on the Play." Mr. Untermeyer is a poet of distinction.

Martin Flavin used to live in Chicago. He was a few weeks ago the most prolific playwright of Broadway. Three of his plays were running simultaneously—"The Criminal Code," a comedy, "Broken Dishes," which is still popular, and "Cross Roads," which has ceased functioning.

Women Taking Up Song Writing for the Talkies

By Rosalind Shaffer.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 15.—[Special Correspondence.]—When Tin Pan Alley was furnishing the American public with its songs, it was daddy that was writing all the sad songs about mama. That is, there just were no woman song writers.

The semi-classic school, of course, had some woman song writers, most of whom wrote lyrics put to music written by a man, with occasionally some one like Carrie Jacobs Bond to compose both song and music. But in the realm of popular songs there used to be no women writers.

It now begins to look as if the talkies were going to change all this and mama herself is to write songs about daddy. Grace Henry, a recent arrival at the Fox studio, represents the third woman song writer to come to Hollywood for the talkies. The two others are Ann Caldwell and Mabel Wayne at RKO. Grace Henry believes that the new field opened to women as song writers in the talkies will bring the sex much representation in this new avenue of endeavor.

Tin Pan Alley Hostile.

"In Tin Pan Alley there were several things that made it almost impossible for a woman to have a career as a song writer. Life was too tough for a woman. The hours were unheard of, work lasted all night sometimes and collaboration with other folks made complicated situations for a woman." The hard boiled managers with door that closed with a loud slam were another thing hard for a woman to face.

"In motion pictures," continues Miss Henry, "the working hours are fairly regular, studio conditions are business-like and pleasant for a woman to work under and I believe there will be an influx of women song writers who never dared brave the song racket in New York."

Miss Henry has been employed to write material theme songs for Fox movietone productions. A New York woman, she went into the theatrical business when she was put in charge of entertainment by the Y. M. C. A., for the A. E. F. in France. On her return to the United States she pursued her career writing music and songs for musical productions. In 1925 she teamed up with Morris Hamilton and the pair wrote the music for three Earl Carroll Vanities.

Chinese Philosophy.

If one name brings one film job in the crazy moving pictures, fifteen names ought to be good for fifteen jobs, according to Chinese philosophy. Director Mervyn Leroy in his recent picture needed a Chinaman for a convict sequence. One Ah Yet appeared on the set in answer to the call to the casting bureau. Ah Yet did his scene well, was paid and dismissed.

A day or two later a different Chinaman was needed. The casting bureau was invoked again. A Chinaman appeared and Leroy was squinting through the camera when he noticed something strangely familiar.

"Are't you Ah Yet?" the director demanded.

"My name Yung Foo," he replied with a bland smile.

"Weren't you here the other day?"

"Sure, me here."

"Well, how does it come you have two names?"

The actor explained he was on the casting rolls under fifteen names.

Life in Old England, as Seen by One American

By Philip Kinsley.

wide life. Each little town is unique. Listen to the report of a banquet after a fat stock show in one town:

"The chairman said he was happy in having an opportunity of expressing his love for the town. There was very little bigotry or snobbery among the people and familiarity bred fraternity, not contempt. There was a fairly decent train service, a good bus service, gas, electric light, water, a cinema, and he had heard it rumored that the talkies would soon be coming.

Improve with Age.

"Father —— proposed the toast of 'The Houses of Parliament,' and said they had secured the liberty and freedom of the people. Some houses of parliament in other countries curtailed liberty, but they owed a great deal to their own for the freedom they enjoyed. There were many who wanted to do away with the house of lords, was done. For one thing, the house of lords was very old. He could quite understand new countries like America wanting something newer, but some old things improved with age, and the house of lords was one. Another reason why he would not like the house of lords done away with was because it was very English, and he, being perhaps old fashioned, liked English things. He liked English beef (applause) and believed that good English things were the best of all good things (applause), and as the house of lords was English, he was in favor of it, too (applause)."

Traveling into the industrial north, third class by rail, is another interesting experience. The trains are rather cold and people sit with their overcoats on. They are friendly people, however, ready for a chat. The British Pullman attendants are young, polite, and white. They wear knee length blue coat uniforms and serve drinks or lunch. Travel in England is far from cheap and the tariffs at the first class hotels and restaurants are as high as the United States. Train tickets, as on the London tubes, are taken up at the end of a ride, as one is passing out of the station gates.

The Work Shop of England.

Manchester, Birmingham, Liverpool! The distances are short between these big, smoky towns, the workshop of England. On their outskirts one sees rows of new cottages for workmen, the garden homes that are gradually replacing the slums. All over England, each workman has a garden somewhere, which helps him to meet his food problems. In Manchester, where they believe in "peace, plenty, and profit," there are now 4,046 agricultural allotments in the city for ex-service men. In housing needs, the medical officer estimates 47,650 new ones, partly under government subsidy, by 1936. Of these, 6,456 have been built and a start made on 3,668 more. Other projects bring the total already built to 13,000. Liverpool and other cities are meeting the same problem. Liverpool has built 19,264 houses for her workers since the war, all planned on garden city lines. She also has the model suburb of Port Sunlight to show. It is not so important that England has slums as it is to know how she is clearing them out, slowly but surely, not through the plan of a Rockefeller, a Field, or a Rosenwald, but through the borough fathers and parliament, and by carrying the heaviest tax of any nation.

Cotton, as all know, has been in trouble, but when the mills shut down, as they often do, the workers go on the government dole. They are insured against starvation at least. So with all other workers except the agricultural laborers and domestics.

Cotton Industry Losing.

The trouble in the cotton industry, according to experts, is that the cost of production in England is too high. India and China have long been the English markets for cheap piece goods, but now Italy and Japan have stepped in and beaten England. Canada and Australia have tariffs that operate even against English goods. The cotton mills face the necessity of more efficiency or lower wages. These wages last year averaged $14.50 a week for men and $7.50 for women.

The type of people being produced by these conditions is described by Sir Gerald Hurst, K. C. and M. P., in a recent article as follows:

"The patience of dwellers in these districts [Manchester poor] is wonderful. In summer time the streets have often a cheerful air. People sit out on well scrubbed doorsteps. Thanks to outdoor relief and unemployment benefit they are not in grinding want. They can enjoy gossip about sport and films without too miserable a sense of destitution. Even in winter, when the whole area looks utterly dismal, they never lose heart. Gathered by the kitchen fires, they talk about football or listen to wireless. But while they are patient, and even sometimes contented, they are nothing more than that.

"The cast of character which in Victorian days used to be stimulated by ambition to get on, which debated on science and religion, supported mechanics' institutes, believed in self education, and even bought books and tickets for lectures, is now seldom found here."

The Tariff Question.

The needs of English manufacturers and the inability to cure the unemployment evil have revived the historic debate between free trade and protection. Sir William Morris, for instance, thinks that the remedy for industry is a high tariff against all manufactured articles entering this country.

The campaign is for British made goods. Mr. C. A. McCurdy, Liberal economist, who has espoused the "empire crusade" as the way out, said in a recent address at Newcastle:

"By empire free trade we mean a fiscal system which has been tried out and is now giving America the biggest free trade area, the most profitable markets, and the most prosperous workers the world has ever known.

"No one comes to tell you quite honestly you are slipping down the hill in the competition with the United States. You need not worry any longer about the sweated wages of small European countries—they won't count at all in a few years time."

Liverpool Not Depressed.

The empire trade area, Mr. McCurdy figures, would be 14,000,000 square miles, as against the 3,000,000 for the American industrialist. And in the British area he finds wealth for all if the right policy is followed.

A committee report on British marketing overseas, signed by leaders in industry and finance, gives as the outstanding weakness "a detached and insular attitude and unscientific practice—relics of the time, long past, when we enjoyed a virtual monopoly of the world's markets for manufactured goods. Our competitors have every advantage—organization, less transport and marketing costs, and so on—and yet we are calmly sitting here doing just nothing to retain our hold on the market. Manchuria is only typical of what is happening all over China, the Straits, Java, and, in fact, over the whole of the east. We are being driven out and it is our own fault."

Economists and thinkers are asking whether this immense social burden which England has undertaken is not the wrong way to go about it, whether it would not be better to take up improved methods of production and marketing, rural electrification, scientific agricultural research, the exploitation of hydro electric power, the improvement of canals, docks and harbors, and then let poverty take care of itself by having its causes removed.

Liverpool, at least, is not depressed and hesitant. They have an organization and the most modern touch of publicity, and see the steady drift of trade away from London into the north and the Merseyside. Twenty-five million dollars is being spent on a new tunnel linking Liverpool and Birkenhead. New buildings are rising in the main streets, tall steel buildings, one a bank to cost $10,000,000. The city is actively cooperating with industry, and has a network of broad roadways and railway systems, a series of airports and landing grounds, cheap water, electricity, and gas. They do not hesitate to reach out, even to the United States, to attract engineering firms here. Town planning for industry is the cry.

The eighth of Mr. Kinsley's articles will be printed next Sunday.

Talkie Fans Weary of Babel - - - - - - - - - - By Tom Petley

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—What this country really needs is a good five sentence dialogue writer. Well, maybe once he had proved his terseness, he could be given a little more leeway, but with things as they are out in Babel land, the movie palace is clamoring for condensing typewriter manna. No wonder some of the film actors mouth their words. A lot of stuff they are being fed is hard to assimilate.

The difference between "came the dawn" era and the "sez you, sez I" period of talkie age, is less than the thickness of a celluloid strip, so far as most of the verb and adjective blacksmiths of the movie studios are concerned.

The dialogue fellows should be compelled to stay away from vaudeville shows and cultivate sententious gents like Mr. Coolidge, for a spell. It might be a good idea for them to do a bit of knee dusting in front of that Dakota mountain when Mr. Coolidge gets his five word historical epic engraved on the mountain's face. The talkie fans are getting tired of wise cracks that might have been used during the flood of Noah's ark. They also are getting darn tired of orations as long as a Shakespearean soliloquy spoken by actors apparently suffering from semicolon trouble.

Cause for Rejoicing.

All of which possibly explains why your correspondent and a good many thousand other movie goers kept their spectacles on and their ears unmuffed in order to get the very last kick out of a couple of recent talking pictures that actually had something to show and to say. The pictures were "Men Without Women" and "Street of Chance." The lads who tapped out the dialogue for those two pictures learned how to tell ten stories to the column on a newspaper and applied their experience to the microphone. There was not more than one loudspeaker full of wasted words in both pictures.

In the "Men Without Women" picture a submarine crew is trapped on the bottom of the sea. The men talk, for there is nothing else to do.

"How does the thing work?" asks a sailor of the radio operator.

"Sound waves through water, I'll send you a book," replies the radio man as he keeps tapping.

"Stop it. Stop it," cries another sailor who had not yet learned how to die.

"Keep sending," commands the ensign in charge.

That is the way the dialogue runs all through the picture. Short and graphic.

Shorts Not Short Enough.

Oliver H. P. Garrett is responsible for the dialogue in "Street of Chance," the Rothstein film. He need not be ashamed of it for the picture tells the story better than any of the books written about the Broadway gambler. Furthermore, there is a real poker game sequence in which the gamblers actually talk like poker players. That's new in the movie world.

Now, everything would have been rosy and we might have indefinitely retained our good humor if we had not thought of the curtain raisers the big houses are palming off on the public as entertainment. Short subjects, but not short enough. They ought to stop about six feet in front of where they begin. For every ten ten-minute time wasters there is apparently one film that has a spark of humor or a good singing voice. This, of course, does not take in the news reels nor animated cartoons. The news reels are as necessary as the morning newspapers and the bouncing cartoons are really funny.

Most of the one and two reel openers are made in a hurry of cheap material and if, as I have been told, they are run to empty the house of reporters, they should be 100 per cent successful. If one comedy team employed at an eastern shortie factory keeps shouting on the screen, there is going to be an epidemic of damage suits for shattered ear drums.

Look What's Happened in the Shoe Industry

42% OF THE ENTIRE industry's gain in shoe production last year was made by a single organization—the International Shoe Company

THE United States Department of Commerce Bulletin of February 7, 1930, shows that the entire industry produced 17,051,459 more pairs of shoes for the calendar year 1929 than for the year 1928.

During this same twelve months the International Shoe Company alone made a gain of 7,281,134 pairs, while all other manufacturers, approximately 1,200 in number, were together producing a gain of 9,770,325 pairs.

This means that the increased production of the International Shoe Company not only accounts for more than 42 per cent of the total gain for the whole industry, but amounts to more than 74 per cent of the gain made by all other manufacturers combined.

The Department of Commerce figures* show a total production for the industry for the year of 361,402,183 pairs. During the same period the International Shoe Company produced 55,507,129 pairs, or more than 15 per cent of the total.

Thus, while all other manufacturers were producing 305,895,054 pairs for a gain of slightly more than 3 per cent over their production of the previous year, the International Shoe Company, with its production of 55,507,129 pairs, was making a gain on its own record of more than 15 per cent.

The International Shoe Company is proud of this record. It is as fine an expression of confidence as an exacting public has ever given to any manufacturer. It is evidence of the high esteem of the more than 70,000 merchants who sold the shoes. It is a remarkable tribute to the sound business principles from which this company has never departed through all the years of its existence.

Ingrown Nail Turns Right Out!

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Palm Beach Plans to Entertain Him.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—Count Michael Karolyi, former president of the republic of Hungary and now a political exile from the nation he once ruled, will be the guest of Palm Beach this week. He is coming here to address the Current Events club on "Political Affairs in Hungary."

This, the third meeting of the Current Events club this season, is to be held on Wednesday afternoon at Quisisana, the South Ocean boulevard home of Mr. and Mrs. Earle Perry Charleton of Fall River, Mass., who have been influential members of the winter colony for many years.

Every moment that Count Karolyi, now regarded as a Socialist too dangerous to be admitted into this country, can and will spare for frivolous affairs will be monopolized by hostesses in this colony.

Debate on Conference.

During the week just past the Current Events club met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia to hear Nicholas Roosevelt and Judge Alexis De Boer of Hungary debate the issues at stake at the London naval conference. Mr. Roosevelt, a specialist on economics, was our ambassador to France during 1924-25, was later attached to the American peace mission and headed the American mission in Hungary. Judge De Boer, now on a lecture tour of America, was formerly a justice of the Supreme Court of Administration of Hungary.

Membership in the Current Events club is limited to 100 persons, the most socially prominent in the winter colony. So socially advantageous is membership in the organization that it has a long list of hopeful would-be members on file.

Guest Tickets Sought.

Five lectures are arranged for its members each season, one during each week in February and the final one during the first week of March. The request for guest tickets, entitling nonmembers to attend, always increases notably whenever the lecture is delivered in any one of the famous villas in the colony.

Last year there were requests for more than 100 guest tickets when the club met at Playa Riente, the fabulous $3,000,000 home of Mrs. Hugh Dillman, the former Mrs. Horace Dodge. There was a goodly number of requests for guest tickets last week when the club met at the Stotesbury villa, El Mirasol, once the most famous winter villa in Palm Beach.

Among those persons who are members of the Current Events club are Mr. and Mrs. George Rasmussen and Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock of Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Barclay H. Warburton, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Chadbourne, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Harris, Mrs. Nathan W. De Witt, and Mrs. Edmund Ray Dow.

The second concert of the Society of Arts, at which George Copeland, pianist, is to be heard, will be held at the Everglades club on Monday night. Mme. Josephine Lucchese, coloratura soprano, will assist Mr. Copeland.

The Society of Arts has as important a place in the social scheme as does the Current Events club. It arranges a series of important musical events for its own members each year. Edward T. Stotesbury has been president of this organization for several seasons. John Sargent Pillsbury is its vice president, and Henry Seligman its secretary.

Luncheon for J. K. Tener.

Col. and Mrs. Thomas E. Murphy of Olympia, which is just down the road from Palm Beach, are having a large luncheon at the Florida Embassy club on Monday in honor of the Hon. John K. Tener, former governor of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Tener is accompanying her husband to Palm Beach. Col. Murphy's annual party at Olympia later in the season is always one of the gayest events of the winter.

The costume dinner dance given by Miss Mary Brown Warburton and Charles A. Munn in farewell to Rodman Wanamaker II. and his house guest, Gurnee Munn, who have returned north, still remains the most amusing affair of this rather sluggish season. The party was given at Mr. Munn's villa.

Each guest was instructed to appear at the party impersonating some other member of the Palm Beach colony. The host, himself, chose to impersonate Mrs. Aksel Wichfeld, the former Mabel Swift, who was among the guests.

If there had been a prize, it would probably have gone to Mr. and Mrs. John Emerson for their impersonation of Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Stotesbury. Of course, the tiny Mrs. Emerson, who is, after all, none other than Anita Loos, was far to short for the handsome and statuesque Mrs. Stotesbury, so her delineation fell to Mr. Emerson, author and playwright.

Mrs. Edward F. Hutton went outside the colony for her model and attended the party as a lovely and dazzling Peggy Hopkins Joyce. Mrs. Flo Ziegfeld, the former Billie Burke, and Mrs. R. Amcotts Wilson came as the Arnold Brothers, famous minstrels of another day.

Harold Stirling Vanderbilt, society's foremost bridge authority, auction or contract, came as a baby. Mrs. Milton Holden, the former "Fifi" Widener of Philadelphia, impersonated the Marquis Di Selina, while the marquis disguised himself as the vivacious "Fifi."

Gotham's Beaux, Bachelor Maids Won't Wed

By Nancy Randolph.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—[Special.]—It is a sign of the changing times that we have quite as many bachelor girls today as there are bachelors.

The problem of the eligible young man—even though he be 40 or more, for all unmarried men are "young men"—has ever been with us. Mothers with marriageable daughters for many a long season have had an eye on Harold S. Vanderbilt, better known as "Mike," the contract bridge fiend, Jim Barney, Frederic Juillard, Bertie Cruger, Alex Phillips, Percy R. Pyne II., Rawlins Cottenet, Van Horne Stuyvesant, and the Burke-Roches, one of whom is Baron Fermoy.

These all are men who for more than a decade have shamelessly led single lives while rank after rank of debutantes has come and gone without having the least effect upon their iron hearts. It wouldn't be so bad if they were merely men of family, but they are men of vast fortune—eligible in every sense of the word. The way they carry on their bachelor existence, flitting hither and yon, is a direct defiance of every pretty girl and charming divorcée.

Unmarried Men Are Legion.

Society would like to see this older generation of bachelors married off. Once upon a time there was a great hope that Mike Vanderbilt and Eleo Sears would make a go of it. But Mike and Eleo, while the best of friends, continue to hoe their own rows. Mike sticks to yachting, fishing and bridge, while Eleanor still swings a potent racquet and puts her number of miles behind her as exercise each day.

The unmarried men are legion enough when one counts the young men who have tried matrimony and failed, like William Rhinelander Stewart Jr., the eligible ranks swell to awesome proportions.

The worst of it is that the new generation of bachelors is coming along fast, and if it follows the example of the older brothers is not calculated to make the hearts of the maidens happy. There is, for instance, John Nicholas Brown of Newport and Boston, who refuses to share his millions with any girl of society even though he was once most attentive to the titian haired Helen Morgan, now Mrs. Snowden H. Fahnestock.

Coming fast to the fore as young representatives of huge fortunes are Ogden Goelet, who is emulating Willie Stewart as society's representative along the Bright Way, John Jacob Astor, and a number of other young men who bear famous names and are to inherit famous fortunes. None of them seem inclined to ask some post-debutante to share his humble lot and aid in spending the generous income.

Girls Cling to Single State.

The girls, bless them—for "girls" includes every unmarried maiden—are no better, and certainly they lend as awful an example. There are fully as many frightfully rich daughters of society who cling to their single blessedness as there are men.

However, there are not so many divorcées. Amazingly, society has discovered that one marriage leads to another. There are few women in so-

Society Folk Succumb to Modes Reminiscent of a Bygone Era

By Mme. X.

TO the studious onlooker the passing show is always full of interest. To watch the changes in fashions in dress, customs, manners, habits of thought, house furnishings, and adornments is enormously diverting and instructive. But never in the memory of this scribe has there been presented to civilized folk such a swift change from one mode to another as is now being urged on a somewhat dazed world by the originators of styles. The modes about to be pressed on my sex would have been thought utterly impossible two years, or even a year, ago.

When, after the world war, women found themselves freed from corsets, long, clinging skirts, buttoned boots, heavy underwear, long hair, they all cried out in joy: "We are free at last! Never again shall we be enslaved by pompadours, petticoats, pulled in waists, and so on. Henceforth men shall envy us our loose, healthful, delicious liberty. They and their stiff collars, heavy woolens, long trousers, and altogether stuffy attire will, in time, copy us to achieve comfort."

Femininity Wins.

But here we luckless, brainless females are, weakly succumbing to edicts from Paris that we swore never to heed. We are preparing to lengthen our frocks, letting those we wear in the evenings sweep the ground all around our feet; pinning, tying, sewing our belts high up on our still sturdy bodies (most unbecoming is this mode); letting our nice heads of short hair grow awkward locks behind that in time will become chignons again; buying for summer's use those big, wide brimmed hats that are so top-heavy and such a nuisance in the breeze; in short, we are on the brink of submitting to all the discarded nuisances from which the war freed us, and this with hardly a protest.

I think there never were uglier fashions than those Parisian dressmakers are now putting out on the counters of the world. Pretty, young women will continue to look charming; styles can hardly make them ugly. But their elder sisters already appear dowdy, shapeless, and clumsy. Figures that only a little while ago looked trig, vigorous, smart, today look somewhat like those old Noah's Ark females.

The proportions of the body are changing and soon we will see poke bonnets set on top of narrow shoulders, while skirts will swing from armpits, with long swaying folds made to tangle the stride of fair walkers. Our neat, smart little felt hats will disappear, and swaying, wabbling straw ones will bother wearers whenever the breezes blow, as did their predecessors two or three decades ago.

Look where we will, no pleasant outlook is ahead of us if we succumb to the dictates of those Parisian despots. They are designing styles for the women who are heirs of old dynasties on the other side of the ocean, not for the free and active American women of today whose lives are spent in vigorous occupations, either frivolous or serious.

Freedom Is Waning.

The high waists that are looming up on the immediate horizon are both unbecoming and inconvenient. They necessitate longer skirts, and longer skirts mean, eventually, tighter waistlines, and with these vanish the natty, becoming cropped heads that have given my sisters such a sense of freedom. Big hats do not set well on bobbed hair. They require massive pompadours. As I look ahead the future looks darker and sadder than any that has loomed up on us hapless females for several generations. It is called, I believe, "feminizing women." We are supposed to need the process, having become too manly, too capable, too altogether powerful.

A quick glance into a man's furnishing shop in the loop showed me, also, some changes ahead for them. Do you remember those low, flat derby hats men are depicted as wearing in the late nineties when they also sported side whiskers and a rather long cut of the hair? Ugly things those hats were! Well, today you can see their kind again in hat shops for men. Will our brothers, husbands, and their ilk grow sideburns, too? If so, they will agree historically with the coming female.

Italy Worships "Il Duce."

The Eames MacVeaghs, who recently returned from their honeymoon in Europe, gave some interesting aspects of those faraway countries. They landed in Italy, which they found, as say all travelers, much tidier and better organized than any Italy the modern world has known. Also, there was, for tourists and other travelers, a greater sense of security than used to exist. Credit for this must certainly be given to "Il Duce," whose title is inscribed on many of the buildings all over the country. The usual form of these inscriptions is "Eviva il Duce!" (Long life to the leader!), followed by the words which, translated into English, mean, "God made this man." Somehow, this sets him apart from the several hundred billion other men God ever made. It sounds as if, up to the time Mussolini came, God had left this particular job to, say, the archangels. We Americans have too keen a sense of humor ever to put such inscriptions up for even our most universally recognized and admired fellow citizens.

It reminds me of a story I heard recently. If I've recited it here before, I beg your pardon. It is related that Mussolini attended incognito and alone a movie theater. In the course of the evening his portrait was thrown on the screen, whereupon the audience rose en masse and stood, right hand extended, in the Fascist salute. Mussolini, feeling that it was better taste for him to refrain from saluting himself, remained sitting. An elderly woman in the next seat stooped down and whispered to him: "I feel just as you do about him; so do lots of others. But it's safer for you to stand up." Report does not tell what became of that hapless female. Perhaps she is rusticating in the Lipari islands where so many unappreciative Italians are said to be existing in a state of semi-starvation.

Constantly Protected.

According to the MacVeaghs, Il Duce no longer goes about freely, but is always surrounded by soldiers, police, and crowds of his special followers. That he dominates the whole of Italy from the Alps to the tip of the boot's toe to the exclusion of King Victor Emmanuel is indicated by this tale emanating, according to rumor, from the American section of the eternal city. A distinguished American presented himself at the American embassy and when the chargé d'affaires asked what he could do for him, replied, "There's just one person I'd like to meet here, and that is the king." Surprised, the embassy official said, "I'll see what I can do for you. The king's secretary is quite a friend of mine. I'll call him up," which he promptly did.

The latter answered the call himself, and is reported to have answered, "His majesty is here now; I'll ask him." The story goes on to say that and liked the American official, himself took up the telephone and replied, "Tell him to come this afternoon. He's the first person who has wanted to see me in nine years." It was nine years ago that Benito Mussolini took hold of Italian problems.

The MacVeaghs were in Paris before the arbiters of fashion's fearful edicts had issued their orders to us trembling females, and said that as far as they could see women there were dressed much as they are here. There were no very short frocks and no long ones. The middle of the calf, or fourteen inches off the ground, was the mode. In England modes for women, or at least those imported from Paris, were not conspicuous. The prevailing air there was rather saddening. It bespoke genteel poverty, the most tragic aspect a nation can have.

The British civilization, however, has always emphasized the superimportance of men. In English families it is the custom for wives and daughters to give way to the claims and necessities of their menfolk. And these are not easy times for our cousins across the way. Personally I think a civilization in which men are of greater importance than their sisters and their cousins and their aunts is sounder and better off than one dominated by women. Not that I grudge my brilliant American sisters an iota of their great steps forward. It has made for the rounded out quality of our system, but I hope that men will always be the dominating element here.

News of Literary Folk.

This pillar of polite piffle is always interested in the literary, artistic, and other achievements of Chicagoans. Particularly in literature are there some noteworthy rumors of coming events casting their shadows before. That great combination of many talents, Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, has been engaged by the Ladies' Pictorial to write a serial for it to publish within the next two or three months. Fortunately she already had a partly completed work, which she can finish in the required time.

Mrs. David Adler, whose clever novel, "The Crystal Icicle," has recently attracted so much attention from readers and reviewers that it stands second on the list of the most popular books of the month, is engaged on a second piece of fiction of a more than common interest. This is to be a romance, set in Chicago in the last half of the nineteenth century. To make it valuable historically, as well as diverting to those who read for mere amusement, she is making a close study of the daily papers that appeared in Chicago from 1850 to the world's fair period.

She is an indefatigable student. When she sets out to get any piece of knowledge she pursues it with an unquenchable zeal. She is altogether a remarkable young woman. Fashionable, beautiful, devoted to riding and an outdoor life, consorting as she does with the gayest young set in this part of the land, she nevertheless has an extraordinary capacity for real work and devotes regular hours to intensive study and productive writing. She also is genuinely and deeply interested in the simple country life of the people who live near the Adlers' summer home on the northern outskirts of Libertyville. This is not in order to study these simple folk for literary purposes; it is because she is really interested in them and their problems and pleasures.

Two Forthcoming Books.

Still another of our young society women who is soon to publish a novel is one whose clever verses have already made her famous, namely Dorothy Aldis (Mrs. Graham Aldis). Anyone who has shown such a deft touch in her rhymes and prose for children is sure to be both original and delightful in whatever she puts her pen or typewriter to do. She has what one might call an exquisite gayety in her outlook on life, which is reflected in whatever she writes. The work under way now is to be a mystery story. The vogue for mystery stories, detective tales, and their ilk is becoming a prevailing passion. You hear it on all hands: "I don't seem to care for novels so much any more, but I adore mystery stories."

Mrs. Graham Aldis' long time friend and also her contemporary in the fields of poetry, Mrs. James Mitchell (Marion Strobel), is on the brink of publishing a novel. It will appear in April and will be entitled, "A Saturday Afternoon in April," an intriguing name.

A local writer of fame far beyond the boundaries of Cook county, Mrs. Cecil Barnes (Margaret Ayer), is still another of our young social lights who is fast climbing to the top of Olympus. Soon will appear—is it her third book? It is to be called "Years of Grace," a title that can cover any sort of story, be it serious, humorous, didactic, or whimsical. As a writer she is brilliantly clever and also extremely industrious, devoting, I am told, a regular set of hours each day to her work. She has not so many outside calls on her time as has her sister, Mrs. Fairbank, so it is easier for her to keep her muse busy.

Five Occupations.

Mrs. Fairbank has five different and important sets of occupations—her family (she is a devoted wife and mother); her social life (no one entertains so much as Mrs. Fairbank); her literary work (she has three books to her name); her deep and active interest in politics (she is an important adjunct to the Democratic party), and her pet charity, the Lying-In hospital, which owes more to her than to any other Chicagoan.

Her statue in bronze ought to stand on the peak of the handsome new building now going up on the Midway to become a part of those stunning Gothic structures that are fast making the University of Chicago the most beautiful and imposing in outward appearance of any of its kind in this country. It already stands at the top in scholarly achievements and educational importance, with only Harvard close at hand.

MISS ADELAIDE QUARTULLO.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Quartullo of 3111 North Marmora avenue announce the engagemest of their daughter, Adelaide, to Harold O'Brien of 2425 Marmora avenue.

None of Chicago's older citizens can fail to be interested in the announcement of the return to the stage after several decades of William Gillette in his famous rôle of Sherlock Holmes. He comes next week, and on Tuesday, Feb. 25, the Erlanger theater, in which he will play, is taken over by the finance committee of the Woman's City club, which is hoping to raise a goodly sum for their civic fund from their sale of tickets.

Already most of the boxes have been sold. Among those who have taken these are Victor Bendix, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, Mrs. W. S. Ende, Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Robert Mallard, and Mrs. Samuel Insull Jr. Joint box holders will be Dr. Carrel Johnson and Dr. Charles Bramwell, and Mesdames John MacMahon and Mrs. Murry Nelson. The last named is president of the club, which is an organization of great value to the city.

It works along many lines for the betterment of conditions here and the purification of politics. Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, who with Miss Jane Addams was one of the founders of the club, is honorary president. Mrs. Wilhelm L. Baum heads the committee getting up this benefit. It adds to one's enjoyment of an evening if the entertainment brings in funds for a fine cause. It is to be hoped that a full house will be the result of the work of this committee.

Would it be impertinent for an obscure citizen to ask whether the city is still providing and maintaining a motor car for each of the members of the city council? It would seem a quick and easy way to conserve our financial resources to cut off this particular expense.

city, once married, who have decided that matrimony is an entire failure. They almost all decide to take another chance. Many take more than one, and some more than two. One needn't think far for examples. Mrs. Charles Amory is our brightest and merriest emblem of the happy state of matrimony.

But consider the Wetmore girls, Ruth Twombly, Louise Sands, Anne Morgan, Evelyn Burden, Adele Colgate, Helen Frick, Annie Burr Jennings, Georgine Iselin, and Helen Price. Thrown together, their fortunes would make a sum large enough to pay the debts of all the foreign countries, I'm quite certain.

But none of them gives a thought to matrimony. They lead their own lives, do good, and keep up the proper observance of the rites of society. The Wetmore girls, daughters of the late Senator and Mrs. George Peabody Wetmore, give most generously to charity.

Anne Morgan's Leading Role.

Anne Morgan needs no explanation. She has been the leading lady of New York for a long time. No one would think of starting anything feminine in town without enlisting Anne's aid. And as for Anne ever deserting the ranks of the bachelor maids—well, I simply can't imagine it. There's almost as much chance of Sherman's statue deserting the Plaza and riding down the avenue.

Ruth Twombly, on the other hand, doesn't mix in public matters. She attends the frightfully important dinners, and appears beside her imposing mother and her equally imposing aunt, Mrs. Henry White.

Angelica Gerry is another who will never give in to matrimony. She is quite content to let her more versatile sister, Mabie, now Mrs. Francis Drury, represent the married maidens of the Gerry klan. She does, as do Anne Sands, Helen Frick, and the others, all the things that the rich bachelor maiden considers proper; attends the recitals of Albert Morris Bagby, subscribes to the opera, and moves from town to Newport and from town to Europe. But as for marrying—perish the thought.

There isn't any doubt of it—the problem of our bachelors, male and female, is something of a problem. But then, there is always hope. Consider Elsie De Wolfe. Did any one ever think that the brilliant Elsie would marry? The odds against the act were prohibitive, but Elsie went right ahead and married Charles Mendl, and they lead as nice and happy an existence in Paris and here as ever any couple in society has led.

The proof, it seems, as ever, is in the eating of the pudding.

Westminster Kennel Club.

I can't say that this last week has been a brilliant one socially. Every one has been over at the Garden looking at the woof-woofs. The Westminster Kennel club show is proving a greater success than ever and it appears that society is giving the show much more attention than it has done since its inception. Wouldn't it be frightful if the dog show became a greater attraction than the horse show? Every near-wit in town would be remarking upon society's going to the dogs.

in the colony is that of Mrs. Joseph B. Long of Chicago. She is expecting as her house guest this week, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bendelari and Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Durbin of Chicago. Jerome Uhl, the artist, is now in the colony, having come south to do a portrait of Mrs. Long.

Mrs. Jacob Baur and Mrs. Charles Harrington Chadwick, who are at Whitehall for the season, entertained at supper at the opening of the Muletoer grill in the Ambassador hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Clawson entertained recently at a buffet luncheon for fifty guests. They have taken a cottage in Palm Beach for the season. The best fish story told in the colony so far this season has as witness a Chicago angler, Edward Sorenson. Recently he and Henry K. Wells were fishing in the gulf stream when an unusually large sailfish made a strike at the bait and pierced the wooden planking of the little vessel with its sword.

In the effort to get the fish, its sword was broken and the fish—got away. But Mr. Wells and Mr. Sorenson left the swords in the planking to prove to skeptics the truth of their tale.

Pastel Colors Popular.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Thompson, who are at the Everglades club for the season, are often seen at the Breakers beach. The other morning Mrs. Thompson strolled the board walk in a most attractive three piece ensemble of homespun wool in wood green. The new wide-cape sleeves were a particularly smart feature of the jacket, under which was worn a pale green satin tuck-in blouse.

Any kind of lace frock is chic for Palm Beach evening, and if it happens to be beige lace, it is one of the fashion's best bets. Mrs. George Rasmussen, at a concert of the Society of Arts, wore an imported frock of pale beige lace under a coat of heavy, shimmering satin in the same shade.

Mrs. E. J. Kelly of Chicago was on the board walk recently in a two piece dress of azure blue crêpe, with costume jewelry in a deeper shade of blue. Her slippers of Shantung were blue and so were her felt hat.

Black, white and aquamarine blue are the smartest shades for evening wear. At one of the gala dinner dances at the Colony club, one of Palm Beach's smartest rendezvous, last week, at least one-third of the women were wearing white. It is equally good in chiffon, crêpe, georgette or taffeta.

Sacha Guitry to Direct Paris Fete

By May Birkhead.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS. — [Special.] — This year the big annual Franco-American charity fête, which for the last ten years has been the greatest and most fashionable social event of the winter season, will reconstitute a happy meeting between Washington and Lafayette.

To evoke the atmosphere and incidents of this historic meeting, the gifted Sacha Guitry, who is as well known in New York as here for his theatrical productions, has arranged a series of dramatic tableaux to be given at the Theatre des Champs-Elysees on March 12. Mr. Guitry himself is taking the part of Gen. Washington, while his beautiful wife, Yvonne Printemps, has a leading rôle, and the cast will be completed by a number of the noblest Parisian vedettes. Also, many young American society girls will be in the choruses.

An Elaborate Affair.

This representation will be elaborately costumed in the period under the personal direction of Mr. Guitry, who is reproducing a reception given in the year 1782 by Washington at Mount Vernon to thank Lafayette and the French officers, on the eve of their departure for France.

It will be the most interesting affair of its kind ever given in Paris, and the advance sale, as always when Sacha Guitry appears, is an earnest that public response not only to this great artist, but in aid of one of the worthiest charities of the capital.

Scenes with music will be something on the order of Guitry's success, "Mozart," which had a great run in New York several years ago. It will be remembered that two years ago Guitry wrote a play called "Lindbergh," and it is said he is so interested in this Washington rôle that after giving it for charity he will further develop the scenes for more complete production in his next play.

Child Violinist Praised.

Society has been occupied recently with many unusual musical events. A genuine youthful prodigy, who had a public appearance a week ago, performed at an informal tea given by the duchess de Talleyrand, the former Anna Gould, for her young daughter, Violet de Talleyrand.

This young prodigy, Paul Makanovitzky, gave a remarkable exhibition of violin playing with a fluency of musical intuition and finished ease which seemed almost incredible, for he is only 8 years old. Aside from his extraordinary musical endowment he seems to be a normal boy. He is preparing to study here for another year and is then going to America with his mother.

Among the guests at this musicale was Elde Norena, formerly of the Chicago Opera company, who frequently sings at the duchess de Talleyrand's entertainments.

Among the Chicagoans in Paris for the moment are John H. Pierce, who came here from Italy, and Howard Goodman, who is on his way to Russia where he will spend the next six months. David Weber and his wife are going to the Riviera for the next month.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark.

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend, Julia Boyd, of New York.

Chicago, Jan. 26, 1866.

DEAR FRIEND JULIA:

I have been very busy the last few days. Will and I are looking for houses, as a real estate agent is anxious to have Will buy and has several good bargains, he thinks. One he is quite insistent about is on Michigan avenue, near Harmon court. It is a house in fair condition on a thirty foot lot, and can be bought for $15,500, but Will thinks this is too high.

The agent offers us lots, too, on Michigan avenue, at $7,000. Many of our friends are moving out to the south side, south of 22d street, but I don't care to go out so far in the wilds. We may, however, buy a lot somewhere and build, to suit our needs. And I am sure it would prove a good investment to build houses for rent, as people are walking the streets, looking for houses to move into, the papers say. You see, there has been so little building, during the war, we need accommodations for the people who are coming in so rapidly. But Will says he doesn't fancy himself in the rôle of landlord, and my brilliant idea is due to be extinguished, I feel quite sure.

Will has just bought a new horse, and has been rather badly taken in by the dealer, he thinks. His friends joke him a great deal about it, and refer to him as a patron of the turf. One of them sent him from O'Brien's a print of Dexter, as that famous steed appeared, racing against time, in October, 1865. Will takes the joking good naturedly.

I suppose you are wearing the new elliptical hoop skirt. I bought one last week, and feel sure I shall like it much better than my old one. In case you haven't already tried the new kind, let me recommend it. It is very strong but light, and I find it much easier to contract it into a small space. It seems to obviate all the objections to the old kind, which though always elegant and becoming, were inconvenient in the theater, in church, or in carriages and street cars.

Are you doing your hair in a waterfall? I have just succumbed and last week bought a huge braid to wear around my head. My own hair is very heavy, as you know, but it seems necessary, no matter how much one has, to add to it. "Nature has done her part, do thou but thine," Will quotes to me, as I assume this colossal artificial coronet.

We have bought a Rogers group —"The Council of War"—which I think is a nice addition to our parlor. It is so life like, the features of Lincoln, Grant and Stanton just as if they were really looking at the map before them.

We were interested to see in The Tribune a notice of the marriage of Mrs. Stephen A. Douglas to Brig. Gen. Williams in Washington. We knew Mrs. Douglas slightly, but she has been away from Chicago a great deal since her famous husband's death, so we have not seen much of her lately. She is very beautiful.

. . . . . .

Since I began this letter, we have had an evening call from John Crerar, a pleasant friend of ours. You ought to come out and visit me, and set your cap for this bachelor. He it not quite 40 years of age, and already is one of our leading citizens. He is as Scotch as can be, though he was born in this country, and he is, of course, a Presbyterian. He lives at the Tremont House. We are glad to hear that he has become a great friend of George Pullman, and is putting some money into the latter's scheme of building sleeping cars. Mr. Crerar is naturally interested in anything pertaining to railroads, as his business is that of railway supplies.

Mr. Crerar is personally very attractive, and with his wealth and standing, I can't understand why he hasn't been captured by some of our beautiful Chicago girls. Will rallied him this evening on his state of single blessedness, but he made his usualy reply: "I am in love with all the ladies and couldn't choose among them, and no one would have me, I suppose, if I did ask her."

He is an elder in our church [the Second Presbyterian] and very devout. They say no man in Chicago is more generous to every good cause. And all this without ostentation.

I think he has a bit of sentiment underneath his Scotch reserve. A dear old lady told me recently that she once asked him his idea of happiness, and he replied: "Four feet on a fender before the fire." This from a bachelor living in hotels!

I must get to bed, for I have a dressmaker coming tomorrow to make little Martha some pantalettes. I have found a seamstress who does beautiful handwork.

Your loving friend,
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Footnotes

According to a real estate authority, Will and Martha would have done well to buy on Michigan avenue, near Harmon court, land in that vicinity being worth now about ten times what it was then.

Mrs. Stephen A. Douglas, by her marriage to Gen. Williams, became the mother of the beautiful Mildred Williams, who married Walter Farwell, son of Senator Charles B. Farwell. The Walter Farwells live on Long Island.

John Crerar never was captured by Julia Boyd, nor indeed, by any beautiful Chicago girl. He lived and died a bachelor, bequeathing his large fortune to charitable and church organizations. The Crerar library was his gift to the city of Chicago.

Woman's University Club Plans Expansion

Comes to Front in Charitable and Civic Work

Enlarges Its Exchange Privileges.

By Roberta Nangle.

THE Woman's University Club of Chicago is stepping into line with its energetic sister organizations this year with a program of expansion into a wider field of interests and relationships. Since the acquisition of its luxurious quarters in the Medical and Dental Arts building a year ago the club has been primarily a social center for its members.

Its downtown location makes it an ideal place for casual dinners, luncheons, teas and card parties. In addition to the regular schedule of purely social affairs, the club is now assuming a more serious and businesslike aspect. A book study hour at 4 o'clock every Wednesday has recently been inaugurated and the study of drama is being earnestly pursued at semimonthly meetings, when new plays are read or presented in walking rehearsals. There is also an arrangement with the Goodman theater whereby reservations for plays may be made through the club.

Recent Alliances.

Feeling the urge to do good common to women's organizations, the club has recently allied itself with several civic and charitable movements. It is represented on the woman's committee on revision of election laws of the joint legislative bureau, and on the committee raising funds for the Provident Hospital and Training school. It will be represented in the conference on the city manager form of government to be held on Friday at the Woman's City club, and it is coöperating with the Chicago Association for Child Study and Parent Education.

Geographically, also, the club is extending its relationships, and the list of clubs with which it shares exchange privileges includes the University Woman's club of Montreal, the College club of Pittsburgh, the College Women's club of Milwaukee, the College club of St. Louis, the College club of Baltimore, the Women's University club of Los Angeles, the College club of Buffalo, the Women's University club of New York, the College club of New York, the Western Women's club of San Francisco, the Minneapolis College Women's club, and American college women's clubs in London and Paris.

Dinner on Tuesday.

The chief feature of its program for this week is to be a dinner on Tuesday evening at which Dr. Robert Gault, professor of psychology at Northwestern university, will speak on "What I Saw of Soviet Russia." Mrs. May Wood-Simons, president of the club, will head the receiving line and will be assisted by Mrs. Carey Culbertson, first vice president and chairman of the program committee, and members of the board of directors.

Other events of the week include the Wednesday book study hour and a card party on Saturday afternoon in charge of Mrs. Irving Herriott, chairman of the entertainment committee. Officers of the club are Mrs. Wood-Simons, Mrs. Culberston, Mrs. Clarence E. Frazier, second vice president; Mrs. Paul Condé-Dodge, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Lavinia A. Corboy, recording secretary; Miss Mildred Whitcomb, treasurer, and Mrs. Merle B. Waltz, auditor.

The board of directors is composed of Miss Marion E. Clark, Miss Lois H. V. Donaldson, Miss Esther A. Dunshee, Miss R. Louise Hanna, Mrs. Henry Hoyt Hilton, Mrs. Harold Ickes, Mrs. Forest Ray Moulton, Miss Florence A. Partridge, Mrs. Frederick W. Schacht, and Mrs. Merle B. Snyder.

CLUB ETHICS . . . . By Maude Swalm Evans

THE new press chairman cornered the vice president after the club meeting was over.

"I just have to have some help with this job of mine," she said. "My predecessor is in Florida, so I can't ask her. The president is always so rushed that I haven't the heart to bother her. How about it? Have you a little time to help a poor, bewildered chairman?"

"Indeed, I have—as far as I'm able," answered the vice president. "Tell me about it."

"Our bylaws say the press chairman shall be responsible for giving out all press material. Last week at least three of our chairmen didn't give me their copy, but took it to the papers themselves."

"That's rather hard on the club editors—having three or more women bring in copy instead of one," commented the vice president.

"And meantime," continued the press chairman, "I was worried when the material didn't come to me, and I wrote out the notices of our meetings, as well as I could, and mailed them in. Then at the last minute the chairmen appeared at the papers with pictures and speakers and everything. I can't help wondering, why a press chairman?"

"That is certainly a mean situation," admitted the vice president, "but I think I can explain it. The former press chairman wasn't very well—that's why she resigned in the middle of the year—and she encouraged the chairmen to take their own material to the papers."

"O, I see, and of course it's hard for them to change all at once."

"It'll work out all right, I'm sure, if we have a little patience," the vice president promised. "I'll have the president take the matter up in the board, and that will reach the chairmen who belong there, and we'll run the bylaw you referred to in the 'Bylaws We Should Know' corner of our next bulletin, and that will reach the other chairmen."

"Thank you, just loads," returned the press chairman. I feel much happier now."

Question.

"May a club member, not on the board, inspect the minutes of the board?—Ella A."

Reply.

No, unless by permission of the board. Only the club has power to demand inspection of the minutes of a board.

Readers Reveal Ownership of Ancient Bibles

"Bug Bible," Printed in 1551, Among Valued.

QUESTION BOX.

The Rev. John Evans, religious editor, will suggest answers to questions of general religious interest in this column. Anonymous questions will not be considered. Contributors are requested to confine their questions to fifty words.

By the Rev. John Evans.

A COPY of the famous "Bug Bible," printed in London in 1551 by Nicholas Heyl for John Wyghte, is owned by the Rev. Frank Davidson Hopkins, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, Highland Park. Several weeks ago an item was printed in this column calling for information about old religious books owned by TRIBUNE readers. Scores of letters were received, which told of many interesting volumes; some of which are family heirlooms, while others were found by book lovers in out of the way places.

Aside from the Rev. Mr. Hopkins' old Bible, which will be described below, a Latin Bible, stated to be 443 years old—printed in 1487, was reported without description by a correspondent from Waterloo, Ia. If the date on this book is authentic, the owner possesses one of the oldest of all printed books. It was sometime in the period between 1450 and 1480 that Gutenberg printed his famous 42 line Mazarin Bible. Thus, the volume reported by our Waterloo correspondent may be but seven years younger than the Gutenberg Bible, which is regarded as the first to be printed.

The Rev. Mr. Hopkins explains that the odd name, "The Bug Bible," has been given to the edition to which his volume belongs because a verse in the 91st Psalm is made to read, "So that thou shalt not nede to be afrayed for any bugges bye nyghte nor for the arrow that flyeth by day."

"This reading arises not from such a mistranslation as might seem evident," the Rev. Mr. Hopkins states, "but from the very old English word, 'bugges,' or, as we would write it today, 'boogey,' or 'boogees,' meaning ghost or 'terror' as the authorized version of King James renders it."

The Rev. Mr. Hopkins writes of other interesting wordings in the text. He states that Jeremiah 8, 22, reads, "Is there no tryacle in Gilead?" from which the name "Treacle Bible," by which the edition is sometimes known, is obtained.

The "Bug Bible" is printed in old black letter English. The Rev. Mr. Hopkins' collection of old religious books includes what he believes to be the only Bible translated into Arabic; Watts' "Psalms of David," Frasiv's "Book of Martyrs," which is profusely illustrated with wood cuts showing various methods of torture inflicted on early martyrs, and dated 1667. A Bible printed in 1549 was recently given by the Rev. Mr. Hopkins to a college.

In Protestant churchyards all graves are east and west, with heads to the west. I believe I understand why this way of burial is used. Recently I acted as a pall bearer for a Ukranian friend, buried in a Roman Catholic cemetery by a Greek Catholic priest, and the body was interred north and south, with the head to the south. What is the religious tradition or belief back of this?—M. A. C., Chicago.

Information from the chancery office of the Catholic archdiocese of Chicago states that there is no canonical regulation in the Roman Catholic church which governs this matter. It is suggested that local or national practices have some influence, but to trace back each practice to its source one might discover any sort of a reason, other than religious, back of it. Perhaps an early gravedigger broke his pickax on a boulder and started to dig in another direction—and the style was set! Protestant graveyards give evidence that graves are dug in every angle of the compass.

A number of questions bearing on religious problems have been asked the religious editor from time to time. Many of these questions have been of general interest. He will be glad to receive such questions and will discuss them briefly in this column in a non-controversial way. No anonymous questions will be considered.

Uldine Utley, girl evangelist of New York, will speak this morning at the Elmhurst Methodist Episcopal church, which is meeting in the York theater. This was announced by the Rev. Charles J. Dickey, pastor.

"Morals in a Machine Age" is the subject chosen by Dr. Ralph W. Sockman, preacher in a leading Methodist Episcopal church of New York City, for his address before the Sunday Evening club in Orchestra hall tonight. Dr. Sockman appeared before the club for the first time last season. He is a leader in the modern wing of the religious-science movement, and is a popular speaker before student groups in colleges and summer conferences.

The cornerstone of the Jenny Lind memorial, St. Ansgarius' Episcopal church, Maplewood and Thorndale avenues, will be laid this afternoon at 3:45 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. J. G. Hammarskold, New York, dean of Scandinavian work of the Episcopal church in America and nationally known for his efforts on behalf of Scandinavians in this country. The Rev. William Tullberg, pastor of the Jenny Lind church, will assist Dr. Hammerskold in the ceremonies. The new building is the first unit of a church plant to cost, when completed, about $75,000.

The Methodist Preachers of Chicago will hold their regular Monday meeting tomorow at Garrett Biblical institute on the campus of Northwestern university. The Rev. Dr. G. Bromley Oxnam, president of DePauw university, will be the speaker.

The Mayfair Presbyterian church, Kostner and Ainslee streets, will hold its first services in the new church today. This was announced by the pastor, the Rev. William McInnes. The church will not be dedicated until summer.

NEWS OF CHURCHES

THE REV. DR. ROY H. BROWN.

The Irving Park Presbyterian church, North Keeler and Belle Plaine avenues, of which the Rev. Dr. Brown is pastor, will lay the corner stone of the congregation's new religious education building this afternoon. The new building will cost $70,000.

The services will be held this afternoon with the Rev. Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary and pastor of Fourth Presbyterian church, giving the principal address. The Rev. William J. Ohan, moderator of the Chicago presbytery, will assist in the ceremonies.

It is rather hard to realize that printed Bibles have been available for only about one-fifth of Christian history. It is also interesting to note that without doubt the Bible has been the "best seller"—and overwhelmingly so—over the entire period. On the other hand, modern day Christians find it most difficult to realize that during any period of Christian history the whole Bible as we now have it did not exist. But this is true.

For about a hundred years of the Christian era the only paper available was papyrus, a fragile material made from reeds. It could not be put in folio or book form, but had to be used in scrolls. The longest scroll of papyrus available was about sufficient to carry the gospel of St. Luke. Each scroll had to be written by hand, and there were few communities owning more than a few of the individual books of the Bible. Furthermore, there were but few people in each community who could read them.

Some time in the fourth Christian century the use of vellum, or parchment, came into use. With it came the idea of binding several of the individual books of the Bible into one volume. Then came the question as to what books should be incorporated into the Bible. Like favorite candidates in general elections, different communities had their favorite books which they wished to see in the Bible. In fact, when the whole Christian world is considered, it is safe to say that the problem has not yet been settled. The distinction between the apocryphal books and the canonical books, which are often bound together in the same volume, is a mute evidence of differences of opinion which once troubled Christianity.

Among the old Bibles and religious books which are owned by TRIBUNE readers and reported to the editor of this column during the last two weeks are: "Table Talks by Martin Luther," published in 1573, owned by the Rev. M. K. C. Vetter, Addison, Ill.; "Journeys of Holy Writ," published in 1488, owned by Olof H. Nelson, 9207 Yates avenue; a "Catechism," published in 1630, owned by A. S. Diekman, Dolton, Ill. It is noted that each of these books is 300 years old or older.

A first hand report on international situations in the far east will be given at the Chicago forum, Adelphi theater, this afternoon by Roy H. Akagi, Japanese publicist. His subject will be "The Manchurian Hot Box."

The Rev. John R. Heyworth, pastor of New England Congregational church, Dearborn and Delaware streets, announces a series of three sermons beginning this morning with the subject: "Dissecting Religion." The next two sermons are, "Modern Freedom" and "What About Prohibition?" Tonight, the Rev. Robert C. Hall, Michigan City, will speak on Rudyard Kipling.

At the River Forest Sunday Evening club at Jackson and Quick avenues, Dr. C. O. Schneider will give an illustrated lecture tonight on Zion National park and Bryce and the Grand canyons. The program will begin at 7:15 with a recital by Grace Nelson. George Lane will sing two groups of songs. The Rev. William H. Marbach will offer the invocation and benediction.

Newport's Building Promises Gala Year

NEWPORT, R. I., Feb. 15.—[Special.]—There is little social activity here at present, but already plans are being laid for next season, which, from the number of new homes being built, promises to be the most important in years.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Shaw Safe, who have spent much time with Mrs. T. Shaw Safe at Ocean Lawn, will have a cottage of their own this coming summer, having leased the Pinard number one house. Mrs. Safe is the former Louise King, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Thorn King. Eventually the junior Safes will build a place of their own on the land they purchased adjacent to the estate of Mr. Safe's mother.

John F. Jelke Jr. has been here to inspect the Wysong villa which he bought last year. Mrs. John C. O'Donnell has again taken the Pinard number three cottage for the season. Mr. and Mrs. William Fitz Hugh Whitehouse are soon to return to Stone villa from California.

I'll Pay You
$1000.00
IN CASH
To give me A NAME for my NEW Talcum Powder
For Men and Women
The Easiest $1,000 You Ever Made!
I have a wonderful new talcum ready to market. But I can't find a name that describes its smooth, velvety softness in just the right way. So, I'm going to pay $1,000.00 in cash to the person who can suggest the right name. This contest is open to everybody. You can win that $1,000.00 just as well as someone else. Simply send in any name you think of—and you may be the winner.
Any Simple Name May Win
Just because it comes to you in a flash don't throw away your idea. It may come just that way. Or it may take a little thinking. Either way it's worth your while. For somebody is going to win $1,000.00. It might as well be you. We've thought of "Velva Smooth," and "Velva Talc" but they don't quite fit. I'm sure you can think of a better one.

Modernism Speaks with European Accent

Its Exponents Are Largely Foreign Born

Yet It Dictates Standards for Americans.

By Eleanor Jewett.

THERE are a few thoughts which might be in order in connection with the prevalent distrust of beauty that is still exercising those interested in painting and sculpture. Modernism has pretty well established itself now into the definite position "individualism." To be modern is not to be one of a group, and if it is to be an isolated eccentric. It may be all very well to break with tradition, if one is a Frenchman or a Dutchman or an Englishman, but what traditions has American art that American artists should break with?

The new Museum of Modern Art in New York recently opened an exhibit of characteristic paintings by nineteen American painters. The majority of these "American" painters turned out to be of foreign birth. There was a Japanese; there was a German, a Pole, a Frenchman; of the original nineteen every fraction was really American. And it is this majority of foreign born artists who are pretending to dictate to American artists today. Men and women come to the United States, take out papers of citizenship (sometimes even this formality is dispensed with) and call themselves American artists, then straightway try to color contemporary art with their prejudices.

The American born artist is supposed to take any effrontery sitting down or else be hissed down as a reactionary. Last week a Chicago painter said to me: "Our conservative painter hardly knows what to paint or how to paint now. They do not want to be shelved, but neither do many of them want to turn out the trash which seems to be the popular thing. They don't know what to do."

Reflects the Painter.

There is only one thing to do. There is only one thing that any one can do when he is up against it. Painters, themselves, set the pace. Be yourself. If your mind is out of joint and your soul is dead, if you gray flesh and tortured bodies; if suggestive abnormally developed forms, use repulsive color and more repulsive line; put your drug induced dreams on canvas and be hailed (today) a genius.

But if your mind is sound in a sound body and your eyes are open to beauty and your spirit alive to the essential values of things even the ghastliness of life (and every one knows that life is not made up entirely of roses) will gain a purpose, and the beauty of life will be an inspiration.

Dudley Crafts Watson, extension lecturer at the Chicago Art institute, said that a short while ago in New York he went to the Museum of Modern Art to see the Nineteen American Painters' exhibition. He had to wait in line to get inside the doors. There was a crowd as large as those that stand in a queue outside a movie house—8,000 to 15,000 persons were seeing it each day. Inside he inched along and waited for an elevator, and then again he inched his way down a hall and up a packed staircase and then into the gallery where the "biggest amount of muck" had been gathered together that he had ever previously seen at any show. He said it looked as if these men had tracked their studios for the rottenest work they had ever done, things so bad that even censoring was too good for them, and the result was a show that for licentious and suggestive appeal had never been equaled.

This in the name of modernism! It has an evil smell, a sour smell, and speaks well for neither the painters, the movement, nor those who crowd to see it; another stimulant in a world that has too many stimulants and too few standards in this year of grace, 1930.

An Appeal to One's Curiosity.

Two exhibits in Chicago come to mind which received similar attention because in one case the police removed a painting, a wooden canvas of nude women in a park, and in the other case police were threatening an appearance because of the number of nude paintings shown. Is nudity the measuring stick of art values? The very suggestion makes one's skin creep, and one's blood boil. Of course, it isn't. But the fact remains that it is the licentious element in modernist painting that has penetrated deepest into the public mind. That trace of morbidity which lurks in the sanest of us pricks us on to look for curiosity's sake.

Many of us are satisfied with a look; some of us go back again. The picture dealers have traded on the second and third look and have swept into fame paintings which should have been consigned directly to the ash heap. The simple words, "modernist show," imply the abnormal and whet the greed to see.

Far different emotions are raised in the anticipation of a conservative show. It seems impossible to believe that any one can doubt the relative lasting values of the two breeds. Curiosity dies in the satisfying; appreciation increases with time. The elements of modern art that make it an asset to advertising, interior decorating and to architecture—those elements which are much more mathematical than they are spiritual—will live. The simplicity of design, the clear Grecian purity of line, the simplification of everything to its least common denominator, these make for a long life. At all events they make a good bridge to span the years to another revival or innovation, but of a great deal of modernist painting the same is not true.

Modernist painting is based on the unusual; the unique, the grotesque, the bizarre, and the powerful personality of individuals, one after the other. Insane patients can turn out as compelling a modernist exhibit as any dozen so-called sane modernists. That has been proved recently in Paris. For modernist painting one needs a mind out of joint with reality; for modernist decorating, architecture and advertising, one needs a clear mind.

Free from Shackles.

The American individualist today does not need to bother about breaking with tradition in order to express himself. American painting has never been shackled. We have a score of great names; none of them bind us. If American artists choose to put themselves into bondage to foreign revolutionists it is a matter for their own conscience. As far as the question of what should the painters of Chicago paint, this year and next and for all time, it can be answered: paint as you individually feel. Sincerity was never more needed than in art. Convictions, standards, honesty, these are at least as necessary as training, practice and precept.

The nonmodernist really has the upper hand because the bizarre dies so quickly. Which do you think will be the most vital tomorrow—which will live longest in the heart of its audience—a painting of a lady by Romney, or by Matisse?

Spurred on by the fact that so few of the American painters in the "Nineteen" exhibit at the Museum of Modern Art were Americans, the Arts—a magazine of wide-awake policy—is offering prizes for the best list of nineteen American names best illustrative of American art today. It might be amusing to find the nineteen representative Chicago artists. Who do you think should be included? And which of them should go, too, on the American list?

Canvases Are Not New.

This introduction may seem far from our subject, which is again the exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity at the Art institute, but it really is in line with it. The "Girl in Red," by Giesbert, puts it there. And another thought—creative criticism or not, it found inception at the show—is that too many of the paintings have been seen previously this winter. For the first time, at least the first time which has made an impression like the clink of lead on lead, a review of the paintings makes one repeat: "But I've seen this." We have already seen the faintly fragrant "White Roses," by Alice L. Bidwell; the "Transition," by Claude Buck; the portrait of "Mrs Charles R. Dalrymple," by Richard A Chase; the lovely "Mother and Child," by Roy H. Collins; the "Butterfly Weed," by Frank V. Dudley; the stunning "Domes of San Angel," by Charles P. Killgore; the amusing "Suburban Garden," by Charles Edward Mullin; "The North Wind," by Felix Russmann; the "Woodland Retreat," by Agnes Potter Van Ryn, and the "Woman," by Ivan Le Lorraine Albright.

There may be others, but this is rather a sizable list to be able to stroke in first-off. It might be a good idea, if only because novelty is still stimulating, to rule that paintings which have been shown in Chicago during the current season, or even the preceding year, cannot be shown in the exhibition of that year.

Having aired most of the displeasing elements of the current exhibit, next Sunday can be concerned only with praise, for after all is said and done there are a great many fine paintings in this show.

Business Men's Exhibition.

The Lakeside Press galleries is the newest exhibition hall art has in Chicago. It is a beautiful gallery, one large room and three smaller ones in stone and wood and with a neutral monk's cloth covering to the spaces where the paintings hang, that makes a gorgeous background. The lighting is indirect and eminently satisfactory.

The first exhibition to he held here is of work by the Business Men's Art club, an organization of business men over 30 years old who have taken up painting as a hobby and to increase their powers of appreciation. The club has been so markedly successful in its few years of life that clubs in many large cities and towns of the middle west and east are patterned after it.

In the current show one can find much that is worth while. Oscar Lumby has a small but fine painting, "The Wave." Two wood carvings by W. H. Mitchell are lovely, with unusually delicate undercutting. Harry Pink has good color in his "Chinese Girl," "Safe Haven," by Richard Pride, is a lovely glimpse of pier, water and sky. The lighting in the head of a young girl, "Virginia," by Torey Ross, is fascinating. Leo Ruckle has an excellent and enticing still life, "Dutch Lunch."

Possibly the most sophisticated painting in the exhibit, the most finished and the one that is farthest from the amateur's limitations, is the "Frosty Morning," by William R. Watson.

Proud of her teeth ten years from now?

Mothers acclaim this gentle dentifrice for children's teeth

When little teeth are coming in "for keeps" it is important that from the outset they be kept clean, healthy and unmarred.

Don't be in a hurry to select a tooth paste for your youngster to use. Study the claims and the action of all. Eventually, we believe, you will come to Listerine Tooth Paste as so many thousands of mothers have done.

For this modern dentifrice, made by the makers of Listerine, is distinguished for its thorough cleansing qualities and its gentle, safe action.

Contained in it are cleansing and polishing agents of amazingly fine texture that are harder than tartar and consequently remove it. Yet, they are softer than the precious enamel which they clean, therefore do not harm it.

In solution they wash every facet of each tooth. They sweep out decaying matter. They remove discolorations and tartar. They penetrate tiny crevices between the teeth. They give enamel a marvelous luster. Because of its safety, careful mothers choose Listerine Tooth Paste for use by their children. Adults, too, by thousands, have discarded older and costlier favorites for this new dentifrice that gives results immediately apparent. Incidentally, at 25¢ it saves you about $3 per year compared to dentifrices in the 50¢ class. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

BUY BABY A DOLL WITH WHAT YOU SAVE

There are so many things you can buy baby with that $3 you save by using Listerine Tooth Paste at 25¢ instead of dentifrices in the 50¢ class. A doll is merely a suggestion.
